Another Stiff Note Is Shot To Yugoslavia

State Department Sends Emphatic Protest On Transport Attack

MITSCHER, SHERMAN EN ROUTE TO EUROPE

Acheson Angrily Terms Incident "Outrageous Performance"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—An outraged State Department shot a third stiff note to Yugoslavia today, this time over an attack on an American transport plane forced to a crash landing.

Word came frome the Navy, at the same time, that Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, acting commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet, and Vice Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, deputy chief of naval operations, are en route to Europe. Details of their mission were not disclosed, but reports from London said they would visit "troubled areas."

The Navy later announced that the two admirals are on a "routine inspection tour of Navy occupation forces in Europe." A spokesman said this will include Mediterranean areas.

The official American view that the Yugoslav attack on an American plane is an "outrageous performance" was expressed by Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, who is in charge at the State Department during secretary Byrnes' absence in Paris.

Voice Edged With Anger

His voice edged with anger, the usually mild-mannered acting secretary adopted the unusual practice of permitting his indictment to be quoted directly, and went on to say that the incident was not one to be expected from a friendly nation.

He made public at his news conference a "most emphatically" worded official protest against the action and the attitude of the responsible Yugoslav officials, plus a stiffly put "demand" for assurance that there will be no repetition.

The note dealt primarily with an attack on an American Army transport plane Aug. 9 which was fired upon by Yugoslav fighters and forced to crash land in a cornfield after being forced off its course by bad weather. One passenger, apparently not an American, was wounded.

But it included also a reference to reports from Trieste that "a second United States plane en route to Italy from Austria is missing after having last reported itself under machinegun attack." Acheson said that the plane has not been located.

The latest note to Yugoslavia:

1. Protested the "action and attitude" of Yugoslav authorities.

2. Renewed the United States "demand for immediate release" of the passengers and crew of the plane able to travel.

3. Requested an "urgent" Yugoslav statement on whether it will "accord the usual courtesies, including the right of innocent passage over Yugoslav territory, to United States aircraft when stress of weather necessitates such deviation from regular routes."

Crumbie Makes Report

The note declared that Yugoslavia already has been assured that United States planes will not cross Yugoslavia "except when forced to do so by circumstances over which they have no control."

"The United States Government," the note added, "pending receipt of detailed information regarding injury to persons on these two planes and the cost of repairing planes, fully reserves its position in the matter of claims for compensation."

The State Department made public reports from Theodore J. Hohenthal, American consul in Zagreb, and Capt. William Crumbie, dated

Tito Defends Pilot Firing On U.S. Plane

Declares Yugoslavia Desires Peace, "But Not At Any Price"

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 21—(AP)—Marshal Tito, premier of Yugoslavia, denied today in a statement broadcast by the Belgrade radio that an American transport forced down in Yugoslavia on Aug. 9 had been lost in the clouds.

Tito declared that Yugoslavia desires peace, "but not at any price."

The broadcast said that Tito was an eyewitness to the forcing down of the American plane on Aug. 9, explaining that he was vacationing in Slovenia in the region "where the American plane landed."

Tito Is Stern

The broadcast statement, issued in London by the Yugoslav News Agency, made clear that Tito's remarks applied only to the plane forced down on Aug. 9 and not to a second plane reportedly shot down by Yugoslav fighter planes on Monday.

Tito "very sternly stressed Yugoslavian rights and declared that on numerous occasions Yugoslavia has protested against such violations of her sovereignty," the statement declared.

The Yugoslav premier, who made his statement in an address to workers of the Jesenice Foundries, said the Americans had issued a story that the transport plane lost its way in the clouds "which were very rare in Yugoslavia this year."

"The weather was far from being cloudy," Tito asserted, "and, in fact, was perfectly clear."

Patterson Assailed Attack

On Aug. 18 U. S. Ambassador Richard C. Patterson said in Belgrade that the American C-47 plane was lost in a storm and was attacked just as it emerged from a hole in the clouds. It was forced down by fire from Yugoslav fighters and landed near Ljubljana.

Patterson denounced the incident as "a wicked, inexcusable and deliberate attack on a friendly nation's airplane."

Official Statement Given

BELGRADE, Aug. 20—(AP)—An official Yugoslav statement said today that two persons parachuted out of the American transport plane forced down yesterday by Yugoslav fighters and added: "There are signs that unfortunately victims fell in this accident."

(The European Air Transport Command previously had announced that the plane carried three officers and two enlisted men. The Yugoslav statement would indicate that the forcing down of the plane may have resulted in the death of three United States air force personnel.

The official Yugoslav version of the incident:

"On Aug. 19 last an American aircraft appeared over Bled. Yugoslav air authorities invited the aircraft to land. Signals to that effect were given continually between 0850 (8:50 a. m.) and 0902 (9:02 a. m.) hours, the scene being watched by many people on the spot.

"Since the aircraft refused compliance with the invitation Yugoslav fighters forced it to land. On its landing the aircraft got afire and crashed. Two members of the crew parachuted out. There are signs that unfortunately victims fell in this accident."

Britain Seeking Sole Trusteeship Over Palestine

May Touch Off Diplomatic Battle For Control Of Holy Land

LONDON, Aug. 20—(AP)—Britain will ask the United Nations for sole trusteeship over Palestine, a well-qualified government source said today, and there were immediate indications the move would touch off a widespread diplomatic battle for control of the strategic Holy Land.

Arab sources in London said the Arab countries surrounding Palestine would press instead for complete independence of the tiny country—and it was suggested that Egypt would ask for trusteeship if the independence move failed.

Diplomatic quarters said Russia, which long has urged that the British get out of Palestine and let Jews and Arabs settle their own problems, could be expected to oppose British trusteeship. The United States, building an oil pipeline across Palestine, could be expected to favor it, they added.

While the Jewish agency for Palestine made no official comment, a spokesman said Holy Land Jews would not oppose United Nations discussion of the trusteeship and would accept any regime that gave them "a fair share" of control over immigration and certain other matters.

"Britain herself, in introducing the White Paper of 1939, said that the ((League of Nations) mandate was unworkable," this informant said. "As it is being administered now, we agree that it is unworkable. The regime in Palestine today is one of coercian and not of consent."

The official said the plan was necessary because the British League of Nations mandate for Palestine expired with the League. Without direct reference to Winston Churchill's recent suggestion that the mandate be surrendered, the official said:

"Britain will certainly not give up the mandate and has not even considered doing so."

Churchill had urged in effect that Britain wash her hands of troubled Palestine unless the United States helped her solve the conflicting claims of Jews for a national homeland and of Arabs for independ-

Naval Band Leader Goes On Trial

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 20 (AP)—Turning to accusations of culpable inefficiency, the prosecution against Lt. William R. Sima, Sr., sought to prove today that he allowed at least five incompetent musicians to serve under him as Naval Academy bandmaster.

The suspended leader is on trial before a seven-man general court martial on charges of extortion, perjury, neglect of duty and violation of various naval regulations.

The court heard from the head of the Navy School of Music, the leader of the United States Navy Band and the leader of the United States Marine Band, all from Washington, that they had conducted a special audition for four academy bandsmen and found them wanting in proficiency.

The fifth man, named in testimony as Ernest J. Tomanio, musician 1-c, asked to be excused from the special examination. From the acting director of the band, Warrant Officer Alexander C. Morris, and the drum major, Chief Musician Adolph Jarosik, the court heard testimony that Sima asked them to sign a recommendation to raise Tomanio's rating, although both said they knew of no examination given to Tomanio.

None of the day's witnesses said they had ever heard Tomanio play a note.

Lt. James Thurmond, head of the Navy Music School, said that none of the men passed the examination and all could be rated poor.

Capt. William F. Santelman of the Marine band listed low grades for all the men tested.

T. Charles Brendler of the Navy band did the same.

Frequent Attempts To Bribe WAA Employes Disclosed In Reports

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(AP)—Official reports of frequent attempts by unscrupulous businessmen to bribe employes of the War Assets Administration were disclosed tonight.

In this connection, the surplus property disposal agency is pressing a nationwide investigation to uncover any employes with criminal records and weed them out.

The reported bribe offers were disclosed by Joseph F. Carroll, compliance director, who called them "a serious problem."

He notified the agency employes that it is not enough for them to refuse bribes—that they must report anyone who offers a bribe.

Carroll discussed the matter with regional directors last week while the House Surplus Property Committee was holding hearings on surplus dealings. Carroll spoke in a closed session but a transcript of his remarks showed what he said.

He complimented the directors on the "minute percentage" of dishonesty arising from WAA's thousands of daily transactions, but declared that some "does occur."

In most cases where bribery is offered for special favors, the employe turns it down, said Carroll—but he generally stops there, without reporting the incident.

"This is assuming the proportions of a serious problem, and the one way we can combat it is to bring these things to light as soon as they occur," Carroll continued.

"On the fringe of business there exists in the hit-and-run type of businessman who is out to make an extra dollar in any matter that he can, whether it be honest or not, provided he can attain some degree of safety or immunity from reprisal.

"This type of unscrupulous business man frequently—or too frequently—propositions employes in the (War Assets) Administration, offering them money or other valuable considerations in return for special favors in assisting him to acquire surplus property."

Last 2 Surrender In Jackson Ambush

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 20 (AP) — The last two of a group of negroes wanted for the ambush wounding of four white men Sunday night surrendered today to Constable Alex Sullivan of beat two, Simpson County. They were Garfield and Bill Craft.

Constable Sullivan brought the two negroes to Jackson where they told newsmen that they had hidden out since the shooting and that they did not know what it was about.

Garfield Scott said he did not participate in the firing which started when two peace officers and two special deputies went to the Craft home about nine miles from Magee, Miss., to arrest the Craft brothers in connection with an earlier shooting.

Garfield Craft said that he grabbed his wife when the first shots were fired and hid in a chimney. After the firing ceased, he, his wife and four sisters fled to the woods. He said he decided to give himself up because "there was nothing else to do."

Bill Craft said he never left his home about nine miles southeast of Magee, but was in bed most of the time nursing a headache.

The surrender of the two brings to 14 the number of negroes held in the Hinds County jail as a result of the shooting.

Byrnes Explains Slavic Incident To President

WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN IN THE ATLANTIC, Aug. 20 (AP) — Secretary of State Byrnes gave President Truman a full account of all developments in the Yugoslavian situation tonight with a tranatlantic telephone call from Paris to the yacht Williamsburg.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross disclosed this shortly after informing reporters that the presidential yacht is headed now to a berth Thursday afternoon at Bermuda.

The president, Ross said, "has no statement to make at this time." He added that "wether he will have a statement depends on developments in Europe."

Baldwin Defeated In New York GOP Primary Election

[By The Associated Press]

One incumbent Republican member of Congress was defeated yesterday (Tuesday) in New York's primary election, and a second was trailing in a close race.

Rep. Joseph Clark Baldwin, opposed for renomination by the Republican organization in the 17th Congressional District in Manhattan, conceded his defeat to Frederick R. Coudert, Jr., contending it was caused by his "liberal" record.

However, Baldwin has the American Labor Party nomination, for which he was unopposed, and is assured of a place on the November ballot.

In New York's 29th District Mrs. Katherine St. George of Tuxedo Park, a cousin of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, was leading Rep. Augustus W. Bennet of Newburgh for the Republican nomination 10,403 to 8,377. Mrs. St. George was supported by Hamilton Fish, who was retired by Bennet two years ago.

Although Governor Thomas E. Dewey took no public stand in the contest in the 17th District where he voted yesterday, his Manhattan political lieutenant was one of the leaders supporting Coudert.

In Delaware, Senator James M. Tunnell of Georgetown and Rep. Philip A. Traynor of Wilmington were renominated by acclamation at the State Democratic convention.

Brazilian Midshipmen Expected At Annapolis

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 20 (AP)—The Navy Academy prepared today to welcome 85 Brazilian midshipmen along with 26 officers and 282 crewmen of the Almirante Saldanha Da Gama which will arrive here tomorrow. The visitors will arrive in their four-masted schooner under full sail and tie up here at the Santee dock.

This will be the first visit of Brazilian midshipmen since 1886.

Italy Loses Move To Soften Peace Treaty Preamble

Peace Conference Asked To Recognize Work Of Partisans

PARIS, Aug. 20 (AP) — Italy attempted to achieve a softening of the preamble to the peace treaty she is destined to sign with the Allies, but after a long debate the Italian Political and Territorial Commission of the Peace Conference failed to endorse her memorandum.

The door was left open for possible modification, however, since any member nation of the conference may present any of the ideas embodied in the Italian proposals as its own, to be voted upon formally.

The Italians' memorandum pleaded that Italy not be considered in the preamble as having been at war with all of the 21 nations represented here; that recognition be given the part Italian Partisans played in the downfall of fascism, and that consideration be given Italy's "share in the war against Germany, which lasted 18 months."

Abandons Demand

After a long and involved argument lasting more than seven hours, Soviet Delegate A. Y. Vishinsky agreed not to insist upon his demand that the Itlaian proposals be voted upon immediately, with the understanding that only amendments raised by conference members could be put to a formal vote.

The commission adopted this motion: "The chairman noted that the suggestions contained in the Italian memorandum were not taken upon in the form in which they were presented, as amendments, by any delegation, and were therefore not endorsed as such."

This was a compromise between nations like Yugoslavia which wanted immediate formal rejection of the Italian memorandum and those whose delegates intended to embody some of the Itlian proposals in amendments proposed in their own names.

The commission tomorrow will begin discussion of the preamble point by point, when some propasals simlar to the Italian ones may be put to a vote.

Commodity Prices Expected To Jump

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 20 (AP) — Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman informed Governor O'Conor today he had a tough job on his hands—forecasting commodity prices for the 1948-49 fiscal years.

He told the Governor in a monthly report that in trying to draw up a budget for those years, his department was having trouble in anticipating prices especially for food, clothing, fuel and building materials.

The budget director said a nationally known commodity service, to which the state subscribes, expected further increases in the cost of living of 12 per cent during the rest of this year and 20 per cent in 1947.

"It is suggested," he wrote, that "we calculate for 1948-49 budget a 10 per cent increase in building materials, 15-20 per cent on clothing, 5 per cent on fuels and 15-20 per cent on food."

He told the governor he would gather more forecasts, but he was "inclined to believe the estimates somewhat high."

In reporting state purchases for July, Kirkman listed a total of $634,056, of which $134,646 was spent by the State Roads Commission for road building machinery.

Mediation Board Decides Against Press Wireless

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the New York State Mediation Board, ruled tonight that Press Wireless, Inc., under its contract with the American Communications Association, CIO, was not privileged to lay off 46 employes on August 7 without submitting the issue to arbitration.

Dairy Ceiling To Return If Prices Rise

Board Warns Control Will Be Applied If Costs Increase

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—The Price Decontrol Board warned the dairy industry tonight that it will clamp price control back on milk and dairy products as it did on meat, if prices go up.

Chairman Roy L. Thompson, in a broadcast plea for public support of the board's unanimous decisions on price control, declared that so far dairy products have not risen unreasonably above former ceilings plus the amount of federal subsidies.

Shortages Inevitable

Shortages, will be inevitable Thompson said, but the three-member board felt that any doubts should be resolved in favor of the "stable free market toward which we are all working." For that reason, he added, it was decided to give dairymen "a while longer to prove that dairy products will not rise unreasonably in a free market."

"However if dairy products move upward from here on out, this board can and will put the industry back under control," his statement continued.

"We sincerely hope that will not be necessary."

As for meat, newly ordered back under price ceilings, the decontrol chief said, the panel depended on tightened federal enforcement to prevent the return of black markets along with price ceilings.

Congress has authorized a "much larger enforcement staff," he stated, adding:

"We have been advised that the government's regulations on the slaughtering of beef will be tightened a great deal, partly by concentrating all the controls in one agency."

OPA May Get Job

Slaughter controls previously were shared by OPA and the Department of Agriculture. Thompson did not state which agency now would get the whole job, but since OPA's enforcement staff was enlarged by congress it appeared that OPA might get the job.

The board is aware that its decisions will not please everybody and will be hotly debated, the decontrol chairman said, "but we have constantly kept the public interest before us."

"We believe that the spirit in which the nation accepts these decisions of this board will, in the weeks ahead, provide a true test of the country's willingness and determination to protect itself against the tragedy of inflation," he went on.

"We hope that labor leaders will use wisely their new-found power restraining any impulse to get theirs while the getting is good—while the country is hungry for the things our factories are now turning out at record rate.

"We hope that industry and farmers will use wisely their increasing freedom from controls, restraining any impulse to extract the last ounce of profit in withholding goods for more profits."

Charles County Delegate Is Suicide By Shooting

LA PLATA, Md., Aug. 20 (AP)—The body of Delegate James F. Matthews (D-Charles), a bullet wound in the head, was found near his home here today, and Dr. James MacKavanagh, Charles county medical examiner, said he had issued a certificate of suicide in the case.

Dr. MacKavanagh said that Matthews, a member of the Legislature since 1939 and a candidate for another term, had been in ill health for several weeks. He said a revolver was found grasped in the right hand and the shot had penetrated the right temple.

The body was found by a foster brother, William Matthews, at the edge of a woods, Sheriff Bruce Shymansky reported. He said the legislator had been missing from his home since early today.

Matthews, 39, was unmarried.

Costs Return To June Level Is Expected

Packers Express Hope Way To Avoid Black Market Also Found

DAIRY PRODUCTS FREE OF CONTROL AT PRESENT

Ceilings To Be Determined By OPA, Agriculture Department Friday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Meat price ceilings and subsidies were ordered restored by the new Decontrol Board tonight, bringing immediate outcry from the industry that "all the evils of the black market" may return.

Most grains and all dairy products were freed from renewed price control, the latter at least temporarily, Board Chairman Roy L. Thompson promised the public in a nationwide broadcast that if milk and other dairy prices "move upward from here on out, this board can and will put the industry back under control."

The board slapped price controls back on cottonseed products and soy beans as well as all meat and livestock. The actual ceilings, to be determined by the OPA and the Agriculture Department, will go into effect at 12:01 a. m. (EST) Friday.

Price Increases To Be Hit

Price Administrator Paul Porter said the meat ceilings will be "at or close to June 30 levels." This would knock down recent price increases which Thompson called "more than" unreasonable.

Acknowledging that "it would be impossible to please everybody," Thompson explained that under the terms of the new Price Control Act, no ceilings may be placed on dairy products now because their prices in the free market have not risen "unreasonably."

"Taken across the country, a quart of milk went up about three cents in the so-called 'free market' since June 30," he declared. "Of that three cents, nearly two cents was necessary to take up the slack when subsidies were discontinued with the end of controls."

As for meat, the board held that price ceilings could be enforced, Thompson announced that slaughtering regulations "will be tightened a great deal" and that "a much larger" OPA enforcement staff is in prospect.

A statement by the American Meat Institute in Chicago expressed hope that the government "now will find some way to prevent black markets and meat scarcity from developing in the future." It added that unless the controls are "effectively enforced" there will be less meat for consumer and revived black markets.

Congressmen from livestock states went even further in predicting new black market activity and meat shortages.

Subsidies on meat and livestock which were in effect June 29 were ordered renewed for the present.

"Restoration of subsidies on meat means we can re-establish ceilings at or close to June 30 levels," Porter told a newsmen.

"This will be the case on beef, pork and veal. We have not decided yet about lamb."

Gossett Makes Comment

Rep. Gossett (D-Tex), one of the first congressmen to comment, told a reporter that restoration of meat ceilings "will result in most of the meat flowing into the black market. As a result, we will have less meat, it will be of poorer quality and we'll pay more for it."

A statement by Leo Goodman, secretary of the CIO Cost of Living Committee, assailed the refusal to restore controls on dairy products and grains. It declared that "the

Black Market Seen As Result Of Renewing Meat Price Control

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20 (AP)—Maryland slaughterers and meat wholesalers predicted tonight a return of black markets in meat would result from the Decontrol Board's reimposition of price controls.

But while many members of the meat industry in the Free State were bewailing the board's action, milk producers and distributors hailed the body's decision to keep dairy products free from price control.

Dr. R. W. Shermantine, manager of the Maryland Co-operative Milk Producers, Incorporated, said that "encouraged by the ability to operate in a 'free' market" many producers in the milkshed planned to enlarge herds.

Noting that some dairymen "are still reluctant to expand their herds because of the high prices feeds command," Shermantine predicted that "feed prices will drop as soon as the bumper crop of oats, wheat and corn hit the markets."

These were the first reactions of Baltimore leaders of the meat industry:

Wells Hunt: "Since June 30, the packing has revived, with meat again flowing to consumers through normal channels. The re-imposition of controls means a re-birth of the black market."

Lloyd Corkran, a packer: "How they could put ceilings back on meat without doing so with dairy products, I fail to see."

George G. Ruppersburger, Jr., a wholesaler: "It was the wrong move. The public has been able to get reasonably priced meat since June 30. The quotations on the wholesale markets give a very erroneous impression of the situation."

Harry W. Walker, secretary of the Independent Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers Association: "Householders have been dealt a hard blow. They have been able to buy meat in legitimate outlets at reasonable prices for nearly two months. Now they can expect a scarcity of meat and a boom on the black market."

LaGuardia Releases Gen. Morgan As Chief Of Displaced Persons

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (AP) — UNRRA Director-General Fiorello H. LaGuardia announced tonight the release of British Lt. Gen. Sir Frederick Morgan as chief of UNRRA's displaced persons operations in Germany, and appointment of Meyer Cohen, director of UNRRA reparation in Washington, as acting chief succeeding him.

LaGuardia at a news conference also advocated that the United States allow immigration of 100,000 to 120,000 refugees and announced plans to speed the return of many displaced persons to their homelands.

He praised Morgan—storm center of a controversy last January over Morgan's remarks on a Jewish "exodus"—for his work and declared he was "one of the war's great soldiers and contributed greatly to victory."

Assails Allied Official

La Guardia yesterday had assailed a high but unnamed Allied official for saying that Russian spies were operating within UNRRA's organization in Western Europe. Asked then if he referred to Morgan, La Guardia said "you know who I mean."

Today he answered with a curt "no" a direct question whether Morgan had ever supplied any evidence to substantiate the unnamed official's statement.

La Guardia, still avoiding naming the official, replied to another correspondent's question, whether an investigation was planned as a result of what the newsman called "Morgan's charges," by saying:

"I have not heard the slightest evidence on which to base such an investigation."

At UNRRA headquarters at Arolsen, Germany, Morgan's public relations officer, said tonight that the general "now is on active service and, as a soldier, can have no comment."

European UNRRA officials had demanded Morgan's resignation last January for a news conference remark to the effect that a well-fin-

Another Stiff Note Is Shot To Yugoslavia

Acheson Angrily Terms Incident "Outrageous Performance"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—An outraged State Department shot a third stiff note to Yugoslavia today, this time over an attack on an American transport plane forced to a crash landing.

Word came frome the Navy, at the same time, that Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, acting commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet, and Vice Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, deputy chief of naval operations, are en route to Europe. Details of their mission were not disclosed, but reports from London said they would visit "troubled areas."

The Navy later announced that the two admirals are on a "routine inspection tour of Navy occupation forces in Europe." A spokesman said this will include Mediterranean areas.

The official American view that the Yugoslav attack on an American plane is an "outrageous performance" was expressed by Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, who is in charge at the State Department during secretary Byrnes' absence in Paris.

Voice Edged With Anger

His voice edged with anger, the usually mild-mannered acting secretary adopted the unusual practice of permitting his indictment to be quoted directly, and went on to say that the incident was not one to be expected from a friendly nation.

He made public at his news conference a "most emphatically" worded official protest against the action and the attitude of the responsible Yugoslav officials, plus a stiffly put "demand" for assurance that there will be no repetition.

The note dealt primarily with an attack on an American Army transport plane Aug. 9 which was fired upon by Yugoslav fighters and forced to crash land in a cornfield after being forced off its course by bad weather. One passenger, apparently not an American, was wounded.

But it included also a reference to reports from Trieste that "a second United States plane en route to Italy from Austria is missing after having last reported itself under machinegun attack." Acheson said that the plane has not been located.

The latest note to Yugoslavia:

1. Protested the "action and attitude" of Yugoslav authorities.

2. Renewed the United States "demand for immediate release" of the passengers and crew of the plane able to travel.

3. Requested an "urgent" Yugoslav statement on whether it will "accord the usual courtesies, including the right of innocent passage over Yugoslav territory, to United States aircraft when stress of weather necessitates such deviation from regular routes."

Crumbie Makes Report

The note declared that Yugoslavia already has been assured that United States planes will not cross Yugoslavia "except when forced to do so by circumstances over which they have no control."

"The United States Government," the note added, "pending receipt of detailed information regarding injury to persons on these two planes and the cost of repairing planes, fully reserves its position in the matter of claims for compensation."

The State Department made public reports from Theodore J. Hohenthal, American consul in Zagreb, and Capt. William Crumble, dated

Declares Yugoslavia Desires Peace, "But Not At Any Price"

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 21—(AP)—Marshal Tito, premier of Yugoslavia, denied today in a statement broadcast by the Belgrade radio that an American transport forced down in Yugoslavia on Aug. 9 had been lost in the clouds.

Tito declared that Yugoslavia desires peace, "but not at any price."

The broadcast said that Tito was an eyewitness to the forcing down of the American plane on Aug. 9, explaining that he was vacationing in Slovenia in the region "where the American plane landed."

Tito Is Stern

The broadcast statement, issued in London by the Yugoslav News Agency, made clear that Tito's remarks applied only to the plane forced down on Aug. 9 and not to a second plane reportedly shot down by Yugoslav fighter planes on Monday.

Tito "very sternly stressed Yugoslavian rights and declared that on numerous occasions Yugoslavia has protested against such violations of her sovereignty," the statement declared.

The Yugoslav premier, who made his statement in an address to workers of the Jesenice Foundries, said the Americans had issued a story that the transport plane lost its way in the clouds "which were very rare in Yugoslavia this year."

"The weather was far from being cloudy," Tito asserted, "and, in fact, was perfectly clear."

Patterson Assailed Attack

On Aug. 18 U. S. Ambassador Richard C. Patterson said in Belgrade that the American C-47 plane was lost in a storm and was attacked just as it emerged from a hole in the clouds. It was forced down by fire from Yugoslav fighters and landed near Ljubljana.

Patterson denounced the incident as "a wicked, inexcusable and deliberate attack on a friendly nation's airplane."

Official Statement Given

BELGRADE, Aug. 20—(AP)—An official Yugoslav statement said today that two persons parachuted out of the American transport plane forced down yesterday by Yugoslav fighters and added: "There are signs that unfortunately victims fell in this accident."

(The European Air Transport Command previously had announced that the plane carried three officers and two enlisted men. The Yugoslav statement would indicate that the forcing down of the plane may have resulted in the death of three United States air force personnel.

The official Yugoslav version of the incident:

"On Aug. 19 last an American aircraft appeared over Bled. Yugoslav air authorities invited the aircraft to land. Signals to that effect were given continually between 0850 (8:50 a. m.) and 0902 (9:02 a. m.) hours, the scene being watched by many people on the spot.

"Since the aircraft refused compliance with the invitation Yugoslav fighters forced it to land. On its landing the aircraft got afire and crashed. Two members of the crew parachuted out. There are signs that unfortunately victims fell in this accident."

Britain Seeking Sole Trusteeship Over Palestine

May Touch Off Diplomatic Battle For Control Of Holy Land

LONDON, Aug. 20—(AP)—Britain will ask the United Nations for sole trusteeship over Palestine, a well-qualified government source said today, and there were immediate indications the move would touch off a widespread diplomatic battle for control of the strategic Holy Land.

Arab sources in London said the Arab countries surrounding Palestine would press instead for complete independence of the tiny country—and it was suggested that Egypt would ask for trusteeship if the independence move failed.

Diplomatic quarters said Russia, which long has urged that the British get out of Palestine and let Jews and Arabs settle their own problems, could be expected to oppose British trusteeship. The United States, building an oil pipeline across Palestine, could be expected to favor it, they added.

While the Jewish agency for Palestine made no official comment, a spokesman said Holy Land Jews would not oppose United Nations discussion of the trusteeship and would accept any regime that gave them "a fair share" of control over immigration and certain other matters.

"Britain herself, in introducing the White Paper of 1939, said that the ((League of Nations) mandate was unworkable," this informant said. "As it is being administered now, we agree that it is unworkable. The regime in Palestine today is one of coercian and not of consent."

The official said the plan was necessary because the British League of Nations mandate for Palestine expired with the League. Without direct reference to Winston Churchill's recent suggestion that the mandate be surrendered, the official said:

"Britain will certainly not give up the mandate and has not even considered doing so."

Churchill had urged in effect that Britain wash her hands of troubled Palestine unless the United States helped her solve the conflicting claims of Jews for a national homeland and of Arabs for independ-

Naval Band Leader Goes On Trial

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 20 (AP)—Turning to accusations of culpable inefficiency, the prosecution against Lt. William R. Sima, Sr., sought to prove today that he allowed at least five incompetent musicians to serve under him as Naval Academy bandmaster.

The suspended leader is on trial before a seven-man general court martial on charges of extortion, perjury, neglect of duty and violation of various naval regulations.

The court heard from the head of the Navy School of Music, the leader of the United States Navy Band and the leader of the United States Marine Band, all from Washington, that they had conducted a special audition for four academy bandsmen and found them wanting in proficiency.

The fifth man, named in testimony as Ernest J. Tomanio, musician 1-c, asked to be excused from the special examination. From the acting director of the band, Warrant Officer Alexander C. Morris, and the drum major, Chief Musician Adolph Jarosik, the court heard testimony that Sima asked them to sign a recommendation to raise Tomanio's rating, although both said they knew of no examination given to Tomanio.

None of the day's witnesses said they had ever heard Tomanio play a note.

Lt. James Thurmond, head of the Navy Music School, said that none of the men passed the examination and all could be rated poor.

Capt. William F. Santelman of the Marine band listed low grades for all the men tested.

T. Charles Brendler of the Navy band did the same.

Frequent Attempts To Bribe WAA Employes Disclosed In Reports

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(AP)—Official reports of frequent attempts by unscrupulous businessmen to bribe employes of the War Assets Administration were disclosed tonight.

In this connection, the surplus property disposal agency is pressing a nationwide investigation to uncover any employes with criminal records and weed them out.

The reported bribe offers were disclosed by Joseph F. Carroll, compliance director, who called them "a serious problem."

He notified the agency employes that it is not enough for them to refuse bribes—that they must report anyone who offers a bribe.

Carroll discussed the matter with regional directors last week while the House Surplus Property Committee was holding hearings on surplus dealings. Carroll spoke in a closed session but a transcript of his remarks showed what he said.

He complimented the directors on the "minute percentage" of dishonesty arising from WAA's thousands of daily transactions, but declared that some "does occur."

In most cases where bribery is offered for special favors, the employe turns it down, said Carroll—but he generally stops there, without reporting the incident.

"This is assuming the proportions of a serious problem, and the one way we can combat it is to bring these things to light as soon as they occur," Carroll continued.

"On the fringe of business there exists in the hit-and-run type of businessman who is out to make an extra dollar in any matter that he can, whether it be honest or not, provided he can attain some degree of safety or immunity from reprisal.

"This type of unscrupulous business man frequently—or too frequently—propositions employes in the (War Assets) Administration, offering them money or other valuable considerations in return for special favors in assisting him to acquire surplus property."

Last 2 Surrender In Jackson Ambush

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 20 (AP)—The last two of a group of negroes wanted for the ambush wounding of four white men Sunday night surrendered today to Constable Alex Sullivan of beat two, Simpson County. They were Garfield and Bill Craft.

Constable Sullivan brought the two negroes to Jackson where they told newsmen that they had hidden out since the shooting and that they did not know what it was about.

Garfield Scott said he did not participate in the firing which started when two peace officers and two special deputies went to the Craft home about nine miles from Magee, Miss., to arrest the Craft brothers in connection with an earlier shooting.

Garfield Craft said that he grabbed his wife when the first shots were fired and hid in a chimney. After the firing ceased, he, his wife and four sisters fled to the woods. He said he decided to give himself up because "there was nothing else to do."

Bill Craft said he never left his home about nine miles southeast of Magee, but was in bed most of the time nursing a headache.

The surrender of the two brings to 14 the number of negroes held in the Hinds County jail as a result of the shooting.

Byrnes Explains Slavic Incident To President

WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN IN THE ATLANTIC, Aug. 20 (AP) — Secretary of State Byrnes gave President Truman a full account of all developments in the Yugoslavian situation tonight with a tranatlantic telephone call from Paris to the yacht Williamsburg.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross disclosed this shortly after informing reporters that the presidential yacht is headed now to a berth Thursday afternoon at Bermuda.

The president, Ross said, "has no statement to make at this time." He added that "wether he will have a statement depends on developments in Europe."

Baldwin Defeated In New York GOP Primary Election

[By The Associated Press]

One incumbent Republican member of Congress was defeated yesterday (Tuesday) in New York's primary election, and a second was trailing in a close race.

Rep. Joseph Clark Baldwin, opposed for renomination by the Republican organization in the 17th Congressional District in Manhattan, conceded his defeat to Frederick R. Coudert, Jr., contending it was caused by his "liberal" record.

However, Baldwin has the American Labor Party nomination, for which he was unopposed, and is assured of a place on the November ballot.

In New York's 29th District Mrs. Katherine St. George of Tuxedo Park, a cousin of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, was leading Rep. Augustus W. Bennet of Newburgh for the Republican nomination 10,403 to 8,977. Mrs. St. George was supported by Hamilton Fish, who was retired by Bennet two years ago.

Although Governor Thomas E. Dewey took no public stand in the contest in the 17th District where he voted yesterday, his Manhattan political lieutenant was one of the leaders supporting Coudert.

In Delaware, Senator James M. Tunnell of Georgetown and Rep. Philip A. Traynor of Wilmington were renominated by acclamation at the State Democratic convention.

Italy Loses Move To Soften Peace Treaty Preamble

Peace Conference Asked To Recognize Work Of Partisans

PARIS, Aug. 20 (AP) — Italy attempted to achieve a softening of the preamble to the peace treaty she is destined to sign with the Allies, but after a long debate the Italian Political and Territorial Commission of the Peace Conference failed to endorse her memorandum.

The door was left open for possible modification, however, since any member nation of the conference may present any of the ideas embodied in the Italian proposals as its own, to be voted upon formally.

The Italians' memorandum pleaded that Italy not be considered in the preamble as having been at war with all of the 21 nations represented here; that recognition be given the part Italian Partisans played in the downfall of fascism, and that consideration be given Italy's "share in the war against Germany, which lasted 18 months."

Abandons Demand

After a long and involved argument lasting more than seven hours, Soviet Delegate A. Y. Vishinsky agreed not to insist upon his demand that the Italian proposals be voted upon immediately, with the understanding that only amendments raised by conference members could be put to a formal vote.

The commission adopted this motion: "The chairman noted that the suggestions contained in the Italian memorandum were not taken upon in the form in which they were presented, as amendments, by any delegation, and were therefore not endorsed as such."

This was a compromise between nations like Yugoslavia which wanted immediate formal rejection of the Italian memorandum and those whose delegates intended to embody some of the Itlian proposals in amendments proposed in their own names.

The commission tomorrow will begin discussion of the preamble point by point, when some propasals similar to the Italian ones may be put to a vote.

Commodity Prices Expected To Jump

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 20 (AP) — Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman informed Governor O'Conor today he had a tough job on his hands—forecasting commodity prices for the 1948-49 fiscal years.

He told the Governor in a monthly report that in trying to draw up a budget for those years, his department was having trouble in anticipating prices especially for food, clothing, fuel and building materials.

The budget director said a nationally known commodity service, to which the state subscribes, expected further increases in the cost of living of 12 per cent during the rest of this year and 20 per cent in 1947.

"It is suggested," he wrote, that "we calculate for 1948-49 budget a 10 per cent increase in building materials, 15-20 per cent on clothing, 5 per cent on fuels and 15-20 per cent on food."

He told the governor he would gather more forecasts, but he was "inclined to believe the estimates somewhat high."

In reporting state purchases for July, Kirkman listed a total of $634,056, of which $134,646 was spent by the State Roads Commission for road building machinery.

Mediation Board Decides Against Press Wireless

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP)—Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the New York State Mediation Board, ruled tonight that Press Wireless, Inc., under its contract with the American Communications Association, CIO, was not privileged to lay off 46 employes on August 7 without submitting the issue to arbitration.

Dairy Ceiling To Return If Prices Rise

Board Warns Control Will Be Applied If Costs Increase

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—The Price Decontrol Board warned the dairy industry tonight that it will clamp price control back on milk and dairy products as it did on meat, if prices go up.

Chairman Roy L. Thompson, in a broadcast plea for public support of the board's unanimous decisions on price control, declared that so far dairy products have not risen unreasonably above former ceilings plus the amount of federal subsidies.

Shortages Inevitable

Shortages, will be inevitable Thompson said, but the three-member board felt that any doubts should be resolved in favor of the "stable free market toward which we are all working." For that reason, he added, it was decided to give dairymen "a while longer to prove that dairy products will not rise unreasonably in a free market."

"However if dairy products move upward from here on out, this board can and will put the industry back under control," his statement continued.

"We sincerely hope that will not be necessary."

As for meat, newly ordered back under price ceilings, the decontrol chief said, the panel depended on tightened federal enforcement to prevent the return of black markets along with price ceilings.

Congress has authorized a "much larger enforcement staff," he stated, adding:

"We have been advised that the government's regulations on the slaughtering of beef will be tightened a great deal, partly by concentrating all the controls in one agency."

OPA May Get Job

Slaughter controls previously were shared by OPA and the Department of Agriculture. Thompson did not state which agency now would get the whole job, but since OPA's enforcement staff was enlarged by congress it appeared that OPA might get the job.

The board is aware that its decisions will not please everybody and will be hotly debated, the decontrol chairman said, "but we have constantly kept the public interest before us."

"We believe that the spirit in which the nation accepts these decisions of this board will, in the weeks ahead, provide a true test of the country's willingness and determination to protect itself against the tragedy of inflation," he went on.

"We hope that labor leaders will use wisely their new-found power restraining any impulse to get theirs while the getting is good—while the country is hungry for the things our factories are now turning out at record rate.

"We hope that industry and farmers will use wisely their increasing freedom from controls, restraining any impulse to extract the last ounce of profit in withholding goods for more profits."

Charles County Delegate Is Suicide By Shooting

LA PLATA, Md., Aug. 20 (AP)—The body of Delegate James F. Matthews (D-Charles), a bullet wound in the head, was found near his home here today, and Dr. James MacKavanagh, Charles county medical examiner, said he had issued a certificate of suicide in the case.

Dr. MacKavanagh said that Matthews, a member of the Legislature since 1939 and a candidate for another term, had been in ill health for several weeks. He said a revolver was found grasped in the right hand and the shot had penetrated the right temple.

The body was found by a foster brother, William Matthews, at the edge of a woods, Sheriff Bruce Shymansky reported. He said the legislator had been missing from his home since early today.

Matthews, 39, was unmarried.

Costs Return To June Level Is Expected

Packers Express Hope Way To Avoid Black Market Also Found

DAIRY PRODUCTS FREE OF CONTROL AT PRESENT

Ceilings To Be Determined By OPA, Agriculture Department Friday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Meat price ceilings and subsidies were ordered restored by the new Decontrol Board tonight, bringing immediate outcry from the industry that "all the evils of the black market" may return.

Most grains and all dairy products were freed from renewed price control, the latter at least temporarily. Board Chairman Roy L. Thompson promised the public in a nationwide broadcast that if milk and other dairy prices "move upward from here on out, this board can and will put the industry back under control."

The board slapped price controls back on cottonseed products and soy beans as well as all meat and livestock. The actual ceilings, to be determined by the OPA and the Agriculture Department, will go into effect at 12:01 a. m. (EST) Friday.

Price Increases To Be Hit

Price Administrator Paul Porter said the meat ceilings will be "at or close to June 30 levels." This would knock down recent price increases which Thompson called "more than" unreasonable.

Acknowledging that "it would be impossible to please everybody," Thompson explained that under the terms of the new Price Control Act, no ceilings may be placed on dairy products now because their prices in the free market have not risen "unreasonably."

"Taken across the country, a quart of milk went up about three cents in the so-called 'free market' since June 30," he declared. "Of that three cents, nearly two cents was necessary to take up the slack when subsidies were discontinued with the end of controls."

As for meat, the board held that price ceilings could be enforced, Thompson announced that slaughtering regulations "will be tightened a great deal" and that "a much larger" OPA enforcement staff is in prospect.

A statement by the American Meat Institute in Chicago expressed hope that the government "now will find some way to prevent black markets and meat scarcity from developing in the future." It added that unless the controls are "effectively enforced" there will be less meat for consumer and revived black markets.

Congressmen from livestock states went even further in predicting new black market activity and meat shortages.

Subsidies on meat and livestock which were in effect June 29 were ordered renewed for the present.

"Restoration of subsidies on meat means we can re-establish ceilings at or close to June 30 levels," Porter told a newsmen.

"This will be the case on beef, pork and veal. We have not decided yet about lamb."

Gossett Makes Comment

Rep. Gossett (D-Tex), one of the first congressmen to comment, told a reporter that restoration of meat ceilings "will result in most of the meat flowing into the black market. As a result, we will have less meat, it will be of poorer quality and we'll pay more for it."

A statement by Leo Goodman, secretary of the CIO Cost of Living Committee, assailed the refusal to restore controls on dairy products and grains. It declared that "the

LaGuardia Releases Gen. Morgan As Chief Of Displaced Persons

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (AP) — UNRRA Director-General Fiorello H. LaGuardia announced tonight the release of British Lt. Gen. Sir Frederick Morgan as chief of UNRRA's displaced persons operations in Germany, and appointment of Meyer Cohen, director of UNRRA reparation in Washington, as acting chief succeeding him.

LaGuardia at a news conference also advocated that the United States allow immigration of 100,000 to 120,000 refugees and announced plans to speed the return of many displaced persons to their homelands.

He praised Morgan—storm center of a controversy last January over Morgan's remarks on a Jewish "exodus"—for his work and declared he was "one of the war's great soldiers and contributed greatly to victory."

Assails Allied Official

La Guardia yesterday had assailed a high but unnamed Allied official for saying that Russian spies were operating within UNRRA's organization in Western Europe. Asked then if he referred to Morgan, La Guardia said "you know who I mean."

Today he answered with a curt "no" a direct question whether Morgan had ever supplied any evidence to substantiate the unnamed official's statement.

La Guardia, still avoiding naming the official, replied to another correspondent's question, whether an investigation was planned as a result of what the newsman called "Morgan's charges," by saying:

"I have not heard the slightest evidence on which to base such an investigation."

At UNRRA headquarters at Arolsen, Germany, Morgan's public relations officer, said tonight that the general "now is on active service and, as a soldier, can have no comment."

European UNRRA officials had demanded Morgan's resignation last January for a news conference remark to the effect that a well-fin-

Black Market Seen As Result Of Renewing Meat Price Control

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20 (AP)—Maryland slaughterers and meat wholesalers predicted tonight a return of black markets in meat would result from the Decontrol Board's reimposition of price controls.

But while many members of the meat industry in the Free State were bewailing the board's action, milk producers and distributors hailed the body's decision to keep dairy products free from price control.

Dr. R. W. Shermantine, manager of the Maryland Co-operative Milk Producers, Incorporated, said that "encouraged by the ability to operate in a 'free' market" many producers in the milkshed planned to enlarge herds.

Noting that some dairymen "are still reluctant to expand their herds because of the high prices feeds command," Shermantine predicted that "feed prices will drop as soon as the bumper crop of oats, wheat and corn hit the markets."

These were the first reactions of Baltimore leaders of the meat industry:

Wells Hunt: "Since June 30, the packing has revived, with meat again flowing to consumers through normal channels. The re-imposition of controls means a re-birth of the black market."

Lloyd Corkran, a packer: "How they could put ceilings back on meat without doing so with dairy products, I fail to see."

George G. Ruppersburger, Jr., a wholesaler: "It was the wrong move. The public has been able to get reasonably priced meat since June 30. The quotations on the wholesale markets give a very erroneous impression of the situation."

Harry W. Walker, secretary of the Independent Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers Association: "Householders have been dealt a hard blow. They have been able to buy meat in legitimate outlets at reasonable prices for nearly two months. Now they can expect a scarcity of meat and a boom on the black market."

Coffee Is Still Five Cents A Cup

Coffee will remain 5 cents a cup in most Cumberland restaurants despite price increases authorized by the OPA.

The increase of 8.32 cents a pound for green coffee which would vary from one-half to one and a half cents per cup will be absorbed by the restaurant owners themselves, it was learned yesterday.

However, housewives will have to pay 10 to 13 cents a pound more for coffee in grocery stores. Many chain stores which sell their own brand of coffee at lower prices than nationally known brands report an upsurge of business. This works to the disadvantage of small neighborhood stores which must sell "big name brands."

Attorneys Will Report On Filing Problem

A seven-man committee of the Allegany County Bar Association conferred yesterday and will submit a report within the next two weeks after studying methods of relieving the congestion of deeds, mortgages and other papers in the land records office at the Court House. Proposals to relieve the backlog due to the increased volume of business will be submitted to the judges and Clerk of Court Robert Jackson.

Members of the committee are W. Earle Coby, chairman; George R. Hughes, Thomas B. Finan, George Henderson, Harry I. Stegmaier, William R. Carscaden and Lewis M. Wilson. They were appointed by C. William Gilchrist, bar association president.

Wife Wants Mate Declared Dead

Asserting that her husband disappeared nine years ago and that efforts to locate him have been futile, Mrs. Isabella Morgan, Bowling Green, filed an equity action in Circuit Court yesterday asking that he be declared "legally dead."

The action was filed against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in an effort to collect on a $1,000 life insurance policy issued to her husband, James G. Morgan.

Mrs. Morgan said her husband was employed as a vacuum cleaner salesman when he disappeared in October, 1937, and that she had kept up the payments since that time. She asked that the company be instructed to pay her the insurance. Her attorneys are Harold E. Naughton and Milton Gerson.

Mrs. Hazel Ruth Gordon Davis has filed suit for an absolute divorce from William R. Davis, but grounds were not disclosed by her counsel, William L. Wilson, Jr.

Chief Judge William A. Huster has granted an absolute divorce to Arthur E. Shaffer from Mrs. Virginia Shaffer on undisclosed grounds. Naughton was attorney for the husband and Julius E. Schindler represented the wife.

Ex-GI Is Appointed Bank Officer Here

Robert C. Harvey has been appointed assistant trust officer of the Second National Bank, the Board of Directors announced yesterday. Mr Harvey, a resident of Frostburg, had been on the staff of the bank several years before he joined the army in March, 1943.

He served with the army in England, Scotland, France and Belgium and was discharged with the rank of technical sergeant. His banking career comprised work in all departments before he specialized in property management in the trust department.

City Liens Reported Against 13 Properties

Charles F. Burke, city tax collector, said yesterday that 13 of 19 Cumberland properties advertised for sale Tuesday, September 17, by the Allegany County Tax Collector have city liens against them totaling $400.

Burke said that he expected to go before the city council in regard to the matter and that in all probability the city will buy in some of the properties which he stated are in desirable locations.

The properties which have city liens against them are scattered throughout and not all in one section, Burke said.

The sale is set for September 17 at 9:15 a. m. at the Court House door.

Steele Will Head New Printing Firm

David M. Steele, Allegany county sheriff, will head the newly formed Allegany Printing Company, it was announced yesterday.

The new firm is located at the corner of Greene and Chase streets and will be managed by Charles U. Wiebel, veteran printer. The building was formerly used as a storeroom by the Anderson estate, and an extensive improvement program has been completed.

Officers of the corporation are Steele, president; Jessie M. Wiebel, vice president; Grant A. Wiebel, secretary-treasurer. Steele will serve as office manager and contact man.

The firm will employ 10 printers and other employes, and has made an application to the Typographical Union for a label.

No job is too difficult for the man who is determined to make good.

Coffee Is Still Five Cents A Cup

Coffee will remain 5 cents a cup in most Cumberland restaurants despite price increases authorized by the OPA.

The increase of 8.22 cents a pound for green coffee which would vary from one-half to one and a half cents per cup will be absorbed by the restaurant owners themselves, it was learned yesterday.

However, housewives will have to pay 10 to 13 cents a pound more for coffee in grocery stores. Many chain stores which sell their own brand of coffee at lower prices than nationally known brands report an upsurge of business. This works to the disadvantage of small neighborhood stores which must sell "big name brands."

Attorneys Will Report On Filing Problem

A seven-man committee of the Allegany County Bar Association conferred yesterday and will submit a report within the next two weeks after studying methods of relieving the congestion of deeds, mortgages and other papers in the land records office at the Court House. Proposals to relieve the backlog due to the increased volume of business will be submitted to the judges and Clerk of Court Robert Jackson.

Members of the committee are W. Earle Coby, chairman; George R. Hughes, Thomas B. Finan, George Henderson, Harry I. Stegmaier, William R. Carscaden and Lewis M. Wilson. They were appointed by C. William Gilchrist, bar association president.

Wife Wants Mate Declared Dead

Asserting that her husband disappeared nine years ago and that efforts to locate him have been futile, Mrs. Isabella Morgan, Bowling Green, filed an equity action in Circuit Court yesterday asking that he be declared "legally dead."

The action was filed against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in an effort to collect on a $1,000 life insurance policy issued to her husband, James G. Morgan.

Mrs. Morgan said her husband was employed as a vacuum cleaner salesman when he disappeared in October, 1937, and that she had kept up the payments since that time. She asked that the company be instructed to pay her the insurance. Her attorneys are Harold E. Naughton and Milton Gerson.

Mrs. Hazel Ruth Gordon Davis has filed suit for an absolute divorce from William R. Davis, but grounds were not disclosed by her counsel, William L. Wilson, Jr.

Chief Judge William A. Huster has granted an absolute divorce to Arthur E. Shaffer from Mrs. Virginia Shaffer on undisclosed grounds. Naughton was attorney for the husband and Julius E. Schindler represented the wife.

Board Rejects Offer For Six City Lots

The Board of County Commissioners yesterday rejected an offer of $400 by Albert F. Stine, 919 Lexington avenue, for six lots on Potomac street. It was pointed out that the lots, bought in by the county at tax sales, are assessed a $750.

Deputy Sheriff Edward R. Muir reported that storm sewers along Dan's Rock road in the Paradise section near Midland, have become clogged with debris after recent rains. County Engineer John H. Carscaden was asked to investigate.

Russia Asks Majority Rule On Dardanelles

The Russian note to Turkey regarding control of the Dardanelles proposes future regulation of the straits by four powers only, the Soviet Union, Turkey, Bulgaria and Romania. In other words, Russia wants three votes to Turkey's one on the control authority.

Under the Montreux convention governing use of the Dardanelles, Britain, France, Greece, Yugoslavia and Japan also were represented. Turkey would continue this control plan, with the United States replacing Japan.

Not content with demanding a 3 to 1 control authority, Russia also has proposed a "joint" Turkish-Russian defense of the Dardanelles against any aggression coming from the Mediterranean. This is interpreted as meaning establishment of Russian bases on the straits, and actually military control of the Dardanelles by the Soviet Union.

The offer of such unequal partnership is highly disturbing to the Turks, because the only threat to Turkish sovereignty is Russia herself. Considered realistically, the Russian demands need not be taken at face value. In the first place, Russia is a true oriental bargainer, whose asking price always trebles her expectations. Secondly, the war of nerves Russia is waging against smaller nations such as Turkey, Greece and Sweden, is forcing the other countries of the world into a defensive alliance against her, without the formality of diplomatic discussions or mutual aid agreements.

Civilization made the mistake of appeasing one dictator and isn't likely to repeat that mistake in at least the present generation.

Officials of an Oregon town have been spraying parking meters with DDT dust to keep the coin slots clear. The meters have been taken for a buggy ride.

Vet Needs House Or Apartment To Rent

Months may pass before any discernible results come from the recent action of the National Housing Administration to channel a large share of new houses to the rental market, but at least it is a step down the right road if free enterprise is not to be permitted to function in the housing field. As an invitation to prospective builders in the rental field, the housing agency has relaxed the rules on rates under $80 a month, but without raising the top ceiling. No longer will a 20 per cent top differential be maintained between old and new rental housing, so long as the price doesn't exceed that $80.

Such action is noteworthy if for no other reason than that it indicates a perception in high quarters that houses and apartments for rent are the need of the day. For the average veteran or the head of a family in the low-income group this, simply is not the best time to build. To do so in too many cases entails a desperate plunge into building that often is cheaply-constructed, poorly-planned and ridiculously-priced.

Of course, it is a delicate and almost dangerous matter to urge caution and wisdom upon a man who has no place for his children to grow. Too many have known the bitter hopelessness that springs from an endless succession of "no vacancy" signs.

But to escape from this kind of hardship contractors who always have built substantially still are doing so, but the abnormal demand for housing has brought out the jerry-builders, and it is of them that the veteran must beware. Building may be the solution for the man who has the means to make a substantial down payment, who can afford a lot in a suitable location, and who deals with a reputable contractor. But the average veteran needs a house or apartment to rent, and it is toward him that a great part of the building effort should be directed.

If you furnish the boss with good ideas about how to make money, you're likely to get more yourself.

Uncle Sam's New Army Needs More Volunteers

Although the United States Army recruiting program has not yet succeeded in rebuilding the Army entirely on a volunteer basis, it has one record achievement to its credit. Since last fall, nearly 900,000 men have joined the new Regular Army and this is more men than have ever before voluntarily gone into any army, at any time, any place in the world.

Nevertheless the need exists for more recruits and the nation will be the better for it if they are men who go into the service of their own volition and by their own decision. Given enough enlistments, the operation of the Selective Service can be suspended, thus giving the nation an Army made up of those who like the soldier's life and who therefore will become more efficient soldiers.

The service is today far more attractive to youth than it was in the past. Under the new scale the private is given a starting monthly pay base of $75 and if and when he is promoted to first sergeant he receives $165. In addition to that his clothing, food, lodging and medical care are free and he is entitled to generous retirement privileges.

Moreover, the Army today offers educational and trade training facilities to recruits which were not even thought of a few years ago. Wise young men, with a concern for both the present and the future, will do well to consider seriously the opportunities which this branch of the armed service now offers.

A pedestrian is a married man who owns one auto.

Glad To Get Back From Vacation

As the end of August and the traditional vacation season approaches, returning vacationers in the mass are glad to return home and start in where they left off. It's been a lot of fun, but the inconvenience has not been inconsiderable. A reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer, approaching the end of a long vacation trip, finally let go with a description of what he encountered in a large hotel in Yellowstone Park, after driving 1,000 miles from Oregon in 30 hours because he couldn't find overnight accommodations. Telegrams which had been at the hotel for two days were not delivered until he got in touch with the senders. Waitresses threw knives at each other in the dining room. And the hotel wouldn't accept a check in payment of his bill.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

BRAIN INVOLVEMENT IN ENCEPHALITIS

ENCEPHALITIS is a disease of the brain while infantile paralysis involves the spinal cord. But since these two nerve structures are continuous, one may spread into the territory of the other so that combinations occur.

When the virus attacks the brain, encephalitis ensues. To confuse the picture, an allied organism is responsible for polio. Furthermore, the early symptoms of both disorders are somewhat similar so that diagnosis is difficult at this stage. As a rule, the period of doubt is short-lived because in polio the mind remains alert and paralysis is more common.

Epidemics of encephalitis appear from time to time in all parts of the world. In the United States they are more likely to strike in late summer and, altho no age is exempt, adults are more prone to develop the disease.

Thru metriculous study of the causative germs, it was found that several varieties exist. The St. Louis, eastern, and western equine types are observed here; the forms seen in Japan and Russia are slightly different. In the majority of cases, mosquitoes are held responsible. Apparently they become infected from diseased birds (especially chickens and pigeons) and mammals which seemingly are healthy.

The invasion of the brain by these organisms causes the temperature to rise in some instances to a level of 107 defrees F. Fever may last from one to five days before it begins to subside. Meanwhile, the individual suffers with intense headache and perhaps soreness in the back and bones of his limbs. There is stiffness of the neck and tremors of the hands, tongue, and lips. Drowsiness is so marked that the patient appears to be sleeping continuously. During this phase his movements are sluggish and he is slow to respond to questioning. When severe, marked stiffness of the arms and legs, followed by coma, may be expected.

Convalescence is generally prolonged and tremors, nervousness, and weakness may persist for several months. In infants, the only manifestations may be fever and convulsions. With the elderly, the malady is often mistaken for heat prostration or a stroke. In the extremes of life the outcome is usually not good.

These patients demand expert medical care and do best in a hospital where they can be kept under constant supervision. Since none of the modern drugs, such as the sulfa compounds or penicillin, are of value, each unpleasant symptom must be treated as it arises. Vaccines for prevention are available but are seldom used unless epidemics are in the offing. A better plan is to renew our attack on insects.

In the past, this form of encephalitis was referred to as "sleeping sickness" and "encephalitis lethargica." These names were used because they are descriptive of the stuporous condition of the patient. Like influenza, occasional cases are observed in communities but what we dread most are epidemics, as both diseases are potential powder kegs whenever and wherever they occur.

EARS ARE DRY

F. C. writes: What causes a dry ear?

REPLY

If you are referring to "behind the ears" the answer is simple. The term is used more frequently to denote a dry, scaly eczema of the membranes of the outer ear canal. There are many causes, including ringworm. Sometimes they are very resistant to treatment, but temporary relief often follows the use of petroleum jelly or olive oil.

SUNNING THE VEINS

F. R. writes: Is it harmful to expose varicose veins to the sun?

REPLY

No. On the other hand, if the abnormality is associated with complications such as eczema or ulcers, care must be taken not to burn the damaged tissues.

"IT Says Here"

By BOB HOPE

I was thinking of doing a little redecorating, so I went down to see the summer furniture show in Hollywood. One gets awfully tired of looking at the same old couch . . . especially when the brother-in-law is always on it.

The furniture featured was "California style" with chairs and couches opening into outdoor beds. I tried one, but the chairs were a little lumpy.

No kidding, I really saw some amazing things down there . . . a loveseat with a built-in reading lamp (when you sit down the light goes out), guest room furniture with meters on the beds . . . and a plastic couch you could look right through so you know just when to dig for change beneath the cushions.

One particular table caught my eye and when I asked the salesman if it was knotty pine he said "No, we forgot to put ashtrays in here."

Outdoor furniture drew the biggest crowd, and no wonder . . . that's where most people are living these days. I overheard one guy ask the salesman for something nice that wouldn't clash with the park bench.

My brother went along to the show with me. He is no connoisseur of furniture, but he got a big kick out of going through all the drawers.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Big Jim" Folsom, Alabama's Next Governor, Makes Big Hit In Washington; Truman Sees No War With Russia, Seems Bitter Over British Policy In Palestine

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 — It wasn't advertised as such, but last week in the nation's capital came near being "Alabama Week."

Despite all the publicity given the Missouri gang and the Arkansas boys who are close to the President, a number of Alabamans also have moved in on the White House, including capable John Steelman, the former Alabama college professor who is now war reconverter.

On top of this the governor-to-be of Alabama, gangling, six-foot-eight Jim Folson, arrived in Washington last week and was the center of several important social functions, including a dinner at which President Truman discussed everything from war with Rusia to Bob LaFollette.

Governor "Big Jim" also paid a formal call on the President, was lunched by Henry Wallace, and by fellow-Alabamans Justice Hugo Black, John Sparkman and Lister Hill. He made a big hit with everybody.

"This is the first time," remarked one White House attache, "that Alabama has had two liberal senators and a liberal governor—all at once."

The dinner for Governor Folsom was one of the most important President Truman has attended this year. It was given by Postmaster General Bob Hannegan at his home, and at the main table were only four persons: President Truman, Big Jim Folsom, Paul Fitzpatrick of New York, being groomed to take Hannegan's place as national chairman if he resigns, and Bartley Crum, California Republican who was Wendell Willkie's brain-truster and who served on the Anglo-American commission which Truman sent to Palestine.

The Inner Circle Dines

Others at the off-the-record dinner were: Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, Attorney General Tom Clark, Assistant Secretary of War Stuart Symington, Democratic Committee Counsel Ed Prichard, OPA Administrator Paul Porter, Federal Communications Chairman Charley Denny, Senator Hill of Alabama, Senator-elect John Sparkman of Alabama, Secretary of the Senate Leslie Biffle, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ed Foley, White House Naval Aide Clark Clifford, White House Secretary Matt Connelly, Democratic National Treasurer George Killion, Richard Saxey of the Federal Power Commission and Leon Henderson, former Roosevelt brain truster.

The dinner was staged partly because President Truman wanted to show insiders he was still close to Hannegan, despite the way he has snuggled up to Hannegan's rival, John Snyder. Around the White House they are still gossiping about the way Truman's special plane stopped in St. Louis after the Missouri primary to pick up Snyder, leaving Hannegan, also in St. Louis, to take a slow train back to Washington.

However, Truman made it up to Hannegan at last week's dinner, also went out of his way to emphasize that he was supporting Roosevelt's liberal policies. Toward the end of the dinner, several other guests, including Alabama's new Senator Sparkman and Henry Wallace, pulled their chairs up to the President's table. He really let his hair down.

War With Russia?

Asked about war with Russia, Truman said he did not believe there would be any. He said there was a lot of talk about it, but no good reason why we should fight. He was convinced, he said, that the Russians didn't want war and he certainly knew the American people didn't. However, it was most important, he emphasized, that we take a firm attitude with Russia and show them we will not stand for any aggressive tactics. If the Rusians find out we mean business, Truman added, they will come around to our way of thinking.

The President said he thought Jimmie Byrnes is doing a fine job in Paris and indicated that he backed him to the limit. He also said it is important that we operate fair and square with the Russians in order to dispel the suspicion which has existed on both sides. He felt this eventually could be broken down, and no matter how long it took, Truman said, it must be broken down.

The President also took a little poke at some of the career men in the State Department, remarking that they didn't fool him.

Bitter At British

The conversation drifted around to Palestine, and the President appeared rather bitter at the way the British have handled things there. He complained that they did not understand the political problem involved in the United States, also that the British were destroying the moral position of the western powers in relation to Russia.

Others at the table understood him to mean by this that British high-handedness in Palestine made it more difficult for us to protest Russian high-handedness elsewhere.

Secretary Wallace heartily agreed with this and told Truman that the British were following the same unwise and immoral policy in Indonesia.

The President explained that he was concentrating on the question of getting 100,000 Jewish refugees into Palestine. These people have done nothing wrong, he said, other than to be born of a certain religion. They deserved a chance, and he was going to see that they got it.

"We better," remarked New York's Paul Fitzpatrick, "or else we might just as well forget about holding elections in '46 or '48."

La Follette's Defeat

The conversation then drifted round to Senator Bob LaFollette, just defeated in the Wisconsin primary. Truman expressed himself as deeply disturbed over La Follette's loss to the senate, adding that he did not think Bob made a wise choice by joining the Republican Party.

"That's what happens," he said, "to anybody who joins up with Bob Taft."

Truman revealed that he had pleaded with La Follette to join the Democratic Party, and had told him that while the Democratic Party might not always be on the right side, nevertheless it had a pretty good record and deserved the support of all progressives.

The President also paid tribute to former Secretary of Labor Fanny Perkins.

"I would like to see that lady get the recognition she deserves," he observed.

Note—Arkansans take issue with Alabamans that War Reconverter John Steelman is a bona fide Alabaman. They say he was born in Arkansas. Bob Hannegan, who wants no blemishes on Missouri, also emphasizes that John Snyder is from Arkansas and only came to St. Louis recently.

Black's Right To Justice Position Is Questioned

By SAMUEL R. PETTENGILL

Plain people believe we would be better off if Justices Black and Jackson resigned from the Supreme Court.

This justifies a re-examination of the question whether Mr. Black is, or at any time has been, legally a member of the Court.

The point was thoroughly argued by Senator Austin of Vermont at the time Mr. Black was confirmed. The Senate, anxious to do Mr. Roosevelt's bidding, and careless of its own responsibility, paid no attention. The point has again been forcefully argued by Mr. Alexander Lincoln, a leading member of the Boston Bar.

The argument runs as follows: The Constitution provides that no Senator, during the time for which he was elected, shall be appointed to any office created or the emoluments whereof were increased while the Senator held office.

On March 1, 1937, Congress passed a law giving Supreme Court judges who have served 10 years the privilege of retiring from active service upon reaching the age of 70. Pursuant to this statute, Justice Van Devanter retired. Mr. Roosevelt appointed Senator Black to succeed him on August 12, 1937.

Named To Created Office

Up to that time, by statute, the number of justices on the Supreme Court was fixed at nine. The Act of March 1, 1937 increased the number of justices of the Supreme Court, whenever any member went on the inactive list. When Justice Van Devanter retired and his successor was appointed the Supreme Court had ten members instead of nine. This tenth membership was therefore an office created during the time Mr. Black was a member of the United States Senate.

The printed volumes of the Supreme Court Reports officially list the retired justices as members of the Court. In a few instances retired judges have been temporarily reassigned to active service on the federal bench. The fact that total compensation to Supreme Court judges is greater now than before the Act was passed, seems in itself to prove conclusively that a new office has been created.

Not only did the Act of March 1, 1937 create a new office but it increased the emoluments of the office. This is because any justice of the Court upon reaching 70 years of age and having served 10 years can retire from active service and continue to draw his undiminished salary for life. This was not true if he resigned. By reason of the statute this privilege became available to Justice Black as well as to all others.

Some years ago the Attorney General of the United States gave an opinion that the appointment of a Senator to fill an office the emoluments of which had been increased by Congress during the Senator's term, was a nullity despite nomination and confirmation by the Senate.

Serious Cloud On Right To Post

With this serious cloud upon his right to hold office, many men with a delicate sense of honor would not have accepted appointment. Mr. Black accepted.

The Boston lawyer suggests that it is not too late to have the question decided. He says that the disbursing officers of the United States or the Comptroller General should refuse to pay or allow payment of Mr. Black's salary. Mr. Black could then bring suit in the Court of Claims for his salary and thus have the question settled authoritatively, not only with respect to himself but with respect to all future appointments of Senators and Congressmen to the federal bench.

All must agree that the provision in the Constitution is a wise one. It protects the integrity of Congress as an institution by removing the temptation to Senators or Congressmen to create new offices to which they might aspire to be appointed by toadying to the President.

Tension Increases Rather Than Diminishes Throughout The World

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—Tension increases rather than diminishes throughout the world. Peace has been made in a practical sense with former enemy countries—Germany, Italy and Japan—but peace has not been made between the Allies.

Thus, Yugoslavia is supposed to be a country friendly to the United States but her airmen fire on American planes. Time was when the United States did more than send notes of protest when the flag of this country was fired upon. When Japan fired on the U.S.S. Panay in 1937, demands for reparation and apology were made.

Termed Wicked, Inexcusable

The American ambassador to Belgrade, Richard C. Patterson, describes the attack on our airplane as "wicked, inexcusable and deliberate." This is strong language, and in the face of it, the American government cannot afford to let the incident pass with a single protest.

Maybe our government is doing more about the situation in the whole Mediterranean area than appears on the surface. A portion of the American fleet has been sent from the Atlantic, presumably on a good-will cruise through Mediterranean waters. But the task force might also have been sent to indicate that the United States is not disposed to withdraw from Europe.

Yugoslavia is Russia's ally. When Yugoslavia acts up, it is assumed here that her puppet government has received instructions from somewhere in the vicinity of Moscow. More incidents flouting the United States may be expected in Europe. It is one way the Russian bloc may have devised to irritate the United States into withdrawing from Europe. The effect, however, will be the exact opposite.

America's Prestige Weakened

America's prestige and voice in making the peace has been seriously weakened by the withdrawal of American troops and sea forces from Europe. The demands of Congress for the ending of the draft and the pressure to bring the veterans back home have made it difficult for American diplomacy to be as effective as would be the case if a sizable American Army remained in Europe.

It is primarily a large American air force that ought to be trained for European patrol. If the Yugoslavs are shooting down American planes, then all American planes should be escorted by fighter planes of our own. This is not a means of provoking war but of preventing it.

The other day, just before President Truman left for his yachting trip, an important conference was held at the White House. It consisted of the highest officers of the Army, Navy and Air Forces and of the Department of State. Such a conference could hardly be a routine affair. It is one of the few conferences of this kind held since V-J Day. It could mean that the deploying of our military, naval and aerial forces in strategic parts of the globe as a means of backing up our diplomatic policy was under consideration.

Some few weeks ago, when the battleship Missouri was sent to the Mediterranean, officials here said that such voyages must not occasion surprise and that the American Navy must feel free to go anywhere in the world these days.

U. N. Forces Not Organized

Unfortunately, the United Nations has not organized its military forces. The preservation of peace is still a matter for the United States and Great Britain when it comes to air power and sea power. Russia primarily has land power. The best method of patrolling troublesome land areas will be by air power, and adjacent waters will be best protected by sea power, especially aircraft carriers, which can furnish mobile bases.

It is not believed here that a third world war is imminent but that troubles requiring a show of force may recur from time to time in the next few years. Most important of all is a demonstration by the United States that it is not going to be driven back to isolationism by vexatious quarrels with Russia. The more the United States indicates that she did not open up a second front in 1944 and save the Soviets from being crushed by Hitler only to permit Russia's totalitarian government to threaten the peace of Europe, the more likely is Russia to be impressed.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

If you'll stick around for a few hundred words, I'd like to sound off on one of my pet subjects: World's Fairs. At four different fairs, I had a chance to learn something about the do's and don't's of these big shivarees. I'd like to pass it on to the towns who are currently dreaming up expositions. It might conceivably save some city as much as a hundred million dollars.

Billy Rose

With due respect to the city fathers of Miami, Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, New Orleans, Mexico City and London, I'm afraid you're about to make the same mistakes that turned the bonds of the other fairs into so much wallpaper.

If you're going to build a thousand-acre carnival and run it one or two summers, you're lying to your investors if you tell them they're going to get their money back. You can't build and amortize a store in a few months—much less something the size of a city. You're going to be playing with important dough, gentlemen, and you can't afford not to be smart. You've got to do your fair differently than it's been done before—or you'll drown in read ink.

My first suggestion is a simple one. Build it for keeps. The difference in cost between a permanent structure and a beaverboard-and-plaster fruitcake is about 25%. If you believe a fair will help your town in 1948, why won't it do as much for you in 1968, and all the years between? There are several permanent fairs. They're all solvent. For fifty years, the industrial fair at Leipzig, Germany, has magnetized visitors from all over Europe. It might interest you to know that echoes of the gunshots had hardly died away before it was blooming again. My old friend, Elwood Hughes, has run the Canadian National Exposition in Toronto for as long as I can remember, and his ledger is a thing of beauty. In Dallas, Texas, the permanent fair does right well each year. When they blew up a temporary whooptydoo around it in 1936 and '37, they lost a silo full of money. The Fort Worth Centennial that I staged in competition those same years was a screaming success—but it dropped better than half its capital investment! They gave me a silver loving cup that came up to here for getting that much back.

I think anybody who puts up a building at a fair, from General Motors to Hot Dog Charlie, would be glad to stand the extra expense if he knew he had a chance to bail himself out over a period of years. And so, build it for keeps or don't build it at all.

And now for the midway. It must be strange, it must be wonderful, but above all, it must be professional. Just because the mayor's cousin once ran a strawberry festival in a church basement, don't assume he can supervise a series of shows ten million people will pay to see. Remember the movies are peddling two million dollars worth of girls, music and scenery for fifty cents a look. You can no longer get two bits for a quick peek at a flabby bimbo in a hay skirt. I don't believe a single peep show at New York or San Francisco broke even. You've got to top the thunder-making shows Joe Everyman sees at the local picture house, or he'll look at the fireworks and go home with his money in his pocket.

Before I shut up, I'd like to get in a lick about prices. When they heard in Decatur, Illinois, that it cost twelve dollars to dine at New York Fair's French Pavilion, momma and poppa counted the money in the piggy bank and decided to stay home and listen to Bing Crosby. I made more money selling a 12-ounce bottle of pop for a nickel in '39 than I did in '40 selling a 6-ounce bottle for a dime. One of the fair directors wanted me to "give the Aquacade a little class" by charging two dollars to get in. I replied, "All God's chillun got forty cents." We played to nine million people in two summers.

Reading this piece over, I see that it sounds as if I'm asking some town to make me Chairman of the Board. Honestly, I'm not. These big razzle-dazzles take too much out of you, and I wdon't want to end up with a World's Fair twitch. But I love fairs—the sight of them, the noise of them, the smell of them. I don't know where the next one is going to be, but wherever it is, when they turn on the lights and open the ticket booth, this little elephant boy expects to be first in line.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

August 29th Maurice Maeterlinck will celebrate his 84th birthday. I began to read him in my youth, and I read him today. I recall that they used to call him the "Belgian Shakespeare," but he was never that—he was the Belgian Maeterlinck, and there never has been another. But he never wholly belonged to Belgium, nor to France, where so much of his work has been done, but to the world.

Maeterlinck once refused the offer of a membership in the French Academy, largely because he considered his old friend and compatriot, Emile Verhaeren more worthy. And he gave two reasons. First, because he was his elder, and secondly, because he was a very great poet, whereas he thought of himself merely as an industrious and conscientious prose writer. "Anyone," said Maeterlinck, "with patience could write what I have written; nobody else could do what Verhaeren has done. Only a poet is qualified to represent worthily a nation's greatness and heroism."

Thus it was that this famous writer spoke from his heart, humbly and sincerely. But he need not now make any apologies. His fame is world-wide. His mastery, in words, of simple beauty, has inspired millions. There is a mystical charm about all that he has written, and there is a tone of sincerity and deep worth that reflects his great heart. I might say that his heart radiates in all that he has ever written.

He disputes the fact that he is a poet, but only a poet could so express himself. His beautiful prose is poetry. No appreciator of unusual prose can read Maeterlinck without being uplifted in mind and spirit. His place in world literature is secure, and everything that he has written is inspiring reading, stirring the emotions. He has never lowered his human or spiritual values.

And now as he walks calmly, and unafraid, toward the last sunset of his life, he says this: "I have done what I could in life, and if I could not do better, I did not deserve it. In vain have I tried to step beyond what bound me. Despite my years, I am still trying!"

The lesson of Maeterlinck's life is his greatest and most enduring book. It will be read as a key to all that he has ever written—and he has written much.

Russia Asks Majority Rule On Dardanelles

The Russian note to Turkey regarding control of the Dardanelles proposes future regulation of the straits by four powers only, the Soviet Union, Turkey, Bulgaria and Romania. In other words, Russia wants three votes to Turkey's one on the control authority.

Under the Montreux convention governing use of the Dardanelles, Britain, France, Greece, Yugoslavia and Japan also were represented. Turkey would continue this control plan, with the United States replacing Japan.

Not content with demanding a 3 to 1 control authority, Russia also has proposed a "joint" Turkish-Russian defense of the Dardanelles against any aggression coming from the Mediterranean. This is interpreted as meaning establishment of Russian bases on the straits, and actually military control of the Dardanelles by the Soviet Union.

The offer of such unequal partnership is highly disturbing to the Turks, because the only threat to Turkish sovereignty is Russia herself. Considered realistically, the Russian demands need not be taken at face value. In the first place, Russia is a true oriental bargainer, whose asking price always trebles her expectations. Secondly, the war of nerves Russia is waging against smaller nations such as Turkey, Greece and Sweden, is forcing the other countries of the world into a defensive alliance against her, without the formality of diplomatic discussions or mutual aid agreements.

Civilization made the mistake of appeasing one dictator and isn't likely to repeat that mistake in at least the present generation.

Officials of an Oregon town have been spraying parking meters with DDT dust to keep the coin slots clear. The meters have been taken for a buggy ride.

Vet Needs House Or Apartment To Rent

Months may pass before any discernible results come from the recent action of the National Housing Administration to channel a large share of new houses to the rental market, but at least it is a step down the right road if free enterprise is not to be permitted to function in the housing field. As an invitation to prospective builders in the rental field, the housing agency has relaxed the rules on rates under $80 a month, but without raising the top ceiling. No longer will a 20 per cent top differential be maintained between old and new rental housing, so long as the price doesn't exceed that $80.

Such action is noteworthy if for no other reason than that it indicates a perception in high quarters that houses and apartments for rent are the need of the day. For the average veteran or the head of a family in the low-income group this, simply is not the best time to build. To do so in too many cases entails a desperate plunge into building that often is cheaply-constructed, poorly-planned and ridiculously-priced.

Of course, it is a delicate and almost dangerous matter to urge caution and wisdom upon a man who has no place for his children to grow. Too many have known the bitter hopelessness that springs from an endless succession of "no vacancy" signs.

But to escape from this kind of hardship contractors who always have built substantially still are doing so, but the abnormal demand for housing has brought out the jerry-builders, and it is of them that the veteran must beware. Building may be the solution for the man who has the means to make a substantial down payment, who can afford a lot in a suitable location, and who deals with a reputable contractor. But the average veteran needs a house or apartment to rent, and it is toward him that a great part of the building effort should be directed.

If you furnish the boss with good ideas about how to make money, you're likely to get more yourself.

Uncle Sam's New Army Needs More Volunteers

Although the United States Army recruiting program has not yet succeeded in rebuilding the Army entirely on a volunteer basis, it has one record achievement to its credit. Since last fall, nearly 900,000 men have joined the new Regular Army and this is more men than have ever before voluntarily gone into any army, at any time, any place in the world.

Nevertheless the need exists for more recruits and the nation will be the better for it if they are men who go into the service of their own volition and by their own decision. Given enough enlistments, the operation of the Selective Service can be suspended, thus giving the nation an Army made up of those who like the soldier's life and who therefore will become more efficient soldiers.

The service is today far more attractive to youth than it was in the past. Under the new scale the private is given a starting monthly pay base of $75 and if and when he is promoted to first sergeant he receives $165. In addition to that his clothing, food, lodging and medical care are free and he is entitled to generous retirement privileges.

Moreover, the Army today offers educational and trade training facilities to recruits which were not even thought of a few years ago. Wise young men, with a concern for both the present and the future, will do well to consider seriously the opportunities which this branch of the armed service now offers.

Glad To Get Back From Vacation

As the end of August and the traditional vacation season approaches, returning vacationers in the mass are glad to return home and start in where they left off. It's been a lot of fun, but the inconvenience has not been inconsiderable. A reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer, approaching the end of a long vacation trip, finally let go with a description of what he encountered in a large hotel in Yellowstone Park, after driving 1,000 miles from Oregon in 30 hours because he couldn't find overnight accommodations. Telegrams which had been at the hotel for two days were not delivered until he got in touch with the senders. Waitresses threw knives at each other in the dining room. And the hotel wouldn't accept a check in payment of his bill.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

BRAIN INVOLVEMENT IN ENCEPHALITIS

ENCEPHALITIS is a disease of the brain while infantile paralysis involves the spinal cord. But since these two nerve structures are continuous, one may spread into the territory of the other so that combinations occur.

When the virus attacks the brain, encephalitis ensues. To confuse the picture, an allied organism is responsible for polio. Furthermore, the early symptoms of both disorders are somewhat similar so that diagnosis is difficult at this stage. As a rule, the period of doubt is short-lived because in polio the mind remains alert and paralysis is more common.

Epidemics of encephalitis appear from time to time in all parts of the world. In the United States they are more likely to strike in late summer and, altho no age is exempt, adults are more prone to develop the disease.

Thru metriculous study of the causative germs, it was found that several varieties exist. The St. Louis, eastern, and western equine types are observed here; the forms seen in Japan and Russia are slightly different. In the majority of cases, mosquitoes are held responsible. Apparently they become infected from diseased birds (especially chickens and pigeons) and mammals which seemingly are healthy.

The invasion of the brain by these organisms causes the temperature to rise in some instances to a level of 107 defrees F. Fever may last from one to five days before it begins to subside. Meanwhile, the individual suffers with intense headache and perhaps soreness in the back and bones of his limbs. There is stiffness of the neck and tremors of the hands, tongue, and lips. Drowsiness is so marked that the patient appears to be sleeping continuously. During this phase his movements are sluggish and he is slow to respond to questioning. When severe, marked stiffness of the arms and legs, followed by coma, may be expected.

Convalescence is generally prolonged and tremors, nervousness, and weakness may persist for several months. In infants, the only manifestations may be fever and convulsions. With the elderly, the malady is often mistaken for heat prostration or a stroke. In the extremes of life the outcome is usually not good.

These patients demand expert medical care and do best in a hospital where they can be kept under constant supervision. Since none of the modern drugs, such as the sulfa compounds or penicillin, are of value, each unpleasant symptom must be treated as it arises. Vaccines for prevention are available but are seldom used unless epidemics are in the offing. A better plan is to renew our attack on insects.

In the past, this form of encephalitis was referred to as "sleeping sickness" and "encephalitis lethargica." These names were used because they are descriptive of the stuporous condition of the patient. Like influenza, occasional cases are observed in communities but what we dread most are epidemics, as both diseases are potential powder kegs whenever and wherever they occur.

"Big Jim" Folsom, Alabama's Next Governor, Makes Big Hit In Washington; Truman Sees No War With Russia, Seems Bitter Over British Policy In Palestine

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 — It wasn't advertised as such, but last week in the nation's capital came near being "Alabama Week."

Despite all the publicity given the Missouri gang and the Arkansas boys who are close to the President, a number of Alabamans also have moved in on the White House, including capable John Steelman, the former Alabama college professor who is now war reconverter.

On top of this the governor-to-be of Alabama, gangling, six-foot-eight Jim Folson, arrived in Washington last week and was the center of several important social functions, including a dinner at which President Truman discussed everything from war with Rusia to Bob LaFollette.

Governor "Big Jim" also paid a formal call on the President, was lunched by Henry Wallace, and by fellow-Alabamans Justice Hugo Black, John Sparkman and Lister Hill. He made a big hit with everybody.

"This is the first time," remarked one White House attache, "that Alabama has had two liberal senators and a liberal governor—all at once."

The dinner for Governor Folsom was one of the most important President Truman has attended this year. It was given by Postmaster General Bob Hannegan at his home, and at the main table were only four persons: President Truman, Big Jim Folsom, Paul Fitzpatrick of New York, being groomed to take Hannegan's place as national chairman if he resigns, and Bartley Crum, California Republican who was Wendell Willkie's brain-truster and who served on the Anglo-American commission which Truman sent to Palestine.

The Inner Circle Dines

Others at the off-the-record dinner were: Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, Attorney General Tom Clark, Assistant Secretary of War Stuart Symington, Democratic Committee Counsel Ed Prichard, OPA Administrator Paul Porter, Federal Communications Chairman Charley Denny, Senator Hill of Alabama, Senator-elect John Sparkman of Alabama, Secretary of the Senate Leslie Biffle, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ed Foley, White House Naval Aide Clark Clifford, White House Secretary Matt Connelly, Democratic National Treasurer George Killion, Richard Saxey of the Federal Power Commission and Leon Henderson, former Roosevelt brain truster.

The dinner was staged partly because President Truman wanted to show insiders he was still close to Hannegan, despite the way he has snuggled up to Hannegan's rival, John Snyder. Around the White House they are still gossiping about the way Truman's special plane stopped in St. Louis after the Missouri primary to pick up Snyder, leaving Hannegan, also in St. Louis, to take a slow train back to Washington.

However, Truman made it up to Hannegan at last week's dinner, also went out of his way to emphasize that he was supporting Roosevelt's liberal policies. Toward the end of the dinner, several other guests, including Alabama's new Senator Sparkman and Henry Wallace, pulled their chairs up to the President's table. He really let his hair down.

War With Russia?

Asked about war with Russia, Truman said he did not believe there would be any. He said there was a lot of talk about it, but no good reason why we should fight. He was convinced, he said, that the Russians didn't want war and he certainly knew the American people didn't. However, it was most important, he emphasized, that we take a firm attitude with Russia and show them we will not stand for any aggressive tactics. If the Rusians find out we mean business, Truman added, they will come around to our way of thinking.

The President said he thought Jimmie Byrnes is doing a fine job in Paris and indicated that he backed him to the limit. He also said it is important that we operate fair and square with the Russians in order to dispel the suspicion which has existed on both sides. He felt this eventually could be broken down, and no matter how long it took, Truman said, it must be broken down.

The President also took a little poke at some of the career men in the State Department, remarking that they didn't fool him.

Bitter At British

The conversation drifted around to Palestine, and the President appeared rather bitter at the way the British have handled things there. He complained that they did not understand the political problem involved in the United States, also that the British were destroying the moral position of the western powers in relation to Russia.

Others at the table understood him to mean by this that British high-handedness in Palestine made it more difficult for us to protest Russian high-handedness elsewhere.

Secretary Wallace heartily agreed with this and told Truman that the British were following the same unwise and immoral policy in Indonesia.

The President explained that he was concentrating on the question of getting 100,000 Jewish refugees into Palestine. These people have done nothing wrong, he said, other than to be born of a certain religion. They deserved a chance, and he was going to see that they got it.

"We better," remarked New York's Paul Fitzpatrick, "or else we might just as well forget about holding elections in '46 or '48."

La Follette's Defeat

The conversation then drifted round to Senator Bob LaFollette, just defeated in the Wisconsin primary. Truman expressed himself as deeply disturbed over La Follette's loss to the senate, adding that he did not think Bob made a wise choice by joining the Republican Party.

"That's what happens," he said, "to anybody who joins up with Bob Taft."

Truman revealed that he had pleaded with La Follette to join the Democratic Party, and had told him that while the Democratic Party might not always be on the right side, nevertheless it had a pretty good record and deserved the support of all progressives.

The President also paid tribute to former Secretary of Labor Fanny Perkins.

"I would like to see that lady get the recognition she deserves," he observed.

Note—Arkansans take issue with Alabamans that War Reconverter John Steelman is a bona fide Alabaman. They say he was born in Arkansas. Bob Hannegan, who wants no blemishes on Missouri, also emphasizes that John Snyder is from Arkansas and only came to St. Louis recently.

Black's Right To Justice Position Is Questioned

By SAMUEL R. PETTENGILL

Plain people believe we would be better off if Justices Black and Jackson resigned from the Supreme Court.

This justifies a re-examination of the question whether Mr. Black is, or at any time has been, legally a member of the Court.

The point was thoroughly argued by Senator Austin of Vermont at the time Mr. Black was confirmed. The Senate, anxious to do Mr. Roosevelt's bidding, and careless of its own responsibility, paid no attention. The point has again been forcefully argued by Mr. Alexander Lincoln, a leading member of the Boston Bar.

The argument runs as follows: The Constitution provides that no Senator, during the time for which he was elected, shall be appointed to any office created or the emoluments whereof were increased while the Senator held office.

On March 1, 1937, Congress passed a law giving Supreme Court judges who have served 10 years the privilege of retiring from active service upon reaching the age of 70. Pursuant to this statute, Justice Van Devanter retired. Mr. Roosevelt appointed Senator Black to succeed him on August 12, 1937.

Named To Created Office

Up to that time, by statute, the number of justices on the Supreme Court was fixed at nine. The Act of March 1, 1937 increased the number of justices of the Supreme Court, whenever any member went on the inactive list. When Justice Van Devanter retired and his successor was appointed the Supreme Court had ten members instead of nine. This tenth membership was therefore an office created during the time Mr. Black was a member of the United States Senate.

The printed volumes of the Supreme Court Reports officially list the retired justices as members of the Court. In a few instances retired judges have been temporarily reassigned to active service on the federal bench. The fact that total compensation to Supreme Court judges is greater now than before the Act was passed, seems in itself to prove conclusively that a new office has been created.

Not only did the Act of March 1, 1937 create a new office but it increased the emoluments of the office. This is because any justice of the Court upon reaching 70 years of age and having served 10 years can retire from active service and continue to draw his undiminished salary for life. This was not true if he resigned. By reason of the statute this privilege became available to Justice Black as well as to all others.

Some years ago the Attorney General of the United States gave an opinion that the appointment of a Senator to fill an office the emoluments of which had been increased by Congress during the Senator's term, was a nullity despite nomination and confirmation by the Senate.

Serious Cloud On Right To Post

With this serious cloud upon his right to hold office, many men with a delicate sense of honor would not have accepted appointment. Mr. Black accepted.

The Boston lawyer suggests that it is not too late to have the question decided. He says that the disbursing officers of the United States or the Comptroller General should refuse to pay or allow payment of Mr. Black's salary. Mr. Black could then bring suit in the Court of Claims for his salary and thus have the question settled authoritatively, not only with respect to himself but with respect to all future appointments of Senators and Congressmen to the federal bench.

All must agree that the provision in the Constitution is a wise one. It protects the integrity of Congress as an institution by removing the temptation to Senators or Congressmen to create new offices to which they might aspire to be appointed by toadying to the President.

Tension Increases Rather Than Diminishes Throughout The World

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—Tension increases rather than diminishes throughout the world. Peace has been made in a practical sense with former enemy countries—Germany, Italy and Japan—but peace has not been made between the Allies.

Thus, Yugoslavia is supposed to be a country friendly to the United States but her airmen fire on American planes. Time was when the United States did more than send notes of protest when the flag of this country was fired upon. When Japan fired on the U.S.S. Panay in 1937, demands for reparation and apology were made.

Termed Wicked, Inexcusable

The American ambassador to Belgrade, Richard C. Patterson, describes the attack on our airplane as "wicked, inexcusable and deliberate." This is strong language, and in the face of it, the American government cannot afford to let the incident pass with a single protest.

Maybe our government is doing more about the situation in the whole Mediterranean area than appears on the surface. A portion of the American fleet has been sent from the Atlantic, presumably on a good-will cruise through Mediterranean waters. But the task force might also have been sent to indicate that the United States is not disposed to withdraw from Europe.

Yugoslavia is Russia's ally. When Yugoslavia acts up, it is assumed here that her puppet government has received instructions from somewhere in the vicinity of Moscow. More incidents flouting the United States may be expected in Europe. It is one way the Russian bloc may have devised to irritate the United States into withdrawing from Europe. The effect, however, will be the exact opposite.

America's Prestige Weakened

America's prestige and voice in making the peace has been seriously weakened by the withdrawal of American troops and sea forces from Europe. The demands of Congress for the ending of the draft and the pressure to bring the veterans back home have made it difficult for American diplomacy to be as effective as would be the case if a sizable American Army remained in Europe.

It is primarily a large American air force that ought to be trained for European patrol. If the Yugoslavs are shooting down American planes, then all American planes should be escorted by fighter planes of our own. This is not a means of provoking war but of preventing it.

The other day, just before President Truman left for his yachting trip, an important conference was held at the White House. It consisted of the highest officers of the Army, Navy and Air Forces and of the Department of State. Such a conference could hardly be a routine affair. It is one of the few conferences of this kind held since V-J Day. It could mean that the deploying of our military, naval and aerial forces in strategic parts of the globe as a means of backing up our diplomatic policy was under consideration.

Some few weeks ago, when the battleship Missouri was sent to the Mediterranean, officials here said that such voyages must not occasion surprise and that the American Navy must feel free to go anywhere in the world these days.

U. N. Forces Not Organized

Unfortunately, the United Nations has not organized its military forces. The preservation of peace is still a matter for the United States and Great Britain when it comes to air power and sea power. Russia primarily has land power. The best method of patrolling troublesome land areas will be by air power, and adjacent waters will be best protected by sea power, especially aircraft carriers, which can furnish mobile bases.

It is not believed here that a third world war is imminent but that troubles requiring a show of force may recur from time to time in the next few years. Most important of all is a demonstration by the United States that it is not going to be driven back to isolationism by vexatious quarrels with Russia. The more the United States indicates that she did not open up a second front in 1944 and save the Soviets from being crushed by Hitler only to permit Russia's totalitarian government to threaten the peace of Europe, the more likely is Russia to be impressed.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

If you'll stick around for a few hundred words, I'd like to sound off on one of my pet subjects: World's Fairs. At four different fairs, I had a chance to learn something about the do's and don't's of these big shivarees. I'd like to pass it on to the towns who are currently dreaming up expositions. It might conceivably save some city as much as a hundred million dollars.

Billy Rose

With due respect to the city fathers of Miami, Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, New Orleans, Mexico City and London, I'm afraid you're about to make the same mistakes that turned the bonds of the other fairs into so much wallpaper.

If you're going to build a thousand-acre carnival and run it one or two summers, you're lying to your investors if you tell them they're going to get their money back. You can't build and amortize a store in a few months—much less something the size of a city. You're going to be playing with important dough, gentlemen, and you can't afford not to be smart. You've got to do your fair differently than it's been done before—or you'll drown in read ink.

My first suggestion is a simple one. Build it for keeps. The difference in cost between a permanent structure and a beaverboard-and-plaster fruitcake is about 25%. If you believe a fair will help your town in 1948, why won't it do as much for you in 1968, and all the years between? There are several permanent fairs. They're all solvent. For fifty years, the industrial fair at Leipzig, Germany, has magnetized visitors from all over Europe. It might interest you to know that echoes of the gunshots had hardly died away before it was blooming again. My old friend, Elwood Hughes, has run the Canadian National Exposition in Toronto for as long as I can remember, and his ledger is a thing of beauty. In Dallas, Texas, the permanent fair does right well each year. When they blew up a temporary whooptydoo around it in 1936 and '37, they lost a silo full of money. The Fort Worth Centennial that I staged in competition those same years was a screaming success—but it dropped better than half its capital investment! They gave me a silver loving cup that came up to here for getting that much back.

I think anybody who puts up a building at a fair, from General Motors to Hot Dog Charlie, would be glad to stand the extra expense if he knew he had a chance to bail himself out over a period of years. And so, build it for keeps or don't build it at all.

And now for the midway. It must be strange, it must be wonderful, but above all, it must be professional. Just because the mayor's cousin once ran a strawberry festival in a church basement, don't assume he can supervise a series of shows ten million people will pay to see. Remember the movies are peddling two million dollars worth of girls, music and scenery for fifty cents a look. You can no longer get two bits for a quick peek at a flabby bimbo in a hay skirt. I don't believe a single peep show at New York or San Francisco broke even. You've got to top the thunder-making shows Joe Everyman sees at the local picture house, or he'll look at the fireworks and go home with his money in his pocket.

Before I shut up, I'd like to get in a lick about prices. When they heard in Decatur, Illinois, that it cost twelve dollars to dine at New York Fair's French Pavilion, momma and poppa counted the money in the piggy bank and decided to stay home and listen to Bing Crosby. I made more money selling a 12-ounce bottle of pop for a nickel in '39 than I did in '40 selling a 6-ounce bottle for a dime. One of the fair directors wanted me to "give the Aquacade a little class" by charging two dollars to get in. I replied, "All God's chillun got forty cents." We played to nine million people in two summers.

Reading this piece over, I see that it sounds as if I'm asking some town to make me Chairman of the Board. Honestly, I'm not. These big razzle-dazzles take too much out of you, and I wdon't want to end up with a World's Fair twitch. But I love fairs—the sight of them, the noise of them, the smell of them. I don't know where the next one is going to be, but wherever it is, when they turn on the lights and open the ticket booth, this little elephant boy expects to be first in line.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

August 29th Maurice Maeterlinck will celebrate his 84th birthday. I began to read him in my youth, and I read him today. I recall that they used to call him the "Belgian Shakespeare," but he was never that—he was the Belgian Maeterlinck, and there never has been another. But he never wholly belonged to Belgium, nor to France, where so much of his work has been done, but to the world.

Maeterlinck once refused the offer of a membership in the French Academy, largely because he considered his old friend and compatriot, Emile Verhaeren more worthy. And he gave two reasons. First, because he was his elder, and secondly, because he was a very great poet, whereas he thought of himself merely as an industrious and conscientious prose writer. "Anyone," said Maeterlinck, "with patience could write what I have written; nobody else could do what Verhaeren has done. Only a poet is qualified to represent worthily a nation's greatness and heroism."

Thus it was that this famous writer spoke from his heart, humbly and sincerely. But he need not now make any apologies. His fame is world-wide. His mastery, in words, of simple beauty, has inspired millions. There is a mystical charm about all that he has written, and there is a tone of sincerity and deep worth that reflects his great heart. I might say that his heart radiates in all that he has ever written.

He disputes the fact that he is a poet, but only a poet could so express himself. His beautiful prose is poetry. No appreciator of unusual prose can read Maeterlinck without being uplifted in mind and spirit. His place in world literature is secure, and everything that he has written is inspiring reading, stirring the emotions. He has never lowered his human or spiritual values.

And now as he walks calmly, and unafraid, toward the last sunset of his life, he says this: "I have done what I could in life, and if I could not do better, I did not deserve it. In vain have I tried to step beyond what bound me. Despite my years, I am still trying!"

The lesson of Maeterlinck's life is his greatest and most enduring book. It will be read as a key to all that he has ever written—and he has written much.

Pernicious Anemia Cannot Be Cured

• Don't be misled by the quacks and charlatans who claim to cure pernicious anemia. The most contemptible person in the world is the one who will sacrifice public health, comfort, and happiness for his own financial gain. A patient having pernicious anemia is deficient in red blood cells. New red blood cells can be developed by a process with which your physician is thoroughly familiar. The process is constant and does not effect a cure. It does, however, enable the patient to complete a normal span of life. Always consult your physician in times of illness. Tests Find B Vitamins Needed In Air Sickness

Persons who get air sick in airplane flights, or who grow sick at high mountain altitudes may need extra riboflavin, one of the B vitamins, according to recent tests at the California Experiment Station, Miss Maude A. Bean reports. Riboflavin is found in milk as well as in several other foods.

Riboflavin is need by the body to burn starches and sugars, it is explained. In high altitudes with low atmospheric pressure, the human body must burn carbohydrates faster than at lower elevations, and so needs extra supplies of riboflavin. If a person does not eat enough robiflavin, air sickness is the result.

Tests Find B Vitamins Needed In Air Sickness

Persons who get air sick in airplane flights, or who grow sick at high mountain altitudes may need extra riboflavin, one of the B vitamins, according to recent tests at the California Experiment Station, Miss Maude A. Bean reports. Riboflavin is found in milk as well as in several other foods.

Riboflavin is need by the body to burn starches and sugars, it is explained. In high altitudes with low atmospheric pressure, the human body must burn carbohydrates faster than at lower elevations, and so needs extra supplies of riboflavin. If a person does not eat enough robiflavin, air sickness is the result.

LISTEN WORLD

By ELSIE ROBINSON
(Registered U.S. Patent Office)

SO YOU'RE LONELY

So you're lonely?

Other people seem to have so many friends They are always coming and going. Their lives are so much more colorful than yours. You feel so left out—so forgotten.

And you don't know why. You are courteous, nicely dressed. You always do the right thing. And yet you feel as if you don't belong. And it's eating your heart out with loneliness.

Did it ever occur to you that the fault might lie in yourself? Yes, I know you mean well and you do the proper thing. But are you living the proper thing? Or are you living in such a way that you're putting yourself apart from the rest of the world?

Once Kahlil Gibran wrote of loneliness. Kahlil Gibran was a great mystic. He spent his life studying life—trying to find out what made people click. And this is what he said about loneliness.

"A lady told me of her loneliness. "I answered:

"Is it not because you have cut yourself off from everyone else?

"Firstly, you are white; and you feel yourself superior to all colored people. That separates you from three fourths of the world.

"Secondly, you consider your nation to be above the other white nations; thus dividing yourself from nine tenths of the remainder.

"Then you are a lady and cannot mix with the lower classes.

"And again your political and religious views are such that you do not wish to associate with fools or bigots.

"And of the people nearest to you, some are selfish or careless in their habits, or difficult to do anything with;

"While the rest are occupied in affairs.

"And you cannot be bothered with affairs."

Does that hit you in some sensitive spot? I know it hits me. I know that I am often very lonely and that it is largely my own fault. For there are people all around me who would help me out of my loneliness if I would let them.

There's no sense in being picky and choosey about people and then complaining you're lonely. We all need to mingle with people, to mix with all kinds of people whether we approve of certain traits or not.

People are like the earth. The earth is the greatest material mystery in our lives. The earth contains everything that has ever happened on this globe—good things and bad things. It contains yesterday, today and tomorrow Yet, through the long centuries, it has so blended these ingredients that it constantly nourishes new life.

Every spring the same old miracle happens Each spring the earth renews all life. It turns death into birth. It feeds the trees and plants which are already growing and it quickens the seeds which have not yet known life

People are like the earth. They are the source of life. People are like the earth in many ways. They are composed of good things and bad things, silly things and wise things Yet out of their countless ingredients they form a nutritious case.

We all must take our roots—or be lonely. If you or I are lonely, it's our own damn fault. Loneliness is not a natural affliction. it is an outrage of nature's laws. We should not sympathize with lonely people—we should look upon them with horror as we would look upon a vicious fungus growth which has no healthy roots.

Lonely people get that way because they refuse to strike roots in the rest of humanity.

How long would a rose last if it refused to send roots into the soil? Not very long. Yet we foolish human being insist on living like that blighted rose. We will not make ourselves part of the nourishment which was provided for us.

We avoid one woman because she seems foolish or another man because he is vulgar . . . or another who drinks or plays the races . . or another because he seems stupid. And by the time we've finished picking and choosing we're lonelier than Robinson Crusoe.

People are like dirt. You don't pick dirt over and select one grain and discard the rest. You get right down into it and plant your seeds and you don't give a hoot if your hands and face become dirty in the process.

You must do the same with people—if you wish to avoid loneliness

P. S. I hope I remember this the next time I'm indulging in a good wallow of self pity because I'm lonely.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Man Who Boasts About His Other Conquests Is Rapidly Talking Girl Out Of Marrying Him

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love And Marriage

Here's a man who's so much in love with himself—or perhaps so unsure of himself—that he's rapidly talking his girl out of the idea of marrying him.

If he doesn't look out, he's going to find himself that oddity known as a perennial bachelor, who loves to boast about what a dashing figure he cut with the ladies when he was a young fellow, but who can't back up those boasts by producing the adoring wife who couldn't resist his charms.

Here's what his fiancee says about him:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a girl 20 years old, and in a few weeks I am going to marry a man who is 10 years my senior.

"He tells me he loves me very much, although when we go out together he talks about the girls he dated while with the army overseas. He also talks a great deal about a girl to whom he was once engaged, although she broke their engagement and married someone else.

"I think I love him, but when he talks like that I begin to wonder. I am getting so that I want to go out with other fellows, and so many people ask me if I am ready for marriage that now I am not sure.

"What I want to know is, should I talk this matter over with the man I am to marry or should I go through with our plans of marriage? How can I find out if I really do love him enough to marry him? We have all the plans for our marriage made, and the date set for the wedding. I don't know what to do.

"BEWILDERED."

Any man who boasts about the girls he has attracted, or any girl who likes to give other people the impression that she practically has to fight off her admirers, is almost invariably bolstering an inferiority complex. The chances are that neither is as popular with the opposite sex as he or she would like to be, so both indulge in a little wishful thinking out loud, trying to make themselves appear to others as they secretly wish they really were.

That's what's probably the matter with your fiance, "Bewildered." He wants you to think that you've made an enviable match; that you're a very lucky girl to get a man who, in becoming your husband, is leaving a trail of broken hearts behind him. But actually, he's a little scared, because he knows he's really no great shakes of a fellow, and he hates to have you find it out. He's afraid you might discover you weren't getting such a prize package as you thought you were, and that you might want to back out of your bargain.

So why don't you do just as you suggest—talk it over with him and tell him just how it makes you feel when he recounts his past romances? Tell him that you fell in love with himself, not with any imaginary fairy prince, and that you get a little bored hearing about the girls he used to know, so bored that you almost wonder, sometimes, if you can bear to go on listening to his stories. And you might suggest that if his past adventures interest him so much more than the new adventure of married life with you, perhaps it would be better if you both waited a while before getting married, to avoid making any mistake. That ought to make him stop to think, and change his ways.

And if it doesn't, then I'm afraid you're going to have to choose whether to call the whole thing off right now, or whether you want to spend your married life hearing what a fine fellow you got for a husband.

it's nice to be economical without economizing!

cooking with Gas costs less than $1.00 a month

Ever watch a housewife as she uses her Gas Range? Nine chances out of ten, when she removes the food from the range, she won't hurry to turn off the oven or surface burner. Frequently the Gas will burn long after the cooking has been finished.

And yet—in spite of this common practice—the average family in this area does all its cooking with Gas for a cost of less than $1.00 a month! And this includes, of course, not just the customary three meals a day, but all the many cooking extras—the parties and "in-between" snacks which most families enjoy.

The unnecessary use of Gas is not encouraged—but Gas does cost so little that it can be used generously without fear of excessive expense.

If you're one of the great majority of housewives in this area who cook with Gas, think of your own cooking practices—then you'll realize, perhaps more clearly than ever before, how truly economical it is. And you'll find it reassuring to know that you can be economical without economizing—when you cook with Gas, the fuel that's so dependable, so clean, so convenient to use.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Man Who Boasts About His Other Conquests Is Rapidly Talking Girl Out Of Marrying Him

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love And Marriage

Here's a man who's so much in love with himself—or perhaps so unsure of himself—that he's rapidly talking his girl out of the idea of marrying him.

If he doesn't look out, he's going to find himself that oddity known as a perennial bachelor, who loves to boast about what a dashing figure he cut with the ladies when he was a young fellow, but who can't back up those boasts by producing the adoring wife who couldn't resist his charms.

Here's what his fiancee says about him:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a girl 20 years old, and in a few weeks I am going to marry a man who is 10 years my senior.

"He tells me he loves me very much, although when we go out together he talks about the girls he dated while with the army overseas. He also talks a great deal about a girl to whom he was once engaged, although she broke their engagement and married someone else.

"I think I love him, but when he talks like that I begin to wonder. I am getting so that I want to go out with other fellows, and so many people ask me if I am ready for marriage that now I am not sure.

"What I want to know is, should I talk this matter over with the man I am to marry or should I go through with our plans of marriage? How can I find out if I really do love him enough to marry him? We have all the plans for our marriage made, and the date set for the wedding. I don't know what to do.

"BEWILDERED."

Any man who boasts about the girls he has attracted, or any girl who likes to give other people the impression that she practically has to fight off her admirers, is almost invariably bolstering an inferiority complex. The chances are that neither is as popular with the opposite sex as he or she would like to be, so both indulge in a little wishful thinking out loud, trying to make themselves appear to others as they secretly wish they really were.

That's what's probably the matter with your fiance, "Bewildered." He's afraid you might discover you weren't getting such a prize package as you thought you were, and that you might want to back out of your bargain.

B&O Brotherhoods Open Contract Discussions

Changes in their contract and working conditions as related to living costs are the topics under discussion at the four day committee meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which is being held this week. The session opened yesterday at the All Ghan City Club, South Centre street.

According to Harry A. Porch, general chairman of the B.L.F. and E., Cumberland, thousands of B&O workers are represented by both brotherhoods.

The following members of the B.L.F. and E. group are attending the session: L. W. Roper, Toledo, Ohio, secretary-treasurer; H. A. Curtis, Weston, W. Va., senior vice chairman; H. F. Livingston, Connellsville, Pa., junior vice chairman; L. B. Maxwell, Erlanger, Ky.; G. Richards, Baltimore; H. B. Smith, Lima, Ohio; C. Roenbaugh, Lorain, Ohio.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is represented by B. F. Davisson, Grafton, W Va., general chairman; John Staub, Brunswick; James McBrien, Pittsburgh; Thomas Colson, Baltimore and Robert Pollen, Chillecothe, Ohio.

During the drouth of several years ago, farm soil from the western dust bowl area was carried to distances of 2000 miles.

WASHINGTON Whirl

By AUSTINE CASSINI

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—For one of the few times in the history of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, 45 midshipmen stayed out after hours and got off scot-free!!

Not only stayed out . . . but with girls!

One of them an admiral's daughter, and the others 20 of her friends.

The boys had supper, were entertained, and even learned how to dance an American step they had never heard of, with the daughter of Adm. Stuart Ingersoll (assistant superintendent of the Academy), 20 of her comely friends and some officers and midshipmen of the Royal Danish Navy . . .

Austine Cassini

All aboard the training cruiser Holger Danske which was bought by the Danes from the British government and is now making a world cruise.

The Danish middies, who introduced the new dance, insisted the name of this United States step they were showing to the United States middies was the "Okey-Dokey."

"But everybody's doing it in Copenhagen and they think it's American. It must be American," one young Dane insisted feverishly.

The next day at a big, bang-up reception given by the charge d'affaires and Mme. Bang-Jensen, the Danish middies saw Washington and met more American girls.

United State Maritime Service Adm. Tilfair Knight at the party watched a group of Danish boys talking to an American girl.

"They take to each other like, er—uh . . -" he laughed, "like boys to girls!"

Danish Count Adam Moltke Embassy secretary, put his two bits in about the meeting not long ago between Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark and a group of journalists in London.

He was to escort them to the International Journalists conference back in Copenhagen . . . After a comfortable dinner at Ambassadors Hotel in London, everyone was urged to give a toast in his native tongue.

Milton Murray, president of the American Newspaper Guild and United States delegate to the conference, arose when his turn came, and with his glass held high intoned:

"Gentlemen, I give you a good old American toast—Skol!"

New Chinese ambassador, Dr. Wellington Koo, was holding his first press conference in the garden of the embassy at Twin Oaks when—Crash!

Down came a heavy bough, barely missing the newsreel cameras, grazing a prominent Washington correspondent on his nose for news!

All eyes shot upward.

All that could be seen was a squirrel's fuzzy tail as he scampered back up the tree.

Sylvester, the White House squirrel, of course! He most likely had wanderlust last week . . . Leaving his comfortable home in Lafayette park, just opposite the White House, he straightened his spats adjusted his small white gloves, and attended the press conference . . . In fact, he almost broke it up!

Sylvester had sized up the new envoy, an alert-looking, mustached, slightly graying man, neatly dressed in a white suit and a maroon-dotted bow tie, gray socks, brown shoes.

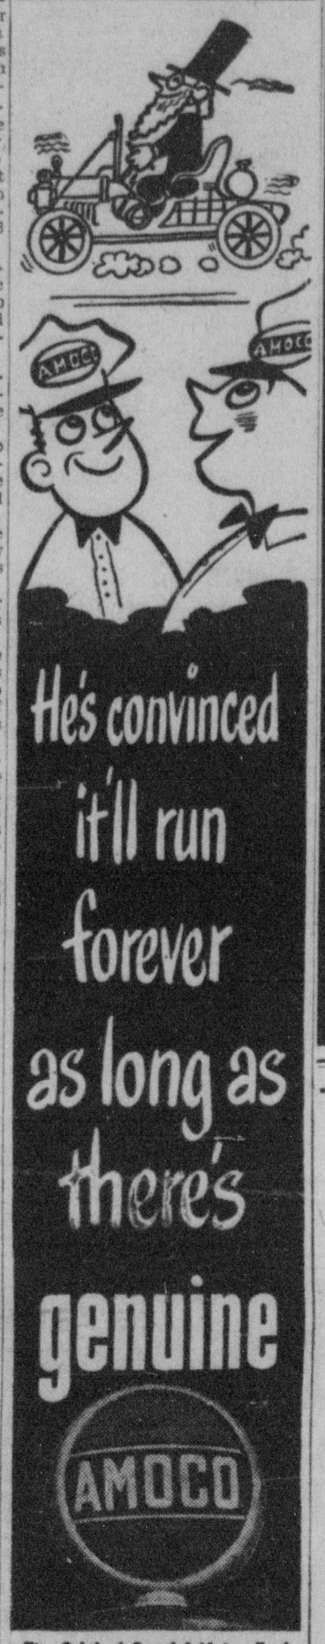

Gallus-snappin' Gene Talmadge's victory over smart young lawyer Jerry Carmichael in the Georgia primary elections for governor can be traced, oddly enough to the United States Supreme court.

Anyway, that is according to one of those Washington wise-shots.

Early last June the Supreme Court handed down a decision which Gene Talmadge figured would suit him to a "T" as a campaign issue. That single issue carried him to victory. In a suit brought by a Virginia Negress against a Virginia bus company, the high court declared Jim Crow laws illegal.

"Nobody has any right to tell us what to do in Georgia!" shouted Talmadge. He knew that in Georgia, which has thousands of underprivileged backward whites, he had a good case. Talmadge out-Bilboed Bilbo. Result:—the governor's mansion.

The person who talks about others in no complimentary terms may be sure that others will talk about him or her, as the case may be.

McCallum Held For Abortion On Young Woman

Veterinarian Released On $3,000 Bond After Patient Goes To Hospital

Dr. Frank B. McCallum, 56, veterinarian, 144 North Mechanic street, was arraigned in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday morning on charges of an illegal abortion and released on $3,000 bond for action of the October term of Grand Jury.

Dr. McCallum was arrested on a state warrant Monday night sworn out by Deputy Sheriff Edward R. Muir, following questioning of a young woman in Memorial hospital, by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris. The woman, identified by authorities as Mrs. Dorothy Marie Glass, 23, Barrelville was admitted to the hospital Monday evening and county authorities were notified of her condition, hospital officials said.

The alleged abortion took place July 23 at the veterinarian's office, police asserted. The warrant was issued after the Glass woman told her story to the State's Attorney, police said.

Also held on $500 bond as a witness in the case is Robert Ernest Miller, 21 Frederick street, who county officials said took the young woman to Dr. McCallum's office. Morris Baron was counsel for Miller yesterday morning at the hearing.

McCallum, who was once city humane officer, operates a pet shop on North Mechanic street, which was recently moved from North Centre street. He came here about 15 years ago and during World War I was in the Canadian Army, as a veterinarian, making trips from Canada to England to care for horses in the cavalry and artillery units.

Police said he is estranged from his wife and that she has been employed in the British Embassy in Washington.

The woman's husband, Virgil Paul Glass, filed suit August 8 in Circuit Court to obtain a divorce and it was indicated that she would not contest the action, docketed by his counsel, Urner G. Carl. It was alleged that the couple had been estranged since last year.

Utah's run-off primary drew only a light turn-out of voters ,with only one statewide contest as a drawing card.

In all, New York voters chose candidates for 45 House seats, more than a tenth of the House membership of 435, but there were only 21 contests. Twelve incumbents, eight of them Republicans, were engaged in these.

The state will select nominees for governor and senator in conventions Sept. 3 and 4.

Vishinsky had attempted first to force the issue by putting the memorandum to an immediate vote and getting the results into the record. He was opposed by Canada, France and Belgium. It was understood the United States also was in opposition, although it was not expressed.

Adopt Compromise

The Soviet delegate said, however, he was prepared to accept a Netherlands proposal to insert in the preamble a tribute to the Italian Partisans' part in the downfall of fascism.

The compromise resolution which finally was adopted came about after Poland urged a motion that the committee note its receipt of the Italian proposals "to which certain delegates objected" and "decided therefore that the note was disposed of." France proposed a compromise which would have noted that none of the suggestions in the memorandum was taken up by any delegation "in the form which they were presented as amendments."

Vishinsky opposed the French motion, preferring a frank statement that the proposals found no support in the commission, but when Poland continued to insist on a vote on her resolution, he supported a motion for adjournment.

"It's time to go to dinner," he said. "When hunger dictates, reason must abide."

Girl Wed At 16 Asks Annulment Of Marriage

Wife Says Husband Gave Her Age As 18 When Obtaining License

Declaring that she was married January 14 this year at the age of 16, Laura Betty Klink, by her mother and next friend, Laura M. Brown, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday for annulment of her marriage to Harold E. Klink, Maryland avenue.

The bill of complaint, filed by her attorney, Harold E. Naughton, said Klink obtained the marriage license from the clerk of court on the false statement that she was 18. The bill also declared that the consent of her parents was not secured.

Asserting that she was induced into the marriage by "false and fraudulent promises and statements" by the defendant, the complainant said she immediately separated from him on learning that the promises were false.

Suit for an absolute divorce from Lloyd F. Cozad, Race street, was filed by Mrs. Mildred C. Cozad, through her attorney, Naughton, on grounds of desertion. She said they were married February 9, 1929, and have one child, a girl, whose custody she seeks.

Mrs. Eleanor H. Petenbrink filed suit for an absolute divorce from William H. Petenbrink, Altamont terrace, on a charge of constructive abandonment.

Through her attorney, Morgan C. Harris, Mrs. Petenbrink said her husband failed to provide the necessities of life and that she was compelled to leave him. She said they were married August 17, 1939, at Winchester, Va.

Suit for an absolute divorce from John I. Robinette was filed by Mrs. Georgia M. Robinette on grounds of desertion. Her attorney, Gorman E. Getty, said they were married August 27, 1943, and lived together until November 1, 1944. They have a daughter whose custody the mother asks. Naughton is attorney for the husband.

An absolute divorce has been granted Mrs. Wilhelmina M. Brode, 23, 601 North Mechanic street, from Gerald F. Brode, in a decree signed by Associate Judge Walter C. Capper. Brode is given the custody of a minor daughter. Harris represented Mrs. Brode, who charged desertion.

Damage estimated at $50 resulted yesterday from a truck-car crash on Preston street yesterday at 1 p. m. James Beal, 28, Baltimore, driver of the truck, told authorities the vehicle he was driving struck a 1938 Buick sedan parked in a "no parking" zone. Beal did not learn the owner's name since he said the car was gone by the time he parked his truck.

action of the Price Decontrol Board will bring greater inflation to the American people."

In this first exercise of its sweeping powers, the three-man board voted unanimously.

On the items ordered back under controls, new ceilings to be determined by OPA and the Agriculture Department will become effective Friday.

The board ordered revival of the livestock subsidy payments which were in effect last June 29.

This apparently will make it possible for OPA Administrator Paul Porter to carry out his plan to roll back retail meat prices generally to the levels of June 30, when the price controls expired.

Milk, butter, cheese, ice cream and all other dairy food and feed products will remain free of ceilings.

The decontrolled grains are wheat, rye, corn, oats, feed oats, mixed feed oats, barley and grain sorghums as well as any livestock or poultry feed made entirely from any one or more of the basic grains.

The board directed re-establishment of price ceilings on flaxseed and by-product grain feeds.

In the case of each item on which ceilings were ordered restored, the board found that:

1. Prices have risen unreasonably above June 30 ceilings, plus any subsidy which was being paid them.

2. Supply is short.

3. Price control is "practicable, enforceable and in the public interest."

These were the yardsticks set by Congress.

Rules Against Grain Control

In ruling against re-establishment of ceilings on most grains, the board said it had not found that recontrol would be in the public interest.

Supply of grains, the board reported "will be adequate when crops are harvested to meet anticipated demand."

The board further declared that grain price trends are downward and are expected to level off at ceiling levels."

The board found "some instances" in which prices of milk and milk products have exceeded the June 30 ceilings, plus the subsidy.

"In most of these cases, the excess has been small," the board's statement added. "In some cases the excess was unreasonable."

The board announced it intends to watch prices of milk and milk products, and that it has "arranged to receive additional reports on price developments since June 30."

When this information has been received, the board will reconsider its decision to allow dairy products to remain ceiling-free "if evidence appears that price increases since June 30 are unreasonable."

Explaining its decision to restore meat ceilings, the board said that price increases since June 30 had ranged in the case of livestock from 20 to 50 per cent, and in the case of wholesale meat prices, from 35 to 80 per cent.

"Corresponding increases have been reported in the case of retail meat prices," the statement noted.

Saying that part of these increases were due to lapse of subsidies, the board said:

"For the most part prices reported were beyond question unreasonably above ceilings plus subsidies."

The supply of meat "has been and will continue to be short in relation to demand at reasonable prices," the board declared.

Many statements were received, the board continued, regarding enforceability and practicability of meat price controls. Saying that these statements had "disclosed the failures that have occurred in the past x x x," the board added:

"Nevertheless, it appears that the government has at hand adequate techniques to enforce these regulations, including the overriding ceilings on cattle."

With respect to subsidies on livestock and meat, the board directed that on or before next Jan. 10 subsidies must be reduced by 50 per cent.

Morgan, 52, has been described by Winston Churchill as "primarily responsible for our invasion plans." A gunnery expert, he became chief of staff to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in March, 1943, and later was knighted for his services.

Railroads Will Get Responsibility Of Smoke Control

Elimination of Section 5 from the proposed smoke control ordinance was decided upon at a conference of city officials yetserday in the mayor's office. The section provided for fining railroad firemen $100 if they failed to make proper use of their fire jets.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mayor Thomas S. Post said members of the council were agreed that Section 5 should be eliminated with the group favoring making the railroads liable for smoke violations, rather than individual firemen. Therefore, the enforcement of the new ordinance would be a matter of company policy rather than an individual matter.

Section 5 of the proposed ordinance stated "and be it further ordained that any fireman of a locomotive who shall, after the passage of the ordinance, create, suffer or allow dense smoke from the locomotive to the extent hereinbefore designated as being in violation of this ordinance, or who shall fail to use or properly operate the over fire jets upon a locomotive where the same have been installed, shall be liable to immediate arrest and upon conviction of a violation of this ordinance, such a fireman shall be subjected to a penalty of $100 and shall be confined to the city jail until such penalty is paid, but for not more than 30 days."

Prepared By Heskett

The elimination of Section 5 from the ordinance was the only change made in the measure prepared by City Solicitor Charles Z. Heskett. Heskett, who has been working on the anti-smoke measure for several years in conjunction with Max A. Shaffer, Celanese combustion engineer, said the elimination of the clause would be satisfactory, Mayor Post said.

Accordingly, a motion will be made to amend the ordinance although Mayor Post said further action may not be taken until the first week in September.

"The elimination of the clause will not alter the enforcement of the final measure, but will merely make the railroads responsible for violations rather than individual firemen," Mayor Post said.

President Truman Is Going To Bermuda

WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN IN THE ATLANTIC, Aug. 20 (AP)—President Truman, seeking warmth and sunshine, headed tonight for Bermuda.

The President dropped plans to cruise up the Maine coast on his yacht, the Williamsburg, after running into rains and chill air. Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross radio-telephoned reporters on the navy vessel Weiss several hours after the party had turned southward that the Williamsburg will dock at Bermuda Thursday afternoon.

Ross did not know how long the presidential yacht would stay at Bermuda but indicated that Mr. Truman might go ashore there.

The Williamsburg will take on food, fuel and water at Bermuda, Ross said, and the remainder of the cruise, slated to last until Labor Day, "is still wide open," with no other fixed destinations yet planned.

The decision to turn southward was announced earlier.

Veterinarian Released On $3,000 Bond After Patient Goes To Hospital

Dr. Frank B. McCallum, 56, veterinarian, 144 North Mechanic street, was arraigned in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday morning on charges of an illegal abortion and released on $3,000 bond for action of the October term of Grand Jury.

Dr. McCallum was arrested on a state warrant Monday night sworn out by Deputy Sheriff Edward R. Muir, following questioning of a young woman in Memorial hospital, by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris. The woman, identified by authorities as Mrs. Dorothy Marie Glass, 23, Barrelville was admitted to the hospital Monday evening and county authorities were notified of her condition, hospital officials said.

The alleged abortion took place July 23 at the veterinarian's office, police asserted. The warrant was issued after the Glass woman told her story to the State's Attorney, police said.

Also held on $500 bond as a witness in the case is Robert Ernest Miller, 21 Frederick street, who county officials said took the young woman to Dr. McCallum's office. Morris Baron was counsel for Miller yesterday morning at the hearing.

McCallum, who was once city humane officer, operates a pet shop on North Mechanic street, which was recently moved from North Centre street. He came here about 15 years ago and during World War I was in the Canadian Army, as a veterinarian, making trips from Canada to England to care for horses in the cavalry and artillery units.

Police said he is estranged from his wife and that she has been employed in the British Embassy in Washington.

The woman's husband, Virgil Paul Glass, filed suit August 8 in Circuit Court to obtain a divorce and it was indicated that she would not contest the action, docketed by his counsel, Urner G. Carl. It was alleged that the couple had been estranged since last year.

Railroads Will Get Responsibility Of Smoke Control

Elimination of Section 5 from the proposed smoke control ordinance was decided upon at a conference of city officials yetserday in the mayor's office. The section provided for fining railroad firemen $100 if they failed to make proper use of their fire jets.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mayor Thomas S. Post said members of the council were agreed that Section 5 should be eliminated with the group favoring making the railroads liable for smoke violations, rather than individual firemen. Therefore, the enforcement of the new ordinance would be a matter of company policy rather than an individual matter.

Section 5 of the proposed ordinance stated "and be it further ordained that any fireman of a locomotive who shall, after the passage of the ordinance, create, suffer or allow dense smoke from the locomotive to the extent hereinbefore designated as being in violation of this ordinance, or who shall fail to use or properly operate the over fire jets upon a locomotive where the same have been installed, shall be liable to immediate arrest and upon conviction of a violation of this ordinance, such a fireman shall be subjected to a penalty of $100 and shall be confined to the city jail until such penalty is paid, but for not more than 30 days."

Prepared By Heskett

The elimination of Section 5 from the ordinance was the only change made in the measure prepared by City Solicitor Charles Z. Heskett. Heskett, who has been working on the anti-smoke measure for several years in conjunction with Max A. Shaffer, Celanese combustion engineer, said the elimination of the clause would be satisfactory, Mayor Post said.

Accordingly, a motion will be made to amend the ordinance although Mayor Post said further action may not be taken until the first week in September.

"The elimination of the clause will not alter the enforcement of the final measure, but will merely make the railroads responsible for violations rather than individual firemen," Mayor Post said.

Two Young Prisoners Escape From Jail

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 20 (AP)—How Robert Nothey, 21, and John C. Barber, 18, Anne Arundel County jail prisoners, made a getaway remained a mystery tonight after the matter was mulled over at a county commissioners' meeting.

Nothey was under indictment on charges of raping a negro woman, and Barber awaited grand jury action on an automobile theft charge.

HOLLYWOOD

By DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20—First official act by Robert Cummings, now that he has broken off business relations with his brother and manager, Oscar, is the formation—along with Philip Yordan and Eugene Frenke—of a new corporation to be called United World Productions. The first picture on the new set up is an original by Yordan titled "Bad Guy", starring Bob, of course. It might be added that the services of Cummings and Yordan are not exclusive to the new corporation, but all outside deals must clear through it.

Interesting that several of the new pictures planned will carry Bob as the director-producer as well as star and Yordan will produce as well as write. Several original stories by Yordan are listed as assets—but I bet his big hit, "Anna Lucasta," isn't among them.

When "The Hit Parade", 1947 version rolls at Republic, Eddie Albert and the but beautiful Constance Moore have the starring roles. This marks Eddie's second for this company, his first, "Rendezvous With Annie" doing him no harm at all. Trade paper reviews were plenty flattering to Albert, Allan Dwan and the writers, Mary Loos and Richard Sale. In addition to Eddie and Connie, "Hit Parade" unveils Joan Edwards, of the radio show by the same name, making her movie debut. Gil Lamb's back as the comedy lead with Roy Rogers spotted in for a song number along with his horse—whinnying, no doubt, the hit song of the year.

Next to Marilyn Maxwell's "dates", I get more stories about Norma Shearer's comeback picture than any other Hollywood news items. Rumored for almost everything from "Arch of Triumph" to "Uncle Tom's Cabin", Norma has just continued to suntan herself at her beach home through most of them.

But she does have—and is now definitely interested in—the script of "Love From a Stranger", the Frank Vosper stage play of 10 or 12 years ago which Eagle-Lion will produce. It's a sophisticated bluebeard theme about a much-marrying gent's last wife and the way she trims those bluebeard whiskers.

Letter from Louella:

Dorothy, have you met Lilli Palmer, the wife of Rex Harrison, the "King of Siam"? I am going to do a Sunday story with her for the pictorial review. She came to see me at my invitation for a chat. You'll like her. She not only has a fine mind, but she is one of those rare people who can make a sophisticated remark and look like a baby while saying it. She is about five feet, has big brown eyes, and tawny chestnut hair. I don't wonder Milton Sperling has nabbed her for two more pictures, but she tells me she and Rex (you will note I am giving Rex second billing in this item) are going to England in April. They have just bought a home here and as much as they love their native land, they are entranced with Hollywood. She tells me she has a 60-day clause in her contract whereby she can be free to go to Europe at any time her husband goes. They will make a picture in England, undoubtedly together since she has appeared opposite him in many of his British made pictures.

Van Johnson and I (continues Lop) were almost late to a dinner party the other night because we sat and chinned so long over a cup of tea at my home before starting. Van has the enthusiasm of a movie fan when he talks about other actors. Spencer Tracy is his particular idol—he's rabid where Spenc is concerned—and he told me that "Sea of Grass" is the best picture Tracy has ever made. Funny thing about Van—he'll talk about everybody's pictures but his own and believe me, that's something new in Hollywood, son.

Hollywood in shorts: The most attractive reason Carleton Alsop is improving so rapidly since his serious operation, is Sylvia Sidney. Sylvia's ex, Luther Adler, isn't having much romantic luck. His long time romance with model Kay Norton, has chilled. . . . David Selznick has signed Ben Hecht to write the screenplay of "The Scarlet Lily", the story of Mary Magdalene. . . . Mrs. Allan Dwan, threatened with pneumonia and very, very ill for two weeks, was well enough to return home to celebrate their 19th wedding anniversary with Allan. . . . David Niven may close a deal with J. Arthur Rank to make several pictures abroad every year—that is, if Sam Goldwyn approves. . . . Franchot Tone, who went to Buffalo on a business trip, took a fling down to New York for a couple of days. It's no secret that Franchot wants to do another stage show after he finishes an Eagle-Lion movie coming up. . . . The Julian Youngs—he owns the anticipation shop in Hollywood where most of the anticipating movie stars shop for their wardrobes—welcomed a little "anticipation" of their own —a seven pound boy, last week. . . . Bebe Daniels is readying a radio program, "Sweepstakes to Fame", presenting aspirants to movie fame on the air for 12 weeks and rewarding the winner with a film contract—starting late this fall. . . . Theodora Lynch and Paul Getty have given their son three names, Timothy Christopher Ware, in the order named, but say he can reverse the order when he's old enough to make up his mind which he likes best. It's a good idea. How many people do you know who really like the handles their parents hung on them? . . . Edgar Bergen flew the Brian Ahernes and the Dick Powells to Laguna to see the show at the Laguna beach playhouse in his private Plane. That's all today.

Rubbers, Steels And Industrials Lead Moderate Rally In Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—The stock market today negotiated a moderate rally led by rubbers, steels and assorted industries without touching off anything in the way of urgent demand.

Buying, mainly by professionals with the public still shy, was attributed by brokers to the belief that four straight declining sessions entitled the list to a technical comeback. Dividends and earnings again were helpful to individual favorites although failing to inspire others.

Transfers of 700,000 shares compared with 660,000 Monthly.

Forward leaners during the day included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, New York Central, Southern Railway, Great Northern Pacific, International Telephone and Seaboard Air Line Common and Preferred.

Among losers were Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, North American, Central Motors, General Foods, Ohio Oil and Norfolk and Western.

Railway bonds attracted support.

Standard Oil of Kentucky moved up in the Curb on a boosted dividend and extra. Ahead were Detroit Steel Products, Hussmann, Noma Electric and United State Foil "B". Turnover here was 220,000 shares versus 200,000 yesterday.

Railroad issues generally gained in the bond market after dropping to a new average low for the year on Monday.

Among carriers rising a point or more were Rock Island Convertible 4½s, Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s of '55, M-K-T Adjustment 5s, St. Louis San Francisco 6s, and most Seaboard Air Line liens.

Atlanta and Birmingham 4s, Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern 5s, and New Haven 4s of '55 were among those declining.

Sales of $3,040,000 compared with $3,210,000 on Monday.

Industrials were unchanged on average, and utilities advanced .2 of a point. Improving were American Telephone 2¾s, Cleveland Electric Illuminating 3s and Illinois Bell Telephone 2¾s.

In the foreign list, Poland 4½s, Rio Grande Do Sul 7s and Uruguay Convertible 4½s were lower.

United States governments were off 1-32 to 2-32 of a point in dealers' markets and on the stock market from 7-32 to 14-32.

HAGAN Ice Cream

A couple of weeks ago, we put this little Southern gentleman in the windows of our Hagan Dairy Stores, inviting the public to "Enjoy a Fresh Peach Sundae—Georgia Peach, that is!"

Since then, we've really sold a lot of those sundaes. But somehow, we don't think that our friend from below the Mason and Dixon line had much to do with it. No, we think that combination of perfect ripe peaches and superlative Hagan Ice Cream just naturally sold itself.

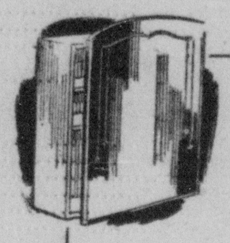

That was a swell treat for our Dairy Store customers. Now here's real good news for everyone—that real peach flavor is now available to all our customers. Made with real, luscious, juicy Georgia peaches—every spoonful as flavorsome as a dish of peaches and cream!

Try it! You can get it from your nearest dealer displaying the red Hagan shield. In bulk, cones, or in the Patrician Pint, it's Hagan Peach Ice Cream for August!

Rubbers, Steels And Industrials Lead Moderate Rally In Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—The stock market today negotiated a moderate rally led by rubbers, steels and assorted industries without touching off anything in the way of urgent demand.

Buying, mainly by professionals with the public still shy, was atributed by brokers to the belief that four straight declining sessions entitled the list to a technical comeback. Dividends and earnings again were helpful to individual favorites although failing to inspire others.

Transfers of 700,000 shares compared with 660,000 Monthly.

Forward leaners during the day included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, New York Central, Southern Railway, Great Northern Pacific, International Telephone and Seaboard Air Line Common and Preferred.

Among losers were Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, North American, Central Motors, General Foods, Ohio Oil and Norfolk and Western.

Railway bonds attracted support.

Standard Oil of Kentucky moved up in the Curb on a boosted dividend and extra. Ahead were Detroit Steel Products, Hussmann, Noma Electric and United State Foil "B". Turnover here was 220,000 shares versus 200,000 yesterday.

Railroad issues generally gained in the bond market after dropping to a new average low for the year on Monday.

Among carriers rising a point or more were Rock Island Convertible 4½s, Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s of '55, M-K-T Adjustment 5s, St. Louis San Francisco 6s, and most Seaboard Air Line liens.

Atlanta and Birmingham 4s, Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern 5s, and New Haven 4s of '55 were among those declining.

Sales of $3,040,000 compared with $3,210,000 on Monday.

Industrials were unchanged on average, and utilities advanced .2 of a point. Improving were American Telephone 2⅝s, Cleveland Electric Illuminating 3s and Illinois Bell Telephone 2¾s.

In the foreign list, Poland 4½s, Rio Grande Do Sul 7s and Uruguay Convertible 4½s were lower.

United States governments were off 1-32 to 2-32 of a point in dealers' markets and on the stock market from 7-32 to 14-32.

Hot Pole Hangs Up Track Record At Fairgo

Keegan's Filly Scores In $1,000 Sprint Event

Clips 1 1-5 Seconds Off Old Mark; 8,000 Bet $234,431; Time Play Cops Sloan Memorial

A Cumberland owned filly "stole the show" yesterday as the Cumberland Fair Association's ten-day race meeting opened when Hot Pole, the property of William Vincent Keegan, police and fire commissioner, established a new track record in winning The Potomac, initial $1,000 purse, in the fast time of 57 seconds.

The three-year-old bay daughter of Flag Pole, with Patsy Slate in the pilot house, reeled off the five-eighths of a mile one and one-fifth seconds faster than the previous record of 58 1-5 seconds hung up by Anyway on August 4, 1942, to defeat Oak Hill Farm's Bulrushes by a head. Halogi, owned by S. H. Rogers, Jr., which got away prior to the race and almost threw the outrider against the fence in front of the grandstand, took show money.

Commissioner Keegan's bread winner was overlooked in the betting and her victory netted backers $18.70 for each $2 straight ticket. The race was worth $700 to the owner of the winner.

8,000 Wager $234,431

The association estimated that 8,000 persons, the largest opening day crowd in the history of Fairgo, witnessed the eight-race inaugural card. The mutuel handle was $234,431 or $32,245 more than was wagered on the first day in 1945, when an all-time betting record of $202,587,428 was recorded for a ten-day meeting at the local half mile strip. Cumberland's high for a single day is $234,722, established on the eighth day of last year's meeting.

Mrs. James Tucker's Time Play, well handled by Jockey R. "Skeets" Holland, defeated Sticky Fussy by two lengths in the fifth event on the card, The Duncan R. Sloan Memorial. This race is named in honor of the late Duncan R. Sloan, first president of the local fair association.

Mahoney Presents Trophy

At the conclusion of the race Clifton W. White, president of the association, introduced George P. Mahoney, chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, who presented the S. T. Little Jewelry Company trophy, to James Tucker, trainer of Time Play. The winner closed at 11 to 1 and returned the nice price of $24.30 for $2, the second highest payoff of the afternoon. Woodbuck finished third.

J. E. Crider's Two Bucks, an 18 to 1 shot, scored a nice victory over Setting Trick to annex the first race of the meeting and paid the highest reward of the day—$38.20 to win, $11.70 to place and $8.30 to show. White Sea was third, a head back of Setting Trick. A photo determined the winner.

Daily Double Pays $290.50

Noslen, six-year-old bay horse owned by A. August, and trained by Norman Corbin, put on a thrilling stretch drive to nip J. N. Fishback's Big Sam in the second event. Oak Hill Farm's Mighty Bold came in third. Noslen paid off at 7 to 1, its backers receiving $16.50 for each $2 invested.

The winning daily double combination of Two Bucks and Noslen (5 and 8) paid $290.50.

Valiant Dot, coupled with Bonyik as the J. L. Friedman entry, copped the third race, defeating Patuxent Belle by the margin of a head, with Clam Chowder, third. G. Cordoza rode the winner which paid $11.30.

The fourth went to Mrs. R. W. Craig's Whiscendent with P. Kirkpatrick aboard. Pete's Gold finished three lengths behind the winner and Pal was the same distance back of the place horse.

Holland Has Two Winners

J. K. Fockler's Bugler scored a half length victory over Tacaro Identy in the seventh race while in the final Grand Fanar, owned by J. Ridgely and trained by G. H. Pearce, was piloted home ahead of Web's Miss and Big Sneeze by Jockey "Skeets" Holland, who became the only double winner on opening day.

Today's feature race will be The Robert C. Wilson Memorial, sixth on the program. Eight three-year-olds and upward will vie over the route of one mile and a sixteenth for the $1,000 purse.

Secondary feature on the card will be The Keyser, seventh on the program, over five-eighths of a mile. The first of the eight races will get under way at 2:30 p. m.

Good Jobs, Poor Pay

Rio De Janeiro, (AP)—For the first time in Brazil's history, some of its citizens are abroad on government business for which the national treasury will pay one cruzeiro each (about five cents). This is Brazil's adaptation of "one dollar men." Foreign Minister Joao Neves da Fontoura took several juridical advisers and industrialists with Brazil's official delegation to the Paris peace conference as "one cruzeiro men." He even paid them in advance.

In the whole state of Wyoming, only 41 persons were killed in automobile accidents during 1943.

Fairgo Notes

The new press box atop the grandstand at Fairgo is too small. Only five persons can stand at the window and after two chart makers and their assistants and clocker occupy places the others are shut out. The box should have been constructed to accommodate at least ten persons. Newsmen agree that the old grandstand set-up was better than present arrangements.

Stanley Austin, who rode eleven winners at Hagerstown, was unable to ride here because he suffered fractures of both feet last Tuesday at the Hub City track when Molasses Betts fell with him.

"Skeets" Holland, the negro jockey, who won two races yesterday, made his first appearance at Fairgo in several years. The reason: "Skeets" was busily occupied in fighting the Japs in the Pacific while riding on the high seas for Uncle Sam.

Bobby Edens, No. 1 rider, last year, was among the missing on opening day. The lad, who booted home 21 winners at Fairgo in 1945, returned to his home due to the illness of his child. Bobby may return before the meeting ends here.

Business was so good yesterday all programs were sold out twenty-five minutes before post time.

Judge Gunning says this happened at the Jockey Club.

"What's the price on Clam Chowder?" a woman racing fan asked her companion.

Just then a waiter happened by and thinking that the question was directed at him, replied:

"Forty cents, Madam."

It was before the third race in which Clam Chowder was entered.

Ted Elliott and George Ryall are in charge of the Photochart room this year. Chet Batemen, who was here last year, is now at Atlantic City, while Adam Moler, who was here two years ago, is now in charge of the camera at Santa Anita and Longacres on the Pacific Coast and expects to go to New Zealand shortly. Elliott says that Photochart is now used on 40 tracks, including the Roosevelt Raceway, where harness races are run in New York. Atlantic City, Monmouth, Garden State, Laurel and Pimlico are among the big tracks using this type of photos for races.

It's against the law to use Santa Claus to advertise beer, wine, or hard liquor during the Christmas season in Pennsylvania.

COMES BACK—Out of the ring for four years, Fred Apostoli, San Francisco Italian who once held the middleweight boxing championship, has started a comeback. In his first bout Apostoli technically knocked out Pedro Jiminez in the fourth round.

HORSES TO WATCH AT FAIRGO

Breakable Miss:—Comes from stable that is always trying.

Careless Knight: — Is thirteen years old, but don't let that fool you.

Clever:—Due for early brackets.

Tie Me: — Bound to win a 5-8 sprint before many days elapse.

Fielding H. Yost, Grid Strategist, Dies In Michigan

West Virginian Coached Wolverine Elevens For 39 Years

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 20 (AP) — Fielding Harris (Hurry Up) Yost, who built a national reputation as a football strategist during 39 years with the University of Michigan, died today of a gall bladder attack.

He celebrated his 75 birthday April 30.

His career as a football coach began in an era of mustached players garbed in turtleneck sweaters and ended in a day of giant stadia and cheering multitudes.

Since 1940 Yost had been in virtual retirement, although holding the post of athletic director emeritus at the Ann Arbor institution.

Mrs. Yost, whom he married in 1906, was with him when he died. They have one son, Fielding H. Yost, Jr.

Yost also is survived by two brothers, Ellis of Mt. Pleasant, Mich., and Nicholas of Fairview, W. Va., and a sister, Mrs. Charles Barry of Morgantown W. Va.

Coached Great Teams

Fielding Yost, renowned as a gridiron tactician, won the first Rose Bowl Game with his Michigan squad in 1901, developed Michigan's famed "Point-a-minute" team that rolled up 2,841 points to 42 for the opposition during the years 1901 to 1905, and turned out 15 all-Americas during his long tenure at Ann Arbor.

A native of Fairview, W. Va., Yost played baseball at Ohio Northern University, then Ohio Normal. There was no football team there but he "discovered" the game at West Virginia University in 1894 and his career was shaped.

In 1901 he came to Ann Arbor, where his genius as a developer and leader of athletes blossomed.

During his 25 years of active duty along the Michigan sidelines Yost's team's won 164 games, lost 29, and tied 10.

His famous nickname was fastened upon him in his first year at Michigan when his high-pitched, penetrating voice, with its slight southern accent, repeated after almost every play:

"You'll have to hurry. You'll have to hurry."

Developed Many Stars

BALTIMORE WINS IN ALL-AMERICAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)— A two-hit pitching job by Len Sawicki gave the Baltimore Boy Brigade an 8 to 4 victory over Philadelphia in the All American Amateur Baseball Junior Tournament today.

It was Baltimore's second victory of the tournament, but tournament officials ruled tonight that the first game in which the Brigade edged their fellow townsmen, the Baltimore City Express, 6 to 5, must be replayed.

Both teams filed protests that ineligible players were used yesterday, and tournament officials ordered a second contest between the two tomorrow morning (11 a. m., EST).

The Baltimore Expressmen thus erased a strike against them in the two-losses-and-out competition limited to boys 18 years old and younger.

The Baltimore Expressmen earlier today trounced Windber, Pa., 24 to 5.

After the morning game between the two Maryland teams, the Expressmen take on Philadelphia and the Boys Brigade plays the defending champion Amsterdam, N. Y., team in the afternoon (3 p. m.) tomorrow.

NESA CLUB DEFEATS LEGION TO CAPTURE SECOND HALF TITLE

North End Social and Athletic Club clinched the second half championship of the City Softball League by defeating Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, by the score of 6-4 yesterday at Community Park.

The victory enabled the NESA Club to finish one full game ahead of the runner-up Lacy's delicatets and the winners gained the right to play the American Legion, first half champions, in a series of games for the league championship.

North End closed the campaign with 16 wins and 5 losses and Lacy's won 15 and lost 6.

Five runs in the first inning decided the game in North End's favor.

It set a new qualifying record for the PGA tournament, one of the top links events of the country. The old mark was 136 established by Fred Morrison in 1929 in Los Angeles and equalled by Frank Moore of Overland, Mo., in 1938.

Ferrier carded 29-34 against par 35-37—72.

Hot Pole Hangs Up Track Record At Fairgo

Keegan's Filly Scores In $1,000 Sprint Event

Clips 1 1-5 Seconds Off Old Mark; 8,000 Bet $234,431; Time Play Cops Sloan Memorial

A Cumberland owned filly "stole the show" yesterday as the Cumberland Fair Association's ten-day race meeting opened when Hot Pole, the property of William Vincent Keegan, police and fire commissioner, established a new track record in winning The Potomac, initial $1,000 purse, in the fast time of 57 seconds.

The three-year-old bay daughter of Flag Pole, with Patsy Slate in the pilot house, reeled off the five-eighths of a mile one and one-fifth seconds faster than the previous record of 58 1-5 seconds hung up by Anyway on August 4, 1942, to defeat Oak Hill Farm's Bulrushes by a head. Halogi, owned by S. H. Rogers, Jr., which got away prior to the race and almost threw the outrider against the fence in front of the grandstand, took show money.

Commissioner Keegan's bread winner was overlooked in the betting and her victory netted backers $18.70 for each $2 straight ticket. The race was worth $700 to the owner of the winner.

8,000 Wager $234,431

The association estimated that 8,000 persons, the largest opening day crowd in the history of Fairgo, witnessed the eight-race inaugural card. The mutuel handle was $234,431 or $32,245 more than was wagered on the first day in 1945, when an all-time betting record of $2,387,428 was recorded for a ten-day meeting at the local half mile strip. Cumberland's high for a single day is $324,722, established on the eighth day of last year's meeting.

Mrs. James Tucker's Time Play, well handled by Jockey R. "Skeets" Holland, defeated Sticky Pussy by two lengths in the fifth event on the card, The Duncan R. Sloan Memorial. This race is named in honor of the late Duncan R. Sloan, first president of the local fair association.

Mahoney Presents Trophy

At the conclusion of the race Clifton W. White, president of the association, introduced George P. Mahoney, chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, who presented the S. T. Little Jewelry Company trophy, to James Tucker, trainer of Time Play. The winner closed at 11 to 1 and returned the nice price of $24.30 for $2, the second highest payoff of the afternoon. Woodbuck finished third.

J. E. Crider's Two Bucks, an 18 to 1 shot, scored a nice victory over Setting Trick to annex the first race of the meeting and paid the highest reward of the day—$38.20 to win, $11.70 to place and $8.30 to show. White Sea wss third, a head back of Setting Trick. A photo determined the winner.

Daily Double Pays $290.50

Noslen, six-year-old bay horse owned by A. August, and trained by Norman Corbin, put on a thrilling stretch drive to nip J. N. Fishback's Big Sam in the second event. Oak Hill Farm's Mighty Bold came in third. Noslen paid off at 7 to 1, its backers receiving $16.50 for each $2 invested.

The winning daily double combination of Two Bucks and Noslen (5 and 8) paid $290.50.

Valiant Dot, coupled with Bonyfk as the J. L. Friedman entry, copped the third race, defeating Patuxent Belle by the margin of a head, with Clam Chowder, third. G. Cordoza rode the winner which paid $11.30.

The fourth went to Mrs. R. W. Craig's Whiscendent with P. Kirkpatrick aboard. Pete's Gold finished three lengths behind the winner and Pal was the same distance back of the place horse.

Holland Has Two Winners

J. K. Pockler's Bugler scored a half length victory over Tacaro Identy in the seventh race while in the final Grand Fanar, owned by J. Ridgely and trained by G. H. Pearce, was piloted home ahead of Web's Miss and Big Sneeze by Jockey "Skeets" Holland, who became the only double winner on opening day.

Today's feature race will be The Robert C. Wilson Memorial, sixth on the program. Eight three-year-olds and upward will vie over the route of one mile and a sixteenth for the $1,000 purse.

Secondary feature on the card will be The Keyser, seventh on the program, over five-eighths of a mile. The first of the eight races will get under way at 2:30 p. m.

Good Jobs, Poor Pay

Rio De Janeiro, (AP)—For the first time in Brazil's history, some of its citizens are abroad on government business for which the national treasury will pay one cruzeiro each (about five cents). This is Brazil's adaptation of "one dollar men." Foreign Minister Joao Neves da Fontoura took several juridical advisers and industrialists with Brazil's official delegation to the Paris peace conference as "one cruzeiro men." He even paid them in advance.

In the whole state of Wyoming, only 41 persons were killed in automobile accidents during 1943.

Fairgo Notes

The new press box atop the grandstand at Fairgo is too small. Only five persons can stand at the window and after two chart makers and their assistants and clocker occupy places the others are shut out. The box should have been constructed to accommodate at least ten persons. Newsmen agree that the old grandstand set-up was better than present arrangements.

Stanley Austin, who rode eleven winners at Hagerstown, was unable to ride here because he suffered fractures of both feet last Tuesday at the Hub City track when Molasses Betts fell with him.

"Skeets" Holland, the negro jockey, who won two races yesterday, made his first appearance at Fairgo in several years. The reason: "Skeets" was busily occupied in fighting the Japs in the Pacific while riding on the high seas for Uncle Sam.

Bobby Edens, No. 1 rider, last year, was among the missing on opening day. The lad, who booted home 21 winners at Fairgo in 1945, returned to his home due to the illness of his child. Bobby may return before the meeting ends here.

Business was so good yesterday all programs were sold out twenty-five minutes before post time.

Judge Gunning says this happened at the Jockey Club.

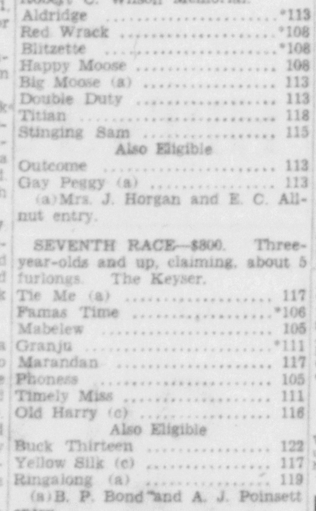

"What's the price on Clam Chowder?" a woman racing fan asked her companion.

Just then a waiter happened by and thinking that the question was directed at him, replied:

"Forty cents, Madam."

It was before the third race in which Clam Chowder was entered.

Ted Elliott and George Ryall are in charge of the Photochart room this year. Chet Batemen, who was here last year, is now at Atlantic City, while Adam Moler, who was here two years ago, is now in charge of the camera at Santa Anita and Longacres on the Pacific Coast and expects to go to New Zealand shortly. Elliott says that Photochart is now used on 40 tracks, including the Roosevelt Raceway, where harness races are run in New York. Atlantic City, Monmouth, Garden State, Laurel and Pimlico are among the big tracks using this type of photos for races.

COMES BACK—Out of the ring for four years, Fred Apostoli, San Francisco Italian who once held the middleweight boxing championship, has started a comeback. In his first bout Apostoli technically knocked out Pedro Jiminez in the fourth round.

HORSES TO WATCH AT FAIRGO

Breakable Miss:—Comes from stable that is always trying.

Careless Knight: — Is thirteen years old, but don't let that fool you.

Clever:—Due for early brackets.

Tie Me: — Bound to win a 5-8 sprint before many days elapse.

West Virginian Coached Wolverine Elevens For 39 Years

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 20 (AP) — Fielding Harris (Hurry Up) Yost, who built a national reputation as a football strategist during 39 years with the University of Michigan, died today of a gall bladder attack.

He celebrated his 75 birthday April 30.

His career as a football coach began in an era of mustached players garbed in turtleneck sweaters and ended in a day of giant stadia and cheering multitudes.

Since 1940 Yost had been in virtual retirement, although holding the post of athletic director emeritus at the Ann Arbor institution.

Mrs. Yost, whom he married in 1906, was with him when he died. They have one son, Fielding H. Yost, Jr.

Yost also is survived by two brothers, Ellis of Mt. Pleasant, Mich., and Nicholas of Fairview, W. Va., and a sister, Mrs. Charles Barry of Morgantown W. Va.

Coached Great Teams

Fielding Yost, renowned as a gridiron tactician, won the first Rose Bowl Game with his Michigan squad in 1901, developed Michigan's famed "Point-a-minute" team that rolled up 2,841 points to 42 for the opposition during the years 1901 to 1905, and turned out 15 all-Americas during his long tenure at Ann Arbor.

A native of Fairview, W. Va., Yost played baseball at Ohio Northern University, then Ohio Normal. There was no football team there but he "discovered" the game at West Virginia University in 1894 and his career was shaped.

In 1901 he came to Ann Arbor, where his genius as a developer and leader of athletes blossomed.

During his 25 years of active duty along the Michigan sidelines Yost's team's won 164 games, lost 29, and tied 10.

His famous nickname was fastened upon him in his first year at Michigan when his high-pitched, penetrating voice, with its slight southern accent, repeated after almost every play:

"You'll have to hurry. You'll have to hurry."

Developed Many Stars

BALTIMORE WINS IN ALL-AMERICAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)— A two-hit pitching job by Len Sawicki gave the Baltimore Boy Brigade an 8 to 4 victory over Philadelphia in the All American Amateur Baseball Junior Tournament today.

It was Baltimore's second victory of the tournament, but tournament officials ruled tonight that the first game in which the Brigade edged their fellow townsmen, the Baltimore City Express, 6 to 5, must be replayed.

Both teams filed protests that ineligible players were used yesterday, and tournament officials ordered a second contest between the two tomorrow morning (11 a. m., EST).

The Baltimore Expressmen thus erased a strike against them in the two-losses-and-out competition limited to boys 18 years old and younger.

The Baltimore Expressmen earlier today trounced Windber, Pa., 24 to 5.

After the morning game between the two Maryland teams, the Expressmen take on Philadelphia and the Boys Brigade plays the defending champion Amsterdam, N. Y., team in the afternoon (3 p. m.) tomorrow.

Johnson Suffers Fractured Hand As Chicago Wins

Second Sacker Injured By Pitched Ball; Cubs Top Phils Twice

CHICAGO, Aug. 20—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs took a double-header from the Philadelphia Phils today, 5 to 2 and 10 to 2, but lost second baseman Don Johnson with a fractured left hand.

PIRATES REJECT GUILD, 15-3; TEN REGULARS FAIL TO VOTE

Organizer Murphy Given 10 Days To Challenge Election

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20 (AP)—Members of the Pittsburgh Pirates today rejected the American Baseball Guild in baseball's first collective bargaining election by a 15-to-3 vote.

Nineteen of 31 eligible Pirate players voted in the election conducted by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board and one of the votes was challenged.

Ten players did not appear at the polling place in a downtown office building, and two eligible to vote were not available because they were out of the city. One, Frank Colman is now with the Newark Bears of the International League.

The second unavailable vote was that of Huck Geary, on the inactive list in Buffalo because of an injury.

The challenged vote was that of Rookie Leroy Jarvis. The challenge was made by the Labor Board until it was determined whether Jarvis had had been on the club payroll long enough since July 16, the day the list was submitted.

Players in the city who did not vote included Edson Bahr, Billy Cox, Ken Gables, Al Gearhauser, Al Gionfriddo, Frank Gustine, Lee Handley, Al Lopez, Bill Salkeld and Burgess Whitehead.

Murphy has ten days to challenge the election—a challenge he undoubtedly will accept.

Murphy, chewing a cigar, took his defeat calmly, saying:

"The result came as no surprise to me, since I've said within the last couple of days—off the record—the Guild couldn't possibly win."

Johnson Suffers Fractured Hand As Chicago Wins

Second Sacker Injured By Pitched Ball; Cubs Top Phils Twice

CHICAGO, Aug. 20—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs took a double-header from the Philadelphia Phils today, 5 to 2 and 10 to 2, but lost second baseman Don Johnson with a fractured left hand.

After the Cubs won the first game, Johnson was hit between the left thumb and first finger by one of Charlie Schanz's pitches as the Cubs coasted to a 10-2 triumph in the nightcap.

Four Phillie infield errors made it easy for the Cubs and Hank Borowy to win the first game.

PIRATES REJECT GUILD, 15-3; TEN REGULARS FAIL TO VOTE

Organizer Murphy Given 10 Days To Challenge Election

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20 (AP)—Members of the Pittsburgh Pirates today rejected the American Baseball Guild in baseball's first collective bargaining election by a 15-to-3 vote.

Nineteen of 31 eligible Pirate players voted in the election conducted by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board and one of the votes was challenged.

Ten players did not appear at the polling place in a downtown office building, and two eligible to vote were not available because they were out of the city. One, Frank Colman is now with the Newark Bears of the International League.

The second unavailable vote was that of Huck Geary, on the inactive list in Buffalo because of an injury. The challenged vote was that of Rookie Leroy Jarvis. The challenge was made by the Labor Board until it was determined whether Jarvis had had been on the club payroll long enough since July 16, the day the list was submitted.

Players in the city who did not vote included Edson Bahr, Billy Cox, Ken Gables, Al Gearhauser, Al Gionfriddo, Frank Gustine, Lee Handley, Al Lopez, Bill Salkeld and Burgess Whitehead.

Murphy has ten days to challenge the election—a challenge he undoubtedly will accept.

Murphy, chewing a cigar, took his defeat calmly, saying:

"The result came as no surprise to me, since I've said within the last couple of days—off the record—the Guild couldn't possibly win."

The same ball parks are used by both major league baseball clubs in Philidelphia and St. Louis.

Local Tavern Owners Won't Jump Beer Prices

The new OPA ruling that beer may be "upped" one cent a glass will not affect Cumberland bars—just yet, at any rate.

Beer has been selling anywhere from ten cents a glass for draught to 30 cents a bottle for "imported" brew. Tavern owners point out that the one cent increase would inconvenience bartenders in making change and the present prices allow sufficient profit. However, one owner said, they will "think it over."

Smith Is Fined For Disorderly Conduct

W. L. Smith, 870 Maryland avenue, a B. and O. yardmaster, yesterday was fined $50 on a disorderly conduct charge, after being arrested Sunday morning by Officer Paul M. Crabtree, when the officer said he was "peeping into windows" in South Cumberland. His counsel, Edward J. Ryan, filed notice of appeal.

Smith testified that he went to the South Cumberland section to check on the absenteeism of railroaders under his control. He denied the disorderly conduct charge and said that police failed to give him a reason for his arrest Sunday. He alleged that he was held in city jail from 1:30 a. m. until 7:15 p. m. Sunday before being released.

According to Officer Crabtree, Smith was observed looking into windows at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Second street where residents have been complaining of a prowler for the past five weeks.

Many residents of the section appeared in Police Court this morning, but none could identify Smith as the actual prowler, although many said the man's build resembled that of the person seen in the neighborhood.

Local Tavern Owners Won't Jump Beer Prices

The new OPA ruling that beer may be "upped" one cent a glass will not affect Cumberland bars—just yet, at any rate.

Beer has been selling anywhere from ten cents a glass for draught to 30 cents a bottle for "imported" brew. Tavern owners point out that the one cent increase would inconvenience bartenders in making change and the present prices allow sufficient profit. However, one owner said, they will "think it over."

Smith Is Fined For Disorderly Conduct

W. L. Smith, 870 Maryland avenue, a B. and O. yardmaster, yesterday was fined $50 on a disorderly conduct charge, after being arrested Sunday morning by Officer Paul M. Crabtree, when the officer said he was "peeping into windows" in South Cumberland. His counsel, Edward J. Ryan, filed notice of appeal.

Smith testified that he went to the South Cumberland section to check on the absenteeism of railroaders under his control. He denied the disorderly conduct charge and said that police failed to give him a reason for his arrest Sunday. He alleged that he was held in city jail from 1:30 a. m. until 7:15 p. m. Sunday before being released.

According to Officer Crabtree, Smith was observed looking into windows at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Second street where residents have been complaining of a prowler for the past five weeks.

Many residents of the section appeared in Police Court this morning, but none could identify Smith as the actual prowler, although many said the man's build resembled that of the person seen in the neighborhood.

Three Freight Cars Are Derailed

Three cars of a Western Maryland freight train were derailed early Monday near Pearre. Traffic was resumed later in the morning. It was reported that the cars were loaded with grain.

Railroad officials confirmed the derailment but said it was cleared up quickly and that no one was hurt.

Four Join Army

Kenneth L. Stalnaker, 25, Elk Garden, W. Va., twice-wounded veteran of World War II yesterday re-enlisted in the Army Air Corps for three years.

Others who enlisted yesterday include Joe Koontz, 18, Route 4, Bedford, Pa., who signed for 18 months unassigned.

Guy N. Liller, 23, Elk Garden, W. Va., a veteran of two years and 11 months service, re-enlisted for three years with the Army Air Forces. He is a veteran of the battles of Rome-Arno, Southern France and Rhineland.

George B. Wilson, Jr., 17, 114 Grant street, Frostburg, enlisted for three years with the engineers in the Caribbean.

Rubber Workers To Air Stoppage At Meeting Today

Walkout Of Tire Builders Virtually Halts Work At Kelly Plant

Members of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, employed in Departments 51-A and 52 at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in the union hall, Earl Johnson, union vice president, reported, in an effort to reach an agreement on the dispute which had virtually halted production at the local tire plant last night.

A company official reported that less than 50 per cent of the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. shift were at their posts and that from 15 to 20 per cent of the 700 odd second shift employes reported at 3 p. m.

Limited operations were in progress early last night in the mill and tube rooms and the service and maintenance departments, he reported, adding that all other divisions were shut down.

About a dozen of the 80 tube room employes, 27 of the 63 mechanics and three of the eight Banbury mixer crews were on duty from 3 to 11 p. m. he explained.

A Kelly official reported at 11:20 o'clock last night that about 40 per cent of the third shift employes reported for work at 11 o'clock. He added that he expected about 10 per cent of the crew to remain on duty.

May Halt Operations

Unless workers return at 3 p. m. today, he added, the entire plant employing some 2,400 production workers will be forced to suspend operations.

The work stoppage, which company officials term unauthorized, began in the truck tire room Monday at 6 p. m. and spread to the passenger tire department at 10 p. m.

Union officials were reported to have conferred with workers on the 11 p. m. shift Monday night and left the plant with the understanding that work would be continued.

The main grievance of the workers, union members report, is based on what they consider an unfair distribution of work which results in some tire builders having to take day work jobs or be sent home.

Company Statement

In a statement, released by plant officials, the company said:

"A wildcat strike in the truck tire room causes partial paralysis of production in the Kelly plant.

"A number of truck tire builders, in an effort to limit individual production throughout the tire room, stopped work at 6:00 p. m. Monday. This stoppage was in protest to performance of above-average skilled workmen whose production was in excess of average performance.

"The group of builders who instituted the work stoppage requested that management either impose a limit on the number of tires any individual may build in a work day or separate from the payroll those builders now exceeding the proposed limit, regardless of the individual's skill and ability to produce.

"The wage payment in the tire room is on incentive basis whereby a builder is paid a fixed price for each unit produced. Under the current labor contract with the United Rubber Workers, management agreed to set incentive rates so that the average experienced workman working at a fair pace, can make earnings which will average 10 per cent over the base rate. The parties to the contract further agreed that earnings of the employes may exceed the 10 per cent over base rate level in proportion to the skill of the operator and the effort put forth in excess of average requirements.

"The company's position is that an employe working under the incentive system should be free to produce and make earnings commensurate with his application of acquired skill and effort. The individual's right to so produce is guaranteed by the labor contract as set forth above. Furthermore, it would be contrary to the policy of the company to impose a limit on the earnings of any employe working on an incentive basis.

Gives Union Views

One union official, in explaining the union's attitude, said: "Assume there are 50 truck tires to be built. If the first shift produces two thirds of that number and the second shift the remaining one third, it leaves nothing for the third shift. Members of the departments involved feel that there should be a more equal distribution, especially in view of the fact that the trouble is caused by allowing certain individuals to produce truck and passenger tires in excess of a normal output for seven hours work."

Ralph C. Beard, union president, was out of town on vacation when the stoppage occurred, but returned yesterday afternoon. The union official did not indicate last evening as to whether or not he would intercede in the dispute since his leave will not be up until Monday.

The Kelly plant was closed down July 30 after curing room workers protested a change in the production and number of men required to operate loops at the tire plant, but resumed operations August 2 after workers accepted a compromise schedule worked out by union and company officials.

CPA Violations Numerous Here, Regional Head Says

Violations of the Civilian Production Administration regulations, governing building of private homes, and industrial construction, are more predominent in the Cumberland area than anywhere else in Maryland, William F. Roth, Jr., Regional CPA compliance manager said yesterday.

The Cumberland area, until recently under the Cleveland Regional CPA office, is now under the jurisdiction of the Philadelphia Regional Office, Roth said, and violations such as are being reported in Cumberland are unequaled in other sections, he added.

Several CPA investigators have conducted inspections in this area, Roth said, and it is likely that the number will be augmented in the near future. He refused to say where or of what type most of the violations consist.

The compliance manager said no findings of the investigators will be revealed unless legal action is taken against the contractors. If a job is incomplete when the violation is reported, Roth said, a CPA stoppage order will be delivered to both the contractor and the owner of the building.

However, if the work is completed or the stoppage order isn't obeyed, legal action will be taken, Roth asserted. To date no stoppages have been delivered in the area, F. Patrick Allender, business manager of Carpenters Local 1024 said last night.

River Board Plans To Enlist Support For Dam Project

Representatives of the Upper Potomac River Board will visit various communities in the Cumberland and Tri-Towns area within the next month in the interest of clearing up pollution of the Potomac River and to enlist support in obtaining completion of the Savage River dam project, Mark K. Roe, board chairman, said last night.

The first of the series of such meetings is scheduled for next Wednesday, August 28, at the weekly meeting of Mayor Marshall Skidmore and the Frostburg City Council.

Other communities to be visited include Lonaconing, Barton, Westernport and Lake, and the West Virginia towns of Piedmont and Keyser. The board representatives plan to meet with community officials at their regular council meetings to discuss the problem.

Roe explained that the Savage River project was included in the omnibus flood control bill recently passed by Congress and signed by the President, but that actual allocation of funds has not been made.

Army engineers will submit their estimate of the funds needed for the project to the Bureau of the Budget about September 15, and the latter will study the estimate and then send its recommendation to Congress.

If funds for the project are to be obtained during the next session of Congress, Roe said, community officials in this area must be informed of the need for public interest and backing.

Plans for the community visits were made at a meeting of the board last week at Central YMCA.

FFA Boys To Judge Livestock At Fair

The annual Future Farmers of America livestock judging contest will be held at the Cumberland Fair ground Tuesday morning, August 27, Joseph H. House, vocational agriculture instructor of Allegany County said yesterday.

The contest will be under the supervision of Eural G. Bee, assistant specialist of animal husbandry of University of Maryland and will include beef cattle, sheep and swine, House said.

Explaining that the contest is open to all members of the County FFA organization, the agriculture instructor said five prizes totaling $30 will be offered to winners of the contest. Of the 120 county members, he said a large number are expected to enter this year.

According to House the stock to be judged will be selected from the Cumperland Fair Association entries and will be appraised by Bee, before being placed before the FFA contestants.

A breakdown of the prizes lists $8 for first, $7 for second, $6 for third, $5 for fourth and $4 for fifth. House said judging will be based on character, conformation and type, condition, quality and smoothness, constitutional vigor and general appearance.

In addition to the livestock contest an exhibit of FFA poultry and vegetables will be offered at the Fair ground, House said. Entries will be accepted either Sunday afternoon, August 25 or Monday, August 26. All judging of poultry and vegetables will be done on August 27, House asserted.

Builders To Receive New FHA Placards

New placards are being issued by the Federal Housing Administration office in Baltimore to builders of rental and sales homes being constructed for veterans in this area, according to E. Price Steiding, local expediter for the National Housing Agency.

The placards are red, white and blue, replacing the yellow signs formerly used. Builders will be provided with these placards upon approval of their priority requests, and the placards must be posted on each separate dwelling under construction or undergoing conversion, unless the work was authorized before August 6.

Structures will be held for veterans 30 days after completion in the case of rentals, and 60 days after completion for sales housing. However, the 60-day holding period for sales homes is not mandatory for permits issued prior to August 6, and may be reduced to 30 days, Steiding said.

Hazelwood Firm Submits Low Bid For Road Work

The George P. Hazelwood Company submitted the low bid yesterday to the State Roads Commission for surfacing .587 miles of Vocke road in this county, according to the Associated Press.

The firm's bid for the work, a federal aid project, was $57,125.25. The Cumberland Contracting Company was the only other bidder at $64,712.20.

McKee Schade, a Celanese worker, following a lengthy hearing that began Monday before Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper. He also was granted custody of their daughter, Edward J. Ryan was attorney for Schade and Estel C. Kelley represented Mrs. Schade.

The supper will be held jointly by Salvation Army members of both posts in the city. A meeting around the dinner table will follow.

Adjt. Ball will conduct the regular Sunday morning service at the Citadel, and Sunday night will preach his farewell sermon at a public service at 8 o'clock.

Temporary Zoning Board Chairman Plans To Resign

Raymond G. Messmer Will Submit Resignation To Council

Raymond G. Messmer, acting chairman of the Board of Zoning Appeals since the resignation of J. E. Wetzel last June, said last night that he plans to submit his resignation to the Mayor and City Council at next Monday's meeting.

Messmer, who lives at 1036 Myrtle street, said that he has decided to resign in order to give more time to his business. He is a painter.

He added, however, that he will remain a member of the board until his successor is appointed by Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Although Messmer presided as chairman at last night's meeting of the broad, he and Joseph R. Mantheiy, another member, have asked William M. Weatherholt, who was appointed the third member last week by Mayor Post, to serve as permanent chairman. Weatherholt will assume the chairmanship at the next board meeting.

Messmer, Mantheiy and Wetzel were appointed to the board in August, 1945, following the resignations of the three original members, Thomas Lohr Richards, George H. Tederick and Bruce D. Smith.

Astor Appeal Granted

The appeal of Mark A. Schriver, manager of the Astor Cab Company, for an occupancy permit to use Lots 24 and 25 on Summit avenue for the construction of a radio pole and antenna was granted by the board.

Schriver testified that the pole will be 65 feet high and that a 9'6" antenna will be placed on top of the pole. A wire will be run down into a three-room building near the base of the pole, where a small power unit will be set up in connection with the two-way radio system which the company plans to install in a fleet of 25 new Hudson cabs.

Although the Civil Aeronautics Administration does not require a pole under 157 feet high to be lighted, Schriver said he plans to install a blinker atop the pole to protect low-flying planes. The Federal Communications Commission has approved his application to operate the station, he added.

Two Appeals Denied

Two other appeals were denied and a fourth was granted by the board.

The application of Francis Pahey, 202 Maple street, for a permit to operate a grocery store at 229 Arch street was denied because the applicant failed to appear at the hearing.

Miss Orpha E. Boggs, 415 Bedford street, was denied a permit to use part of the first floor of the two-story building at that address as a confectionery because the building is in a Residential B district, and because it was formerly occupied as a residence.

An occupancy permit was granted to Dennis F. Abe, Green Spring, W. Va., an army veteran, to use two rooms in the first story of a two-story frame building at 324-326 North Mechanic street for storage and wholesale of confections, novelties and patent drugs.

Cresaptown Marine Will Be Honored

A Marine Corps veteran of Cresaptown, Nile Glenn Lechliter, 21, son of Mrs. A. D. Lechliter, will receive two Distinguished Flying Crosses and six Air Medals at a presentation ceremony scheduled for this morning at 10 o'clock in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post.

The presentation will be made by Capt. M. A. Bruder, Baltimore, of the Marine Recruiting Service.

A student in the junior class at Allegany High School when he entered the Marine Corps March 17, 1943, Lechliter served in the Pacific theater for 13 months as a gunner aboard a Douglas SBD dive bomber. He was stationed at a base in the Philippine Islands during most of his overseas service, and flew 67 missions from the time he left this country in August, 1944, until he returned in September, 1945.

Honorably discharged November 26, 1945, as a private first class, he has been employed for the past five months as a steel worker in Harrisonburg, Va. He hopes to enter college to study structural engineering.

In April of this year, the young Marine received citations for four Air Medals and one DFC. He served overseas with Squadron 341 of the First Marine Air Wing.

Mayor Post said that he plans to invite members of the City Council to attend the ceremony this morning, which has been arranged under the sponsorship of Francis K. Finan Detachment, Marine Corps League. John T. Fey, local attorney, will represent the league. Staff Sgt. Murrell W. Brainerd, local Marine recruiter, will also be present.

Chest Clinic Planned

Fifty appointments have been made for the monthly chest clinic, to be held Wednesday and Thursday, August 28 and 29, at City Hall.

The clinic will be conducted by Dr. I. B. Lyon, of the staff of the state sanitorium at Sabillasville, and will be held from 9 a. m. until 2 p. m. both days.

Defendants Deny Charges Of Fraud In Dairy Dispute

Demurrer And Answer Filed To Stockholder's Bill Of Complaint

In a combined demurrer and answer to a bill of complaint filed by J. William Loar, a director and stockholder of the Queen City Dairy, Incorporated, Clarence U. Llewellyn, Rawlings, a director, Harvey E. England, Bedford County, Pa., a former director, John H. Stiffler, Cumberland, former plant manager, and James H. Laher, Blair County, Pa., president of the Liberty Milk Company here, deny charges that they tried by misrepresentation and conspiracy to purchase stock and gain control of the Queen City firm.

The defendants, represented by Thomas Lohr Richards and Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., demurred to the entire bill of complaint filed against them with the exception of three paragraphs, and said that Lohr did not state a case entitling him to relief in equity. The court also was asked to strike out certain paragraphs of the bill of complaint on grounds that they are "scandalous and impertinent."

In the answer, the defendants said there has "never been any desire" to "freeze out" any stockholder or treat them unfairly.

They declared that the dairy has not been operating as a co-operative but as an ordinary business corporation although "some of its by-laws have some of the characteristics of a co-operative." They added that it would be "of great advantage to the stockholders to operate openly and sincerely as a business corporation which in fact it is."

Eager To Give Options

The defendants said that in the summer of 1945 a majority of the stockholders voted to set up an ordinary business corporation but that a two-thirds majority required was lacking. They added that the plan has since been considered and that there was nothing "secret" in the securing of options, and that the optioners were "willing and even eager" to give the options.

Loar, the defendants said, was the fifth person to sign the option for stock, and also was one of 10 stockholders who signed a petition asking that the by-laws be changed to that of an ordinary business corporation and that the matter be presented at the stockholders' meeting in January.

The defendants also denied that the then counsel for the company had any connection or knowledge of the plan to secure options as the bill had charged.

A charge by the complainant that the attorney evasively refused to consult with some stockholders is termed "false," and the answer points out that he told stockholders who called on him that no one had a right to defraud but that personal controversy between stockholders was a matter for contestants to settle among themselves. His advice, the answer said, was for the company to take no action in the matter as it was of no legal concern to the company. A decision of the Court of Appeals in a former case concerning the stock is referred to in the answer, saying that this decision vindicates the attorney's advice.

The defendants declared that the allegation that Stiffler tried to injure the plant by violating health regulations is a "vicious and malicious defamation of character which is completely false."

The answer asserts that two attorneys for the complainant attended the January stockholders' meeting and raised a controversy between some of the optionors and optionees which counsel for the company had said was not the business of legal interest of the company.

Announced In Notices

The answer termed false a charge by Loar that the then counsel for the company offered for consideration a set of by-laws changing the company to an ordinary business corporation in pursuance of the defendants' plan to gain control, and said that official notices of the meeting stated that a change in by-laws would be considered.

After a second canvass of optionors disclosed that a majority wished to honor their options, the answer said, the First National Bank was asked to act as trustee because of the large amount of money involved and agreed to do so.

Later, however, one of the attorneys for the complainant persuaded the bank president to renege on the contract, the answer asserted, so an account was set up in the Second National Bank in the name of Stiffler and Richards as trustees to pay for any stock that might be willingly offered.

On February 1 of this year, when the options were due, it was discovered that the complainant and others associated with him, had collected some of the stock certificates under option and were holding them in the office of one of the complainant's attorneys, the answer asserts.

"In spite of this extraordinary conduct," the defendants state, "a substantial amount of the stock has been purchased or will be purchased in accordance with the options from willing optionors."

Rep. Beall Favors Aid For Disabled Veterans

In a statement to the Disabled American Veterans, Rep. J. Glenn Beall asserted that if educational legislation is needed to rehabilitate disabled American veterans, Congress should act immediately, it was announced here yesterday.

Members of Congress were asked by the DAV for statements on what they thought of first importance to disabled veterans to be used as a guide for action of delegates to the 25th annual convention of the veterans group in Portland, Ore., September 2 to 6.

Rep. Beall's statement was, "To me it is of most importance that the disabled veterans be made as comfortable as possible. He is the person who should receive first consideration.

"All of us, particularly we veterans of foreign wars, should spend our best efforts to see that he is rehabilitated as quickly as possible. If additional legislation is necessary to take care of them, Congress should act immediately."

Midland Youth Shot To Death By Companion

Examiner Gives Accidental Verdict In Death Of William Warnick

A 13-year-old Midland boy was accidentally shot to death yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock by a companion while they were firing a .22 caliber rifle at targets on Ocean Hill, just above Midland, Trooper Walter Wilt, of the Maryland State Police said last night.

The youth, William Warnick, son of Mrs. Annabel Warnick Ravenscraft by a previous marriage, was pronounced dead by Dr. H. V. Deming, acting county medical examiner, upon admittance to Miners Hospital, Frostburg. Dr. Deming gave a verdict of "accidental death."

Companion Questioned

The companion, Donald G. Crowe, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Crowe, Midland, was questioned by County Investigator T. J. Boyle at his home following the accident, but no charges were preferred.

Dr. Deming said the .22 caliber slug entered the left side of Warnick's face at the nose and lodged in the brain. He explained that a cerebral hemorrhage caused instant death.

Trooper Wilt who investigated along with Lt. Charles W. Magaha, for the state police, said the two boys left the Crowe home about 1:30 p. m. to go into the woods and practice with the rifle, which belonged to the Crowe boy.

Warnick, according to the trooper, had bought a 100 rounds of ammunition for the rifle and gave half to Crowe for the use of his gun. Wilt said the two boys were alone in the hills, and apparently the Warnick youth had finished shooting and gave the rifle to his companion.

Explains Accident

Crowe must have been aiming the gun as Warnick stepped in front of it, Trooper Wilt explained. The slug entered his head diagonally as though he were pointing the rifle into a tree and then he must have pressed the trigger without realizing Warnick was in front, Wilt said.

The victim was taken to Miners Hospital by Leroy Shears, Midland, and Miss Catherine Broderick, registered nurse, the trooper said. The state police were notified of the accident shortly after 2 o'clock and went to the hospital with Dr. Deming, Investigator Boyle and Sheriff David Steele.

The boy is survived by his mother, and father, Hubert Warnick, one brother, Hubert Warnick, Jr., serving with the United States Navy in California, three half-brothers, Robert Ravenscraft, Thomas Ravenscraft, and John Ravenscraft, and one half sister Phyllis Ravenscraft, all at home.

Army-Navy Citation Awarded To YMCA For War Activities

A facsimile of a joint Army and Navy citation awarded to the Young Men's Christian Association in recognition of its USO activities has been received by Robert L. Sisson, general secretary of Central YMCA.

The facsimile bears the signature of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal. Although no formal presentation ceremony has been arranged, Sisson said it is possible that such a ceremony may be held when fall activities are resumed.

Since 1940, all of the facilities of Central YMCA were used by enlisted personnel of the armed forces. The YMCA servicemen's committee co-operated with Army personnel at the Green Ridge prisoner of war camp to arrange a series of entertainments and dances for the officers and enlisted men stationed there.

Complimentary three-month memberships in the "Y" were mailed to 6,500 ex-servicemen of Allegany county, and up until the closing of the Bedford Navy training school the YMCA helped to arrange housing for a large number of men who came to Cumberland for weekend visits.

The Military Police maintained an office and quarters in Central YMCA from September, 1944, until June, 1946. Between train time, many servicemen passing through the city on troop trains availed themselves of the "Y" pool, servicemen's lounge and athletic facilities. In addition, the "Y" cafeteria co-operated with the Navy in serving special luncheons to recruits leaving Cumberland for boot training.

The citation states:

"The War Department and the Navy Department express to the Young Men's Christian Associations their appreciation for patriotic services. The Young Men's Christian Associations, member agency of the USO, performed exceptional and meritorious service in World War II. Mobilizing its nationwide resources, including the Army and Navy YMCAs, it dedicated itself to serving the religious, spiritual, educational and welfare needs of the men and women in the armed forces and in the war industries. Its contribution was of substantial aid in the successful prosecution of the war and in preserving the basic values of American democracy."

Two Permits Granted To Enclose Porches

Two building permits to enclose porches were granted yesterday in the city engineer's office.

Carl R. Amtower, 203 Arch street, plans to enclose a one-story rear porch with storm windows at 201-203 Arch street. Frame walls covered with asbestos shingles will be used. He will do the work, estimated to cost $200.

Edward O. Meister secured a permit to enclose a porch for use as a kitchen at the rear of 401 Decatur street. The addition will have brick walls and a composition roof. Meister will do the work, estimated to cost $150.

The remainder of the estate goes to the sons and daughters, share and share alike.

Dated April 24, 1946, the will names Isaac Vanorsdale executor.

Prizes In Dairy Cattle Show Will Total $2,228

Competition Is Expected In Four Principal Breeds At Fair

Prizes of $2,228 are being offered for the Dairy Cattle Show at the Cumberland Fair next Tuesday, with competition expected in each of the four principal dairy breeds for the first time in many years, Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent, said yesterday.

Judging is scheduled to begin promptly at 9 a. m. and probably will last all day.

Jersey and Ayrshire cattle will be judged in the morning with classes in the two breeds to be alternated—a class of Jersey bulls, then a class of Ayrshire bulls, then another class of Jerseys, etc.—according to present plans. During the afternoon Holsteins and Guernseys will be judged alternately.

The total prizes of $2,228 will be made up of $557 in prizes for each breed, McHenry said, adding that a new judging ring is expected to be ample to accomodate all visitors.

Judging will be done by Floyd Arnold, of the Dairy Department of the University of Maryland. There will be no admission charge and the gates will be open all day.

Exhibitors this year are S. A. Koontz, Bedford, Pa., A. L. O'Brien, Mann's Choice, Pa., George Stiles, Hagerstown, and F. B. Cosgrove, Westernport, Jerseys; W. I. Shank and Son, Hagerstown, and S. J. Diehl, Bedford, Pa., Ayrshires; J. Homer Remsburg, Frederick County, and Ray Koontz, Bedford, Holsteins; Howard Quinn, Brandenburg Sons and Martin S. Beachley, Frederick, and Dr. T. B. The house committee of the post will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. with Roy Everstine, chairman, in charge.

The degree team will rehearse September 4, at 7:30 p. m. under the direction of James E. Stemple, chairman.

PARENT COUNSELING SUGGESTED BY CLUB TO CURB DELINQUENCY

Parent counseling will be the first move in the Cumberland Exchange Club's campaign to curb juvenile delinquency, Daniel D'Amicol, president, announced last evening.

A report on the club's plans in the drive were explained last night by John T. Fey, chairman of the public affairs committee, at a meeting of the club at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Fey said the club feels that the first step in the campaign is to reach the parents first and prevent delinquency. A full report on the campaign will be given at the next meeting of the group.

D'Amicol said the club will support the work of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children. He said the league will center emphasis this year on the correction of speech impediments and the prevention and treatment of rheumatic fever in children.

George Tederick and D'Amicol were named to represent the club at the National Exchange Club convention to be held in Atlantic City early in October. Six other members of the group are expected to attend the meeting.

McCormick Says State OPA Will Enforce Ceilings

Presidential Citations Are Awarded To 30 Rationing Volunteers

Leo H. McCormick, making his farewell appearance as State OPA Director before the Allegany County Price Control Board, said last night that the full strength of the Maryland OPA staff would be used "to make sure that the ceilings restored by the Decontrol Board stick."

McCormick, head of the Maryland OPA office since it was established in May, 1942, and the only one remaining of the original state directors, said the meat ceilings, restored last night by the Decontrol Board in Washington, "could and would be enforced in Maryland."

The state director announced his resignation last week, effective September 1 when he becomes president of a newly-organized frozen foods firm in Baltimore. He is now touring the state explaining the provisions of the new OPA law.

Awards Citations

Mayor Thomas S. Post presided at last night's meeting and said, introducing McCormick, that the director was known "for his honesty and real efforts to consider all sides of the price control problem."

After talks by McCormick and by James E. Hague, Maryland Veterans' Relations Adviser for the OPA, the resigning director awarded presidential citations to the 30 price and rationing volunteers present at the meeting.

He paid especial tribute to Mayor Post, Robert E. Bernard, original chairman of the Allegany County Board, Harry A. Porch, present chairman, and Mary S. Jones, chief clerk.

McCormick charged the board with responsibility for keeping "the all-important interest in price controls alive." He said that those who termed it an impossible task to restore price controls were mistaken.

"After all," he said, "land is in sight and we would be foolish to surrender to inflation now. It is going to be a tremendous job to reach back with prices but it's going to be done."

Promises Enforcement

Saying that he was "frankly amazed that dairy products were not put back under controls," McCormick said that the recontrol of meat "was a tremendous gain for the consumer. And those meat ceilings can and will be enforced. The Maryland OPA office now boasts the best-rounded enforcement staff it has ever had."

"We are going into this meat thing" he continued, "and make it work. OPA has received its mandate and I can say for myself and my successor that we shall carry out that mandate. We haven't been given the most perfect tools in the world but we at least have price control tools now."

In a tribute to McCormick, Chairman Porch said that "everyone in Allegany County knows how you stood behind us. Without your support, our efforts would have accomplished nothing."

McCormick goes to Hagerstown and Frederick today.

Garmon Resigns At Fort Hill

James O. Garmon, industrial arts instructor at Fort Fill High School for the past five years, and a member of Allegany County school faculties for the past 15 years, resigned yesterday, Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, announced.

Garmon, a native of Owensboro, Ky., began teaching industrial arts in Allegany County in 1931 when he accepted an assignment at Cresaptown Junior High School, Kopp said, adding that he taught there for eight years, until 1939.

In 1939 he was assigned to Fort Hill High and taught there for one year, then was transferred to Allegany High School where he taught for one year. In 1931 Garmon was reassigned to Fort Hill and continued to teach there until his resignation yesterday.

A graduate of Western Kentucky State Teachers College, Bowling Green, Ky., he holds a Bachelor of Science degree, and is an expert cabinet maker and wood worksman.

Garmon who resides at 1300 Oldtown road, with his wife and two children, said yesterday that he plans to return to Owensboro, with his family and enter the cabinet-making business.

Kopp said yesterday that no successor has been appointed.

7 Become Ill While Using Lake Cabin

Seven persons became ill while occupying a cabin on Deep Creek lake during the past couple of weeks, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, Allegany and Garrett County Health Officer said yesterday, and a later check showed that a sewage line near a well was broken, he added.

Dr. Franklin said he couldn't say definitely that the illness, described as diarrhea was caused by the water, but added that it could possibly be the cause.

He explained that six of the persons were from Pennsylvania, but said he couldn't recall their names.

The Pennsylvania persons occupied the cabin about two weeks ago, the county health officer said, and to date nothing more serious than the diarrhea has been reported. He said the county health department continued to watch for evidence of typhoid, but none has been reported.

The seventh person, a local man, identified the cabin last night as No. 6 of the Heid rental cabins. He said the cabin is located near Cabin Lodge and is on the same side of the lake shore.

Dr. Franklin said last night that the condition has been corrected and people are once more using the cabin.

Other public water supplies in the area have been checked and found to be all high right, Dr. Franklin said.

Walkout Of Tire Builders Virtually Halts Work At Kelly Plant

Members of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, employed in Departments 51-A and 52 at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in the union hall, Earl Johnson, union vice president, reported, in an effort to reach an agreement on the dispute which had virtually halted production at the local tire plant last night.

A company official reported that less than 50 per cent of the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. shift were at their posts and that from 15 to 20 per cent of the 700 odd second shift employes reported at 3 p. m.

Limited operations were in progress early last night in the mill and tube rooms and the service and maintenance departments, he reported, adding that all other divisions were shut down.

About a dozen of the 80 tube room employes, 27 of the 63 mechanics and three of the eight Banbury mixer crews were on duty from 3 to 11 p. m. he explained.

A Kelly official reported at 11:20 o'clock last night that about 40 per cent of the third shift employes reported for work at 11 o'clock. He added that he expected about 10 per cent of the crew to remain on duty.

May Halt Operations

Unless workers return at 3 p. m. today, he added, the entire plant employing some 2,400 production workers will be forced to suspend operations.

The work stoppage, which company officials term unauthorized, began in the truck tire room Monday at 6 p. m. and spread to the passenger tire department at 10 p. m.

Union officials were reported to have conferred with workers on the 11 p. m. shift Monday night and left the plant with the understanding that work would be continued.

The main grievance of the workers, union members report, is based on what they consider an unfair distribution of work which results in some tire builders having to take day work jobs or be sent home.

Company Statement

In a statement, released by plant officials, the company said:

"A wildcat strike in the truck tire room causes partial paralysis of production in the Kelly plant.

"A number of truck tire builders, in an effort to limit individual production throughout the tire room, stopped work at 6:00 p. m. Monday. This stoppage was in protest to performance of above-average skilled workmen whose production was in excess of average performance.

"The group of builders who instituted the work stoppage requested that management either impose a limit on the number of tires any individual may build in a work day or separate from the payroll those builders now exceeding the proposed limit, regardless of the individual's skill and ability to produce.

"The wage payment in the tire room is on incentive basis whereby a builder is paid a fixed price for each unit produced. Under the current labor contract with the United Rubber Workers, management agreed to set incentive rates so that the average experienced workman working at a fair pace, can make earnings which will average 10 per cent over the base rate. The parties to the contract further agreed that earnings of the employes may exceed the 10 per cent over base rate level in proportion to the skill of the operator and the effort put forth in excess of average requirements.

"The company's position is that an employe working under the incentive system should be free to produce and make earnings commensurate with his application of acquired skill and effort. The individual's right to so produce is guaranteed by the labor contract as set forth above. Furthermore, it would be contrary to the policy of the company to impose a limit on the earnings of any employe working on an incentive basis.

Gives Union Views

One union official, in explaining the union's attitude, said: "Assume there are 50 truck tires to be built. If the first shift produces two thirds of that number and the second shift the remaining one third, it leaves nothing for the third shift. Members of the departments involved feel that there should be a more equal distribution, especially in view of the fact that the trouble is caused by allowing certain individuals to produce truck and passenger tires in excess of a normal output for seven hours work."

Ralph C. Beard, union president, was out of town on vacation when the stoppage occurred, but returned yesterday afternoon. The union official did not indicate last evening as to whether or not he would intercede in the dispute since his leave will not be up until Monday.

The Kelly plant was closed down July 30 after curing room workers protested a change in the production and number of men required to operate loops at the tire plant, but resumed operations August 2 after workers accepted a compromise schedule worked out by union and company officials.

Builders To Receive New FHA Placards

New placards are being issued by the Federal Housing Administration office in Baltimore to builders of rental and sales homes being constructed for veterans in this area, according to E. Price Steiding, local expediter for the National Housing Agency.

The placards are red, white and blue, replacing the yellow signs formerly used. Builders will be provided with these placards upon approval of their priority requests, and the placards must be posted on each separate dwelling under construction or undergoing conversion, unless the work was authorized before August 6.

Structures will be held for veterans 30 days after completion in the case of rentals, and 60 days after completion for sales housing. However, the 60-day holding period for sales homes is not mandatory for permits issued prior to August 6, and may be reduced to 30 days, Steiding said.

CPA Violations Numerous Here, Regional Head Says

Violations of the Civilian Production Administration regulations, governing building of private homes, and industrial construction, are more predominent in the Cumberland area than anywhere else in Maryland, William F. Roth, Jr., Regional CPA compliance manager said yesterday.

The Cumberland area, until recently under the Cleveland Regional CPA office, is now under the jurisdiction of the Philadelphia Regional Office, Roth said, and violations such as are being reported in Cumberland are unequaled in other sections, he added.

Several CPA investigators have conducted inspections in this area, Roth said, and it is likely that the number will be augmented in the near future. He refused to say where or of what type most of the violations consist.

The compliance manager said no findings of the investigators will be revealed unless legal action is taken against the contractors. If a job is incomplete when the violation is reported, Roth said, a CPA stoppage order will be delivered to both the contractor and the owner of the building.

However, if the work is completed or the stoppage order isn't obeyed, legal action will be taken, Roth asserted. To date no stoppages have been delivered in the area, F. Patrick Allender, business manager of Carpenters Local 1024 said last night.

River Board Plans To Enlist Support For Dam Project

Representatives of the Upper Potomac River Board will visit various communities in the Cumberland and Tri-Towns area within the next month in the interest of clearing up pollution of the Potomac River and to enlist support in obtaining completion of the Savage River dam project, Mark K. Roe, board chairman, said last night.

The first of the series of such meetings is scheduled for next Wednesday, August 28, at the weekly meeting of Mayor Marshall Skidmore and the Frostburg City Council.

Other communities to be visited include Lonaconing, Barton, Westernport and Lake, and the West Virginia towns of Piedmont and Keyser. The board representatives plan to meet with community officials at their regular council meetings to discuss the problem.

Roe explained that the Savage River project was included in the omnibus flood control bill recently passed by Congress and signed by the President, but that actual allocation of funds has not been made.

Army engineers will submit their estimate of the funds needed for the project to the Bureau of the Budget about September 15, and the latter will study the estimate and then send its recommendation to Congress.

If funds for the project are so be obtained during the next session of Congress, Roe said, community officials in this area must be informed of the need for public interest and backing.

Plans for the community visits were made at a meeting of the board last week at Central YMCA.

FFA Boys To Judge Livestock At Fair

The annual Future Farmers of America livestock judging contest will be held at the Cumberland Fair ground Tuesday morning, August 27, Joseph H. House, vocational agriculture instructor of Allegany County said yesterday.

The contest will be under the supervision of Elral G. Bee, assistant specialist of animal husbandry of University of Maryland and will include beef cattle, sheep and swine, House said.

Explaining that the contest is open to all members of the County FFA organization, the agriculture instructor said five prizes totaling $30 will be offered to winners of the contest. Of the 120 county members, he said a large number are expected to enter this year.

According to House the stock to be judged will be selected from the Cumperland Fair Association entries and will be appraised by Bee, before being placed before the FFA contestants.

A breakdown of the prizes lists $8 for first, $7 for second, $6 for third, $5 for fourth and $4 for fifth. House said judging will be based on character, conformation and type, condition, quality and smoothness, constitutional vigor and general appearance.

In addition to the livestock contest an exhibit of FFA poultry and vegetables will be offered at the Fair ground, House said. Entries will be accepted either Sunday afternoon, August 25 or Monday, August 26. All judging of poultry and vegetables will be done on August 27, House asserted.

Temporary Zoning Board Chairman Plans To Resign

Raymond G. Messmer Will Submit Resignation To Council

Raymond G. Messmer, acting chairman of the Board of Zoning Appeals since the resignation of J. E. Wetzel last June, said last night that he plans to submit his resignation to the Mayor and City Council at next Monday's meeting.

Messmer, who lives at 1036 Myrtle street, said that he has decided to resign in order to give more time to his business. He is a painter.

He added, however, that he will remain a member of the board until his successor is appointed by Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Although Messmer presided as chairman at last night's meeting of the broad, he and Joseph R. Mantheiy, another member, have asked William M. Weatherholt, who was appointed the third member last week by Mayor Post, to serve as permanent chairman. Weatherholt will assume the chairmanship at the next board meeting.

Messmer, Mantheiy and Wetzel were appointed to the board in August, 1945, following the resignations of the three original members, Thomas Lohr Richards, George H. Tederick and Bruce D. Smith.

Astor Appeal Granted

The appeal of Mark A. Schriver, manager of the Astor Cab Company, for an occupancy permit to use Lots 24 and 25 on Summit avenue for the construction of a radio pole and antenna was granted by the board.

Schriver testified that the pole will be 65 feet high and that a 9'6" antenna will be placed on top of the pole. A wire will be run down into a three-room building near the base of the pole, where a small power unit will be set up in connection with the two-way radio system which the company plans to install in a fleet of 25 new Hudson cabs.

Although the Civil Aeronautics Administration does not require a pole under 157 feet high to be lighted, Schriver said he plans to install a blinker atop the pole to protect low-flying planes. The Federal Communications Commission has approved his application to operate the station, he added.

Two Appeals Denied

Two other appeals were denied and a fourth was granted by the board.

The application of Francis Pahey, 202 Maple street, for a permit to operate a grocery store at 229 Arch street was denied because the applicant failed to appear at the hearing.

Miss Orpha E. Boggs, 415 Bedford street, was denied a permit to use part of the first floor of the two-story building at that address as a confectionery because the building is in a Residential B district, and because it was formerly occupied as a residence.

An occupancy permit was granted to Dennis F. Abe, Green Spring, W. Va., an army veteran, to use two rooms in the first story of a two-story frame building at 324-326 North Mechanic street for storage and wholesale of confections, novelties and patent drugs.

Cresaptown Marine Will Be Honored

A Marine Corps veteran of Cresaptown, Nile Glenn Lechliter, 21, son of Mrs. A. D. Lechliter, will receive two Distinguished Flying Crosses and six Air Medals at a presentation ceremony scheduled for this morning at 10 o'clock in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post.

The presentation will be made by Capt. M. A. Bruder, Baltimore, of the Marine Recruiting Service.

A student in the junior class at Allegany High School when he entered the Marine Corps March 17, 1943, Lechliter served in the Pacific theater for 13 months as a gunner aboard a Douglas SBD dive bomber. He was stationed at a base in the Philippine Islands during most of his overseas service, and flew 67 missions from the time he left this country in August, 1944, until he returned in September, 1945.

Honorably discharged November 26, 1945, as a private first class, he has been employed for the past five months as a steel worker in Harrisonburg, Va. He hopes to enter college to study structural engineering.

In April of this year, the young Marine received citations for four Air Medals and one DFC. He served overseas with Squadron 341 of the First Marine Air Wing.

Mayor Post said that he plans to invite members of the City Council to attend the ceremony this morning, which has been arranged under the sponsorship of Francis K. Finan Detachment, Marine Corps League. John T. Fey, local attorney, will represent the league. Staff Sgt. Murrell W. Brainerd, local Marine recruiter, will also be present.

Defendants Deny Charges Of Fraud In Dairy Dispute

Demurrer And Answer Filed To Stockholder's Bill Of Complaint

In a combined demurrer and answer to a bill of complaint filed by J. William Loar, a director and stockholder of the Queen City Dairy, Incorporated, Clarence U. Llewellyn, Rawlings, a director, Harvey E. England, Bedford County, Pa., a former director, John H. Stiffler, Cumberland, former plant manager, and James H. Laher, Blair County, Pa., president of the Liberty Milk Company here, deny charges that they tried by misrepresentation and conspiracy to purchase stock and gain control of the Queen City firm.

The defendants, represented by Thomas Lohr Richards and Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., demurred to the entire bill of complaint filed against them with the exception of three paragraphs, and said that Lohr did not state a case entitling him to relief in equity. The court also was asked to strike out certain paragraphs of the bill of complaint on grounds that they are "scandalous and impertinent."

In the answer, the defendants said there has "never been any desire" to "freeze out" any stockholder or treat them unfairly.

They declared that the dairy has not been operating as a co-operative but as an ordinary business corporation although "some of its by-laws have some of the characteristics of a co-operative." They added that it would be "of great advantage to the stockholders to operate openly and sincerely as a business corporation which in fact it is."

Eager To Give Options

The defendants said that in the summer of 1945 a majority of the stockholders voted to set up an ordinary business corporation but that a two-thirds majority required was lacking. They added that the plan has since been considered and that there was nothing "secret" in the securing of options, and that the optioners were "willing and even eager" to give the options.

Loar, the defendants said, was the fifth person to sign the option for stock, and also was one of 10 stockholders who signed a petition asking that the by-laws be changed to that of an ordinary business corporation and that the matter be presented at the stockholders' meeting in January.

The defendants also denied that the then counsel for the company had any connection or knowledge of the plan to secure options as the bill had charged.

A charge by the complainant that the attorney evasively refused to consult with some stockholders is termed "false," and the answer points out that he told stockholders who called on him that no one had a right to defraud but that personal controversy between stockholders was a matter for contestants to settle among themselves. His advice, the answer said, was for the company to take no action in the matter as it was of no legal concern to the company. A decision of the Court of Appeals in a former case concerning the stock is referred to in the answer, saying that this decision vindicates the attorney's advice.

The defendants declared that the allegation that Stiffler tried to injure the plant by violating health regulations is a "vicious and malicious defamation of character which is completely false."

The answer asserts that two attorneys for the complainant attended the January stockholders' meeting and raised a controversy between some of the optionors and optionees which counsel for the company had said was not the business of legal interest of the company.

Announced In Notices

The answer termed false a charge by Loar that the then counsel for the company offered for consideration a set of by-laws changing the company to an ordinary business corporation in pursuance of the defendants' plan to gain control, and said that official notices of the meeting stated that a change in by-laws would be considered.

After a second canvass of optionors disclosed that a majority wished to honor their options, the answer said, the First National Bank was asked to act as trustee because of the large amount of money involved and agreed to do so.

Later, however, one of the attorneys for the complainant persuaded the bank president to renege on the contract, the answer asserted, so an account was set up in the Second National Bank in the name of Stiffler and Richards as trustees to pay for any stock that might be willingly offered.

On February 1 of this year, when the options were due, it was discovered that the complainant and others associated with him, had collected some of the stock certificates under option and were holding them in the office of one of the complainant's attorneys, the answer asserts.

"In spite of this extraordinary conduct," the defendants state, "a substantial amount of the stock has been purchased or will be purchased in accordance with the options from willing optionors."

Rep. Beall Favors Aid For Disabled Veterans

In a statement to the Disabled American Veterans, Rep. J. Glenn Beall asserted that if educational legislation is needed to rehabilitate disabled American veterans, Congress should act immediately, it was announced here yesterday.

Members of Congress were asked by the DAV for statements on what they thought of first importance to disabled veterans to be used as a guide for action of delegates to the 25th annual convention of the veterans group in Portland, Ore., September 2 to 6.

Rep. Beall's statement was, "To me it is of most importance that the disabled veterans be made as comfortable as possible. He is the person who should receive first consideration.

"All of us, particularly we veterans of foreign wars, should spend our best efforts to see that he is rehabilitated as quickly as possible. If additional legislation is necessary to take care of them, Congress should act immediately."

Midland Youth Shot To Death By Companion

Examiner Gives Accidental Verdict In Death Of William Warnick

A 13-year-old Midland boy was accidentally shot to death yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock by a companion while they were firing a .22 caliber rifle at targets on Ocean Hill, just above Midland, Trooper Walter Wilt, of the Maryland State Police said last night.

The youth, William Warnick, son of Mrs. Annabel Warnick Ravenscraft by a previous marriage, was pronounced dead by Dr. H. V. Deming, acting county medical examiner, upon admittance to Miners Hospital, Frostburg. Dr. Deming gave a verdict of "accidental death."

Companion Questioned

The companion, Donald G. Crowe, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Crowe, Midland, was questioned by County Investigator T. J. Boyle at his home following the accident, but no charges were preferred.

Dr. Deming said the .22 caliber slug entered the left side of Warnick's face at the nose and lodged in the brain. He explained that a cerebral hemorrhage caused instant death.

Trooper Wilt who investigated along with Lt. Charles W. Magaha, for the state police, said the two boys left the Crowe home about 1:30 p. m. to go into the woods and practice with the rifle, which belonged to the Crowe boy.

Warnick, according to the trooper, had bought a 100 rounds of ammunition for the rifle and gave half to Crowe for the use of his gun. Wilt said the two boys were alone in the hills, and apparently the Warnick youth had finished shooting and gave the rifle to his companion.

Explains Accident

Crowe must have been aiming the gun as Warnick stepped in front of it, Trooper Wilt explained. The slug entered his head diagonally as though he were pointing the rifle into a tree and then he must have pressed the trigger without realizing Warnick was in front, Wilt said.

The victim was taken to Miners Hospital by Leroy Shears, Midland, and Miss Catherine Broderick, registered nurse, the trooper said. The state police were notified of the accident shortly after 2 o'clock and went to the hospital with Dr. Deming, Investigator Boyle and Sheriff David Steele.

The boy is survived by his mother, and father, Hubert Warnick, one brother, Hubert Warnick, Jr., serving with the United States Navy in California, three half-brothers, Robert Ravenscraft, Thomas Ravenscraft, and John Ravenscraft, and one half sister Phyllis Ravenscraft, all at home.

Army-Navy Citation Awarded To YMCA For War Activities

A facsimile of a joint Army and Navy citation awarded to the Young Men's Christian Association in recognition of its USO activities has been received by Robert L. Sisson, general secretary of Central YMCA.

The facsimile bears the signature of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal. Although no formal presentation ceremony has been arranged, Sisson said it is possible that such a ceremony may be held when fall activities are resumed.

Since 1940, all of the facilities of Central YMCA were used by enlisted personnel of the armed forces. The YMCA servicemen's committee co-operated with Army personnel at the Green Ridge prisoner of war camp to arrange a series of entertainments and dances for the officers and enlisted men stationed there.

Complimentary three-month memberships in the "Y" were mailed to 6,500 ex-servicemen of Allegany county, and up until the closing of the Bedford Navy training school the YMCA helped to arrange housing for a large number of men who came to Cumberland for weekend visits.

The Military Police maintained an office and quarters in Central YMCA from September, 1944, until June, 1946. Between train time many servicemen passing through the city on troop trains availed themselves of the "Y' pool, servicemen's lounge and athletic facilities. In addition, the "Y" cafeteria co-operated with the Navy in serving special luncheons to recruits leaving Cumberland for boot training.

The citation states:

"The War Department and the Navy Department express to the Young Men's Christian Associations their appreciation for patriotic services. The Young Men's Christian Associations, member agency of the USO, performed exceptional and meritorious service in World War II. Mobilizing its nationwide resources, including the Army and Navy YMCAs, it dedicated itself to serving the religious, spiritual, educational and welfare needs of the men and women in the armed forces and in the war industries. Its contribution was of substantial aid in the successful prosecution of the war and in preserving the basic values of American democracy."

McCormick Says State OPA Will Enforce Ceilings

Presidential Citations Are Awarded To 30 Rationing Volunteers

Leo H. McCormick, making his farewell appearance as State OPA Director before the Allegany County Price Control Board, said last night that the full strength of the Maryland OPA staff would be used "to make sure that the ceilings restored by the Decontrol Board stick."

McCormick, head of the Maryland OPA office since it was established in May, 1942, and the only one remaining of the original state directors, said the meat ceilings, restored last night by the Decontrol Board in Washington, "could and would be enforced in Maryland."

The state director announced his resignation last week, effective September 1 when he becomes president of a newly-organized frozen foods firm in Baltimore. He is now touring the state explaining the provisions of the new OPA law.

Awards Citations

Mayor Thomas S. Post presided at last night's meeting and said, introducing McCormick, that the director was known "for his honesty and real efforts to consider all sides of the price control problem."

After talks by McCormick and by James E. Hague, Maryland Veterans' Relations Adviser for the OPA, the resigning director awarded presidential citations to the 30 price and rationing volunteers present at the meeting.

He paid especial tribute to Mayor Post, Robert E. Bernard, original chairman of the Allegany County Board, Harry A. Porch, present chairman, and Mary S. Jones, chief clerk.

McCormick charged the board with responsibility for keeping "the all-important interest in price controls alive." He said that those who termed it an impossible task to restore price controls were mistaken.

"After all," he said, "land is in sight and we would be foolish to surrender to inflation now. It is going to be a tremendous job to reach back with prices but it's going to be done."

Promises Enforcement

Saying that he was "frankly amazed that dairy products were not put back under controls," McCormick said that the recontrol of meat "was a tremendous gain for the consumer. And those meat ceilings can and will be enforced. The Maryland OPA office now boasts the best-rounded enforcement staff it has ever had."

"We are going into this meat thing" he continued, "and make it work. OPA has received its mandate and I can say for myself and my successor that we shall carry out that mandate. We haven't been given the most perfect tools in the world but we at least have price control tools now."

In a tribute to McCormick, Chairman Porch said that "everyone in Allegany County knows how you stood behind us. Without your support, our efforts would have accomplished nothing."

McCormick goes to Hagerstown and Frederick today.

7 Become Ill While Using Lake Cabin

Seven persons became ill while occupying a cabin on Deep Creek lake during the past couple of weeks, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, Allegany and Garrett County Health Officer said yesterday, and a later check showed that a sewage line near a well was broken, he added.

Dr. Franklin said he couldn't say definitely that the illness, described as diarrhea was caused by the water, but added that it could possibly be the cause.

He explained that six of the persons were from Pennsylvania, but said he couldn't recall their names.

The Pennsylvania persons occupied the cabin about two weeks ago, the county health officer said, and to date nothing more serious than the diarrhea has been reported. He said the county health department continued to watch for evidence of typhoid, but none has been reported.

The seventh person, a local man, identified the cabin last night as No. 6 of the Heid rental cabins. He said the cabin is located near Cabin Lodge and is on the same side of the lake shore.

Dr. Franklin said last night that the condition has been corrected and people are once more using the cabin.

Other public water supplies in the area have been checked and found to be all high right, Dr. Franklin said.
